TREVES, Germany, Dec. 2.—Because Germany is asking America to feed her, I paid strict attention to the food situation when the American army of occupation entered this city yesterday. In the twenty-four hours we have been here, one thing that has impressed the Americans is the comparatively plentiful food supply. This city of 75,000, an industrial centre, appears sleek and prosperous, and the persons of its inhabitants show no ravages of hunger. The bread is poor and of coffee there is none. Otherwise food can be had of many kinds.

It seems that at the time when America is ready to stint herself and her friends to feed unrepentant Germany, a statement should be made that the food conditions here today are better than in that part of France recently occupied by the Germans. And the German Army has just passed through this place.

Three days ago I ate this luncheon in Nancy at the Café Liegeoise: Fish, beefsteak, potatoes, and salad, paying for it an equivalent of $3.25. Yesterday, at the Hotel Porta Nigra here, I ate fish, beefsteak, potatoes, and salad, and paid an equivalent of $2.50. The two places were about of the same class.

One may buy a dinner here cheaper than in Paris, with the same grade of service. The cafés are well filled at all meals, and the tables seem well loaded. The meat chops are not badly supplied. An abundance of canned goods may be seen in the windows of the shops along the Sigonstrasse.

Plenty for the Wealthy.

It is true that retail prices at the stores are high, which means perhaps that poor people have difficulty in getting what they need. But there is food a-plenty for those with money to pay, and in the last twenty-four hours I have heard a score of Americans say that perhaps Germany had better make a readjustment of her own food supply before calling on America.

Standing just now in front of an enormous glass-incased dining room in the Hotel Porta Nigra, in which many people are dining well, one almost wondered why Germany had quit fighting. For we had heard so much of starvation, of paper shoes, or paper clothing; and so we all thought, up to yesterday, of the picture of misery which lay before us.

Lo! we are here in a beautiful, well-kept city. There pass by us carriages carrying women in furs and men in silk hats. There pass by us on the streets men who look as if Fifth Avenue tailors had turned them out. Their shoes are of leather, their clothes look warm.

It is true that is not all of the picture. There are ill-clad men and women and ragged children. There are those who look hungry. There are those who are cold. But one expected that. That is what France had suffered for four years. That, and more, is what Belgium suffered.

Butter and Sugar Served.

But what "knocks one cold" is the well-being of the well-to-do, and how they eat. There is butter where restaurants in Paris serve no butter. They serve sugar, a bowl of it at a time, in the Hotel Porta Nigra, but they served no sugar at the Hotel Ritz in Paris.

Looking at what the rich have and what the poor have not, one gets a brilliant light perhaps upon the real story of Germany. One sees that the poor pay dearly in order that the rich

Fears Fate of Napoleon's Army Confronts Germans in Russia

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 3.—Addressing a great meeting of returned German soldiers at Ems, in Hesse-Nassau, Herr Barth, Secretary for Social Policy in the new German People's Government, said that the general situation in Germany was serious, according to a Berlin dispatch to the Berlingske Tidende.

Herr Barth praised the self-discipline of the German troops retreating on the western front, but asserted that the situation of the army in the east was distressing. He added that he could not see how the great mass of troops could be evacuated in view of the coming Winter and the hostility of the population.

Secretary Barth hoped the army would not suffer the fate of Napoleon's troops, but declared: "Germany is ready to meet the coming dispensation of Providence."

FOCH ULTIMATUM SENT TO GERMANS

24-Hour Demand for Surrender of the Locomotives Still Withheld.

BERLIN IN FEAR OF INVASION

Expects Wider Occupation by the Allies for Nonfulfillment of Truce Terms.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Marshal Foch has sent a new ultimatum to the German armistice delegates demanding that Germany give up the rest of the locomotive agreed to, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen, transmitted advice from Berlin.

Mathias Erzberger, leader of the German armistice commission, protested that it was impossible and asked for a respite. The ultimatum expired Monday forenoon, with what result it has not been learned.

A Reuter dispatch from Berlin confirms the delivery of the ultimatum, the time limit of which was twenty-four hours. It says that Erzberger offered to deliver all the locomotives as soon as they were repaired. The German newspapers, adds the dispatch, point out that there is no hope of prolonging the armistice and that it is likely the Allies will occupy Germany.

It appears that the Germans will be unable to hand over all of the 5,000 locomotives stipulated in the armistice agreement by Dec. 17, according to the Paris Matin. This would have the effect of delaying peace negotiations, since they cannot begin until the armistice conditions have all been fulfilled.

Discussions between the allied delegations to the Peace Conference will probably begin on Dec. 20, with President Wilson taking part personally.

BRITISH WARSHIPS ARRIVE AT LIBAU

Fleet That Entered the Baltic with Transports Now on Courland Coast.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 3.—A British fleet arrived yesterday at the port of Libau, in Courland, on the Baltic, says a Wolff Bureau dispatch from Berlin today.

[Advices received in London on Nov. 28 from Copenhagen reported two British squadrons off the east coast of Denmark headed south. They numbered twenty-two ships, including destroyers, cruisers, mine sweepers, and transport steamers.]

BERLIN, Dec. 2, (Associated Press.)—If a few British torpedo boats or light cruisers, with even a small landing force, could reach Reval this week they could dam the Bolshevist flood which has been murdering, burning, and plundering Esthonia and Livonia, according to a declaration made to the correspondent by Baron Aexkuell of Esthonia, who escaped from that country on Thursday in disguise.

Baron Aexkuell reports that German forces had begun to evacuate Narva, when they were attacked and defeated by Russian troops.

Last Tuesday White Guards, commanded by former Russian officers, under the leadership of Count Keller of the old Russian régime, were attacked by a superior Bolshevist force. The Guards gave protection a month ago to 500 Russians, who alleged they had deserted from the Bolshevist army because of bad treatment. They brought twenty-three machine guns with them. While the attack was proceeding last Tuesday these Russians fired upon the White Guards from the rear, contributing materially to their defeat. The White Guards, half annihilated, retired.

Esthonian workmen are nearly all Bolsheviki, according to Baron Aexkuell, and the middle classes of Esthonia and Livonia are facing the same reign of terror that the bourgeoisie of Russia have suffered.

CROWN PRINCE HOLDS TO RIGHTS; FORESAW DEFEAT

Sure Germany Was Beaten After the Marne, He Declares, and Urged Peace.

READY TO YIELD ALSACE

Denies That He or the Kaiser Wanted Conflict—Calls Verdun Attack a Mistake.

SAYS HE ADMIRES WILSON

Ready to Return and Work as a Laborer if Germany Becomes a Republic.

OOSTERLAND, Holland, Dec. 3, (Associated Press.)—"I have not renounced anything and I have not signed any document whatever."

Frederick William Hohenzollern, who still claims the title of German Crown Prince, thus answered the question of The Associated Press in the course of a lengthy conversation today, which took place in the small cottage of the village pastor on the Island of Wieringen, where he is interned.

"However," he continued, "should the German Government decide to form a republic similar to the United States or France, I should be perfectly content to return to Germany as a simple citizen ready to do anything to assist my country. I should even be happy to work as a laborer in a factory.

"At present everything appears chaotic in Germany, but I hope things will right themmselves."

Asked what in his opinion was the turning point of the war, he said:

"I was convinced early in October, 1914; that we had lost the war. I considered our position hopeless after the battle of the Marne, which we should not have lost if the chiefs of our General Staff had not suffered a case of nerves.

"I tried to persuade the General Staff to seek peace then even at a great sacrifice, going so far as to give up Alsace-Lorraine. But I was told to mind my own business and confine my activities to comanding my armies. I have proof of this."

America Weakened German Morale.

What finally brought about the downfall of the German military power, he declared, was revolution induced by four years of hunger among the civilians and the troops in the rear, together with the fact that the overwhelming numbers being gathered by the Entente powers since America's entry into the war had undermined the confidence of the German fighting forces.

"My soldiers, whom I loved and with whom I lived continuously, and who, if I may say so, loved me, fought with the utmost courage to the end, even when the odds were impossible to withstand," the refugee Prince went on. "They had no rest, and sometimes an entire division numbered only 600 rifles. These were opposed by fresh allied troops, among whom were American divisions containing 27,000 men apiece."

Describing how he left the front, Frederick William said:

"I was with my group of armies after the Kaiser left Germany. I asked the Berlin Government whether they desired me to retain my command. They replied negatively, and I could not continue to lead armies under orders of the Soldiers' and Workers' Council.

"Therefore I came to Holland, without hindrance. No shooting or bombing occurred, and I quit the army with the greatest regret after having participated in the trench life with the soldiers for so long.

"I have not been in Germany for a year, and from the beginning of the war I have taken only three or four fortnight leaves."

Denies That He Wanted War.

Speaking of the beginning of the war, Frederick William asserted:

"Contrary to all statements hitherto made abroad, I never desired war, and thought the moment quite inopportune. I was never consulted, and the report about a Crown Council being held in Berlin to decide on the war I deny on my oath. I was enjoying a

America Deciding Factor in Winning War, Says Joffre

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—In a conversation with Dr. Horatio S. Krans of New York today, Marshal Joffre gave credit to the United States as being the winning factor in the war.

"It was the weight of America," he said, "her moral and material resources, and surely not the least her very considerable army, thrown into the balance at the crucial moment, that turned the scales and won the victory. And the Americans showed themselves true soldiers and a military power that counted tremendously in the decisive conflict."

BERLIN, Dec. 3, (via Copenhagen.)—Vorwärts and other German papers continue to give details of reactionary activity by army officers in different parts of the country.

"Reports of counter-revolutionary excesses by officers of all grades are multiplying alarmingly," says Vorwärts. "The commander of the Seventeenth Army, von Mudra, has just made public at Paderborn the following decree:

I have taken over the command in this section. I demand that all military and civil authorities aid me in the maintenance of law and order. If there should exist within this district any Soldiers' and Workers' Councils, they will naturally have to submit to the military authority. The wearing of red badges is strictly prohibited.

"We demand," says Vorwärts, "that the Government immediately dismiss von Mudra."

Vorwärts cites further examples of excesses as follows:

"On its way through Ham, Westphalia, a flying detachment from the front removed the red flag from the City Hall, placed there by the Soldiers' and Workers' Council, and burned it on the market place. At Kreuznach reactionary officers caused grave disturbances several times. A red flag which had been hoisted, together with the national ensign, on the City Hall was removed by officers, but replaced by the Soldiers' Council. On Saturday it was again removed and publicly burned.

Cheers for the ex-Kaiser.

"On Sunday the performance was repeated. This time a Captain on horseback made a reactionary speech to the soldiers and the public, concluding with a call for 'three cheers for his Majesty,' in which the reactionary populace of Kreuznach joined.

"At this point an armed citizens' guard appeared and proceeded to remove all the rest of the decorations from the City Hall. A bloody encounter seemed unavoidable, but at the last minute the Soldiers' Council managed to intercede and keep the peace."

Die Rote Fahne recounts the same and other incidents, among them the case of a noble officer who in one of Berlin's armories called for three cheers for the Kaiser from the Pomeranian peasants who form the body of his Dragoon regiment. The paper also tells of secret meetings of officers and Junkers in other parts of Westphalia and points to General von Winterfeld's, (the General is en route from Aachen to Cologne,) allegedly avowed intention to put down the revolution. Die Rote Fahne, however, usually sees redder than ordinary eyes.

"The officers will have to blame themselves," says Vorwärts, "if such incidents create a dangerous situation. In our interest they should prevent irresponsible parties from committing such obnoxious acts. The people will no longer tolerate the insolence of a small class relying on the sabre. Officers as a class will suffer for this sort of thing, and very bitterly."

SENATORS CLASH OVER TRIP

Sherman Wants Wilson Dropped; Knox Would Limit Peace Work.

FEARS ALIEN INFLUENCE

Williams Accuses Republicans of Mud-Throwing and Asks Why They Do It.

MANN SUPPORTS EXECUTIVE

Deplores Factional Strife and Thinks People Will Not Tolerate "Meddling."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—On the eve of President Wilson's departure for France to attend the Paris Peace Conference the United States Senate, as part of the treaty-making power of the nation, today displayed unmistakable signs of its determination to have a hand in the winding up of the war.

Senator Knox of Pennsylvania, who served both as Secretary of State and as Attorney General under Republican Administrations and is a member of the Committee on Foreign Relations, offered a resolution the passage of which would place the Senate on record as favoring the winding up of the war at the earliest possible moment.

Under the Knox resolution, if adopted, the soldiers and sailors, except those in the permanent army and navy, would be sent as quickly as possible to their homes, the project for a League of Nations and sweeping changes in the laws of the sea would be postponed for separate consideration, the purposes of the American Government in the Peace Conference would be confined to matters germane to the reasons that led the United States into the war, and the President would be relieved of the extraordinary war powers conferred upon him by Congress.

Coincidental with the introduction of the Knox resolution Senator Sherman of Illinois, who introduced a resolution calling on the Senate to declare Mr. Wilson out of office and place Vice President Marshall in the Presidential chair, launched an attack against the President for leaving the country.

Williams Defends President.

Senator Williams of Mississippi rallied to the defense of the President, praising his decision to go abroad and arguing that personal contact with the representatives of other nations at the peace table could be counted upon to clear up errors and misconstructions which might result from impersonal communication.

While criticism of the President's plans was heard in the Senate, at the other end of the Capitol, Representative Mann of Illinois, Republican floor leader, issued a statement in which he came out flatly against the resolution to install Vice President Marshall in the White House during the absence of President Wilson abroad. Mr. Mann announced on behalf of the Republican side of the House that it would undertake no concerted movement to embarrass the President during his absence.

The Republican floor leader is strongly opposed to any attempt to deprive the President of his constitutional power to pass upon bills or perform other functions of his office while abroad. Mr. Mann was emphatic in denouncing both the Rodenberg and Sherman resolutions, which were introduced respectively in Senate and House, and are designed to take away the President's power during his absence.

"There will be no concerted effort on the part of the Republicans of the House to embarrass the President in any way while he is abroad," said Mr. Mann. "I am of the opinion that the American people would not be in sympathy with any attempt to pin-prick the President while he is abroad on so important a mission. Personally I am not at all in sympathy with any of the resolutions which have appeared in the Senate or House regarding the President's absence from Washington or his visit abroad.

Mann Urges Congress Support.

"I cannot help what individuals may do in the House, but the Republican members of the House as a body will certainly make no concerted move to embarrass or hamper the President in any way while he is engaged abroad on a mission that affects so vitally the interests of the American people. I believe he should have the support of Congress in so far as those interests are involved and that factional strife ought not to be permitted to interfere with his mission, or to give the rest of the world the impression that the American people are divided on issues involving the peace of the world.

"Congress will doubtless have a number of very important legislative questions to decide while the President is

Allies Delay Action on Kaiser Till Wilson Arrives; Unanimous for Demanding the Crown Prince Also

LONDON, Dec. 3, (Associated Press,)—The British War Cabinet and the French and Italian representatives in London are in agreement as to the proposed punishment of William Hohenzollern, the former German Emperor, but have decided to take no action until President Wilson arrives in Europe, The Evening News says it learns.

The Allies are not willing to allow a technicality to prevent bringing the ex-Kaiser to trial. If Holland refuses his extradition without the consent of Germany, the newspaper adds, pressure will be brought to secure consent.

It is understood that the representatives of the Allies in conference at the Foreign Ministry today were unanimously in favor of demanding that Holland hand over to the Allies both the former German Emperor and former Crown Prince.

No official report of the conference was issued beyond a recital of the names of those attending it, and a statement that Colonel E. M. House of the American peace delegation was prevented by illness from attending.

The opinion is held that Holland will not be disposed to put obstacles in the way. She will not be asked to deliver Herr Hohenzollern under the ordinary extradition laws, but his status will be considered analogous to that of a pirate or slave trader, who is not regarded as entitled to sanctuary in any country.

Early this morning there was a meeting of the War Cabinet in Downing Street, with representatives of the Dominions in attendance. Then the conferees were joined by M. Clemenceau, the French Premier; Signor Orlando, the Italian Prime Minister, and other representatives of France and Italy.

It is understood that in addition to the fate of the former Emperor the discussion turned largely upon Germany's ability to pay in reparation, and that in this connection the suggestion was made for allied control of Germany's railways and her coal and potash industries. Everything was debated in a preliminary way, no decision being attempted in the absence of President Wilson.

Other matters under discussion were the date and composition of the Peace Conference.

Great crowds again gathered in Whitehall and its vicinity to salute the distinguished visitors, who will return to France tomorrow.

HEAD OF TREASURY TO BE NAMED TODAY

Nomination of the Successor of McAdoo Delayed by the President.

LIKELY TO BE CARTER GLASS

Choice of Railroad Director May Be Postponed—Judge Lovett Talked Of.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—President Wilson gave the Senate a surprise today when he did not send in the nomination for a Secretary of the Treasury to succeed Secretary McAdoo. The Senate continued in session until 5 o'clock and on adjournment at that hour there was considerable speculation in the cloak rooms as to whether the President, if he desired, would wait until he arrived at Paris before he sent in the nomination. Here arose the question as to how the President could overcome the difficulty of signing the commission.

It was announced late tonight that the President would name the new Secretary of the Treasury before sailing tomorrow. It is not likely that the new Director General of Railroads will be designated before the President departs.

It is confidently expected that the Treasury nominee will be Representative Carter Glass of Lynchburg, Va., Chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee. In fact, in Washington hardly another name was mentioned as a possibility for Secretary of the Treasury, and the prospect of Mr. Glass's nomination was considered to be more certain when it became known that he had a conference with the President this afternoon. The belief the President will act tomorrow is strengthened by the known fact that Mr. McAdoo is desirous of quitting the office as soon as possible.

All day the Treasury Department was on tiptoe as to who the new Secretary would be and hourly an announcement was expected. It was learned at the Treasury Department tonight that Mr. McAdoo would remain in office at least until late tomorrow. This is borne out by the fact that he made an appointment today with Senator Simmons, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, to appear before that body tomorrow in support of the need to pass the revenue law for the 1920 taxation program.

There was much speculation in Washington tonight as to why the President did not send in the nomination today. One was that other events had pressed upon him so that he was not ready, and in support of this was pointed out the long conference he had with Mr. Glass this afternoon. The other was that the selection had already been made and the President, with the aim of obviating any opposition that might arise among Republican members of the Senate against confirmation, had decided to delay until just before he left the country the sending of the name to the Senate; the Senate would have to confirm the nomination or else be in the position of obstructing Government business.

An announcement is also expected tomorrow of the name of the man who is

GERMANS ANXIOUS FOR WILSON VISIT

Suedekum, Finance Minister, Hopes He'll Come Before Peace Is Concluded.

REPROACHES THE ENTENTE

Says It Called for Revolution and Now Won't Trust Those Who Made It.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 3, (via Copenhagen.)—A message bearing a Paris date, published here yesterday, suggests that President Wilson on a second European trip may visit some German port. This news has created quite a stir in Government circles, since for some days the proposition of inviting the President to come to Germany and study existing political and economic conditions has been considered.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent called on Dr. Suedekum, who is now installed as Prussian Minister of Finance in the handsome Finanzministerium, to inquire what progress the proposition had made.

Dr. Suedekum's knowledge of the United States, to which he has made several trips, and his close intimacy with the men governing Germany today, suggested that he might know something positive about the plan, but he shook his head.

"Doubtless President Wilson's visit to Germany or at least some German ports would be of the highest importance and would be heartily welcomed by every true friend of Germany, because of all our enemies the American President is generally regarded here as the fairest.

"The German people ask nothing better than that Mr. Wilson come and see with his own eyes that he is dealing with a new nation, having nothing whatever in common with the Germany of the Hohenzollerns and the twenty other monarchs and Princes. He will find a Germany that has completely burned the bridges leading from the old Kaiserism and militarism—the most modern republic in the world.

"That Paris message, however, suggests that Mr. Wilson intends to defer his visit until the peace negotiations are about to be signed. I hope that in the interest of fair play he will reconsider this intention and see for himself before he commits the fair name of the United States to an act that is bound to have the gravest consequences for the world's future welfare."

THE TIMES correspondent asked if the Government had already agreed on a formal invitation.

"With events cascading down Germany hourly, each of which would form the task of a lifetime for an ordinary pre-war statesman, our overburdened Government has been as yet

WILSON OFF ON PEACE TRIP

Arrives at Hoboken at 8 o'Clock This Morning and Sails at 10.

CROWDS CHEER AT STATION

Presidential Party Greeted by Demonstration on Leaving Capital at Midnight.

CONVOY HERE IN READINESS

Admiral Mayo Announces Warships Will Surround George Washington on Voyage.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Dec. 4.—President Wilson and many of the members of the party that will sail with him for France on the steamship George Washington left Washington at 12:30 o'clock this (Wednesday) morning over the Pennsylvania Railroad for Hoboken.

The train will be run up to the dock at Hoboken where the George Washington will be waiting with steam up, ready to sail as soon as the President gives the word. The understanding is that the Presidential train will arrive at the Hoboken pier about 8 o'clock this morning, and that the George Washington will start at about 10 o'clock for Brest, the French port to which the steamer will go direct from New York City.

Among those on the Presidential train are, in addition to the President, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, her private secretary, Miss Edith Benham; Robert Lansing, Secretary of State, accompanied by Mrs. Lansing; J. J. Jusserand, the French Ambassador; Count V. Macchi di Cellere, the Italian Ambassador; M. Cartier de Marchienne, the Belgian Minister, and members of their families accompanying them; Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, a surgeon in the navy, who is the private physician of the President; Henry White, a member of the American Peace Mission, and Joseph P. Tumulty, the private secretary to the President.

Secretary Tumulty is going only as far as Hoboken to say good-bye to the President and will return to Washington on Thursday. He will not accompany the President to Europe. Others on the train were Secret Service men, those members of the military section of the Peace Commission now in this country except Brig. Gen. Marlborough Churchill, who went in advance to New York, and some of the attachés from the State Department.

Special Train of Cars.

The President's party left Washington on a special train, which was run as a second section of the regular Pennsylvania express for New York City which left Washington at 12:20 o'clock, with the understanding that the President's special would follow at an interval of ten minutes. The train consisted of seven Pullman cars, besides the baggage coaches, and the President and Mrs. Wilson and his immediate party traveled in the rear coach, the Pullman car Ideal, in which he usually travels.

Two of the Pullman coaches on the train were set apart for the exclusive use of the French and Italian Ambassadors, and the Belgian Minister and members of their families, who are going to France on the George Washington by invitation of the President as his guests.

Applauded at Station.

President and Mrs. Wilson left the White House at 10:50 o'clock last night and arrived at Union Station nearly two hours ahead of the time scheduled for the departure of the train. At the station there was a fairly good-sized crowd, which loudly applauded the Presidential party as it passed through the great concourse to the train shed.

Every precaution has been taken for the protection of the President—greater, even than during inauguration periods. Major Raymond Pullman, the Chief of Police of Washington, had ordered all of his precinct Lieutenants to be on hand promptly at 10 o'clock, along with a large number of Sergeants, metropolitan policemen, detectives, and plain-clothes men. Secret Service men, other than those who usually travel with the President, were also on hand, as well as the latter.

Only two automobiles left the White House. In one of these rode the President and Mrs. Wilson and Miss Benham. In the second automobile were the Secret Service men protecting the party. On his arrival at the station the President found that the Presidential suite, which is normally used only during the arrival and departure of the President and the distinguished guests of the nation, was in use by the Army and Navy Community Canteen.

Big Crowd on Hand.

The soldiers and sailors had temporarily vacated the room through which the President's party passed to the concourse of the station, where a crowd of several hundred stood behind ropes. The President received a very sincere demonstration of applause. He raised his silk hat, bowed and smiled to the crowd as he passed from the concourse to the train shed, with Mrs. Wilson smiling at his side.

Mrs. Wilson wore a black velvet traveling gown and held a large bouquet of white and yellow carnations. Escorted and followed by Police Captains and Secret Service men, the President and Mrs. Wilson and Miss Benham went at once to the train. Secretary and Mrs. Lansing had preceded them to the station, and were at the train when the President and Mrs. Wilson arrived.

The President found Rear Admiral Grayson in his car. There were no members of the Cabinet other than Secretary Lansing at the station when the President left. The only other Cabinet member at the station up to the time of the departure of the train was Newton D. Baker, the Secretary of War, who arrived shortly before 11 o'clock, who went direct to the President's private car and was with him for some time.

Ambassador Jusserand Greeted.

The platform adjoining the one on which the train was parked was so crowded that Secretary Baker slipped by almost unnoticed to the train. No persons were admitted to this platform except persons holding tickets for the first section of the regular 12:20 Pennsylvania train, persons going on the Presidential train, those who may have gone to see members of this party off, a few newspaper men, and the large contingent of policemen and detectives.

At 11 o'clock, in anticipation of the arrival of Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand, who had not at that hour arrived at the station, a score of French officers, in their pretty uniforms, reached the station and went to the train platform. They were attached to the French Embassy and to the French High Commission, and had gone to the train to witness the departure of the Ambassador. Members of the French and Belgian Legations and War Missions also went to the station and were favored with admission to the train platform.

No formal announcement regarding the President's departure was forthcoming from the White House or the State Department today, and until the arrival of the President at the station the newspaper men had not even been taken into the confidence of the Administration regarding the plans. Secretary Tumulty reached the station about 11 o'clock, and, as he had promised that any announcement made would be given out at the train, he went into the President's car at once.

After a little while he came out of the car, and, standing on its rear steps, almost surrounded by the newspaper contingent, told them there was no announcement to make except that the only members of President Wilson's immediate party were the President, Mrs. Wilson, Miss Benham, Mr. Close, who is the President's personal stenographer, and Dr. Grayson.

"That's not a very large party," exclaimed Mr. Tumulty.

While the President's immediate party was small, the number of persons aboard the train in one capacity or another were sufficient to fill all the berths in six cars.

"Is there anything else you want to ask?" inquired Mr. Tumulty.

"Are you ready to announce the new Secretary of the Treasury and Director General of Railroads?" inquired a reporter.

New Secretary to be Named Today.

"The name of the new Secretary of the Treasury," he replied, "will be given out before the President sails tomorrow morning."

The President's train travels over the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad as far as Newark. There it will be switched to the tracks of the Lackawanna and shifted to the pier at Hoboken, where the George Washington is berthed. There were three newspaper correspondents on the President's train when it left Washington, who will accompany him on all his travels to and through Europe. They are L. C. Probert, Associated Press; John Edwin Nevin of the International News Service, and Robert J. Bender of the United Press Association.

WARSHIPS SURROUND PRESIDENT AT SEA

Airplanes and Dirigibles Also to be in Convoy—Admiral Mayo Tells of His Plans.

Just before going aboard his flagship, the battleship Pennsylvania, last night, Vice Admiral Henry T. Mayo, commander of the Atlantic Fleet, told of the Navy Department's plans for President Wilson's voyage to the Peace Conference.

Because of the terms of the armistice and the surrender of the German fleet, Admiral Mayo regards the escorting of the transport George Washington, on which the President and his party will sail, as a comparatively simple matter.

"I anticipate no trouble," he said, "with the faintly possible exception of a stray floating mine which might be encountered these days anywhere in the Atlantic lanes." Even that remote possibility, however, will be guarded against to the fullest extent possible, and every officer and every enlisted man will be both instructed and drilled in just what to do if anything should happen to the George Washington.

Asked to tell of the "extraordinary" preparations for the President's journey, the Admiral said:

"There will not be 'extraordinary' preparations; there will be ordinary preparations."

A moment later he explained that the American Navy's year and more of practical experience had resulted in putting into practice every known device for the safeguarding of the lives of those on board the transports, and that nothing having been neglected in the case of the millions of officers and men safely taken across, nothing really could be added to heighten the safety of the present voyage.

"The George Washington," said the Admiral, "will be both surrounded and led. My flagship, the Pennsylvania, will travel ahead of her all the way across. The particular purpose in that, of course, is so to manipulate that if there should be anything to hit, it will be the Pennsylvania and not the George Washington which hits it. Our men will understand that the life of the President of the United States is more precious than the lives of any of us, and that if, in an emergency, anybody has to get hurt, it must not be the President.

"The Pennsylvania will fly the flag of the Commander of the Atlantic Fleet. The George Washington will fly the Presidential flag, and both vessels will float the national ensign. The destroyers which are to convoy the party are five in number. They are now lying off Tompkinsville, S. I., all tuned up and ready for their journey. At the signal from the flagship they will move into their positions, and the George Washington will steam out from her berth. At the start of the trip there will be considerably more than five destroyers, as a number of others now in nearby waters will be assembled to escort the President's ship into open water. This will be in the nature of a guard of honor, however, and not for any purpose of added safety.

"Once started across the Atlantic, the transport, the flagship, and the five destroyers will travel on alone until we near the other side.

"I am not definitely informed that any foreign war vessels will come out to meet us. I do know that just as a number of American destroyers will see us fairly away on this side, so a number of our ships on active duty on the other side will steam out to escort us into port. Exactly how many they will be or which ones will come I am not yet informed myself. However, there will be a large number of both dreadnoughts and destroyers.

"The formation of the little fleet during its journey across will be the customary one adopted, because experience has proven it to be best for all convoy work during the war. With the Pennsylvania leading, there will be destroyers both to port and starboard of the George Washington, and at least one will bring up the rear. So the President's ship will be surrounded on all sides with fighting ships, and these will be close enough to handle any emergency and to be capable of the readiest communication with each other.

"The other factor in the convoy will be made up of both seaplanes and dirigibles. However, it is customary to have these accompany every fleet of transports, and so that cannot be regarded, either, as extraordinary. Until I get aboard my flagship I cannot determine the exact number of these, but they will be adequate for the purpose and will be handled by expert pilots. They will fly over and about the navy vessels and through their wireless and other signaling apparatus will be in instant and ready touch with us."

The Admiral said that the prospect for a "pleasant" trip at this season of the year is not altogether bright. He rather anticipated some rough weather in mid-Atlantic which would, of course, mean nothing at all to the fighting ships, while the George Washington, known as an easy-going ship before she was taken over by the navy, had been made as comfortable for the President and his party as was possible.

Admiral Mayo, with Mrs. Mayo, was at the Hotel McAlpin until he boarded his vessel.

The Pennsylvania will be commanded by Captain L. M. Nulton, and the five destroyers are the Wickes, Commander J. S. Barleon; Woolsey, Commander F. V. McNall; Lea, Commander D. W. Bagley; Tarbell, Commander Halsey Powell; Yarnell, Commander W. F. Halsey.

Ten other destroyers will accompany the President's ship during the first forty-eight hours of the trip and then put back. These are the Mahan, Radford, Breese, Craven, Dorsey, Robinson, Walke, Montgomery, Lamberton, and Perkins.

Off the coast of France the President's ship will be met by two divisions of the Atlantic Fleet and escorted to port. Rear Admiral Hugh Rodman will be in command of Division 9, which includes the battleships New York, the flagship, commanded by Captain E. L. Beach; Texas, Captain Victor Blue; Wyoming, Captain H. H. Christy; Florida, Captain M. M. Taylor; Arkansas, Captain L. R. Desteiger; Nevada, Captain W. C. Cole. The other division, No. 6, which will be under command of Rear Admiral T. S. Rogers, includes the Utah, commanded by Captain F. B. Bassett; Oklahoma, Captain C. B. McVay; Arizona, Captain J. A. Dayton.

Rear Admiral H. H. Knapp and Captain William V. Pratt will accompany the Presidential party on the George Washington.

At the direction of Secretary Baker, Raymond B. Fosdick, Chairman of the Commission on Training Camp Activities, is sailing for France to represent the army in its relation to nonmilitary organizations serving with the American Expeditionary Forces.

CORDON OF GUARDS AWAITS PRESIDENT

Train Will Be Protected to the Entrance of the Hoboken Pier.

Elaborate police plans have been mapped out for the guarding of the train bearing President and Mrs. Wilson and their party from its arrival in Jersey City until it has passed over the connecting lines to Weehawken and along the waterfront to Pier 4 in the old Hamburg-American reservation. These plans were settled at a conference yesterday afternoon between Brig. Gen. McManus, commanding the Port of Embarkation; Major Craig, in charge of the Military Police for the Hoboken zone, and Director of Public Safety McSeeley and Chief of Police Hayes of Hoboken.

Agents of the Secret Service and of the Army and Navy Intelligence Services will be on duty at all times, and the police and military police will reinforce those agencies.

The military police will have charge of the train from Weehawken to the pier of the George Washington. The Hoboken police will guard the railroad to Eleventh Street, where another detachment of military police will relieve them. In Hoboken proper the police and military police will jointly man the streets bordering and leading into the pier reservations. The west side of Rover Street, which parallels the piers, will be guarded by soldiers, and the east side of the street by policemen. All traffic will be prohibited in the pier zone until after the George Washington has sailed.

The George Washington is scheduled to leave for Brest at 10 o'clock this morning. The superdreadnought Pennsylvania and the destroyers which are to convoy the transport across the Atlantic are waiting at onchor in the lower bay.

President Wilson and the party from Washington will arrive at Pier 4 at 8 by special train over the Pennsylvania Railroad. The transfer to the Hoboken Shore Railroad will be made so that the train will not have to pass through the city. Count von Bernstorff, once German Ambassador, traveled part of the way over the same road. He left it at 8 Fifteenth Street, Hoboken, to board the Scandinavian-American liner at Pier 10. This is the only previous occasion when the shore line was used for a passenger train.

On his arrival the President will leave the train at the entrance to the pier and walk to the elevator which will convey him and his party to the upper deck of the long pier, which has been decorated with flags and palms. On his right in the square there will be 325 Army Transport girls in their smart khaki uniforms, who will arrive at 7 o'clock from the Bush Terminal to join the 250 who are employed in the offices at Hoboken. In another corner some distance away the reporters and photographers will be penned in until President Wilson has gone on board. No persons except naval and military officers on duty and those having special passes will be permitted on the pier.

As the President goes up the gangway to the George Washington the guard of honor of the United States Marines on the pier and on board the transport will present arms, the band will play the national anthem, and his flag will be broken at the mainmast head, while the Stars and Stripes will be hoisted at the flagstaff aft. The finishing touches to the cabins and saloons were given yesterday and the culinary crew under the direction of Louis Seres, chef from the Hotel Biltmore, overhauled the saloon galley on the upper deck and tried all the stoves and cooking appliances to see that they were in working order. The President and Mrs. Wilson will dine in their private suite, and the peace delegates and foreign diplomats will use the small dining room on the "B" deck for their meals.

The George Washington will also carry a number of Red Cross nurses and Y. M. C. A. workers to France, and has a cargo of 3,500 tons, about 6,000 sacks of mail and a few hundred baskets of Christmas packages for the soldier boys in France.

Just as the transport pulls out from her pier the White Star liner Lapland will be coming up to her pier on the New York side of the river, and the President will have an opportunity of seeing some of the soldiers arriving from the war zone.

BAKER SAILING NEXT MONTH.

But Going "on War Department Business Solely," He Says.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. — Secretary Baker announced today that he had decided to postpone his trip to Europe, which had been planned to take place about this time.

He said Edward R. Stettinius, Assistant Secretary and his personal representative in France, would return home for Christmas, and that they would go to France together, probably in January, "on War Department business solely."

TONS OF DATA GO WITH WILSON PARTY

Three Truckloads of Records Gathered Here Put Aboard President's Ship.

GEOGRAPHICAL EXPERTS AID

Thirteen Months' Inquiry Completed by Scientists Who Accompany Conference Overseas.

For thirteen months the United States Government, in co-operation with the French and British Governments, has carried on a compilation of data for use at the Peace Conference, according to announcement made yesterday by the Director of the American Geographical Society, at Broadway and 156th Street. The work of gathering material for the information of the peace delegates was begun on Nov. 10, 1917, by a staff of 150 scientists at the direction of Colonel E. M. House, acting for the President personally, and the cost of assembling the facts was paid for out of the President's emergency fund.

The mass of facts which the compilers, officially known under the title "The Inquiry," have prepared is on board the George Washington and will travel overseas with the President today. According to the announcement, every effort has been made to keep the work of "The Inquiry" from becoming known to the public. However, it was recalled that when the President was in this city on Oct. 12 to make his speech of that day at the Metropolitan Opera House he paid an early morning visit with Colonel House to the Geographical Society for the purpose, it was said, of looking over the "great collection of maps."

The statement now issued by the American Geographical Society recalls these events, and their sequel, as follows:

"In September, 1917, as a result of conferences between Colonel E. M. House and President Wilson, Colonel House was authorized to organize forces to gather and prepare for use at the Peace Conference the most complete information possible, from the best and latest sources, for consideration by the Peace Commissioners.

"The expenses were provided for from the special emergency fund placed by Congress at the President's disposal.

"Colonel House held preliminary conferences with Dr. S. E. Mezes, President of the College of the City of New York; Professor James T. Shotwell of Columbia University, and Archibald C. Coolidge of Harvard University, about the broad lines of the work, and the organization, which, after a time became known officially as 'The Inquiry.'

"It was soon evident that the scope of the inquiry would demand not only a personnel of size and quality hitherto unknown in any such work but headquarters where safety from enemy activity of records and secret documents could be assured. The Inquiry has worked in the closest touch with the Military Intelligence Division. There was also needed an already established organization for many kinds of research, mapmaking, &c., which could be immediately utilized. This problem was finally solved when the American Geographical Society placed its building, at 156th Street and Broadway, and a part of its staff, including its Director, Dr. Isaiah Bowman, at the disposal of 'The Inquiry' without cost.

Three Army Trucks Carry Records.

"The work from that date, Nov. 10, 1917, got really under way, and has proceeded under careful guard night and day. Such measures were considered vital, owing to experiences at other peace conferences, notably that after the Franco-Prussian war. It was considered necessary, too, to abstain from publication of details of the work of 'The Inquiry' until its results were safely on shipboard. A large part of them are now on the way to Europe, and by the time the President, the other Peace Commissioners and their staffs, together with the twenty-three members of 'The Inquiry,' arrive in France, the material used will be ready for them. The main body of it left the building of the American Geographical Society in three army trucks on Monday, Dec. 2. Other results of the work are already in Paris, where Colonel House has been arranging the preliminaries of the forthcoming conference.

"Similar inquiries have been in progress abroad, notably in France and England. There have been frequent conferences for delivery of material and exchange of views, marked by a spirit of friendly co-operation throughout. Some of the material from Europe, such, for example, as the complete texts of important treaties signed since the beginning of the war, has never been made public.

"Primarily, 'The Inquiry' has been a fact study, conducted in a scientific spirit by specialists and scholars, both American and from various European countries affected by the war. In order to give high value to any statement of fact, the inquiry has been entirely independent of any political hypothesis.

Those Who Conducted the Inquiry.

"'The Inquiry' has had a personnel of about 150 people. Among them are:

Director, Dr. S. E. MEZES, President of the College of the City of New York.

Chief Territorial Specialist, Dr. ISAIAH BOWMAN, Director of the American Geographical Society.

Specialist on Economic Resources, ALLYN A. YOUNG, head of the Department of Economics at Cornell University.

CHARLES H. HASKINS, Dean of the Graduate School of Harvard University, specialist on Alsace-Lorraine and Belgium.

CLIVE DAY, head of Economics Department at Yale, specialist on the Balkans.

W. B. LUNT, Professor of History, Haverford College, specialist on Northern Italy.

R. H. LORD, Professor of History at Harvard, specialist on Russia and Poland.

CHARLES SEYMOUR, Professor of History at Yale, specialist on Austria-Hungary.

W. L. WESTERMANN, Professor of History at the University of Wisconsin, specialist on Turkey.

G. L. BEER, formerly of Columbia University, specialist on Colonial History.

Cartographer, MARK JEFFERSON, Professor of Geography, Michigan State Normal College.

ROLAND B. DIXON, Professor of Ethnography at Harvard.

In addition there are eleven assistants and four commissioned officers of the Military Intelligence Division assigned to the inquiry for special problems on strategy, economics, and ethnography. These officers are:

Major D. W. JOHNSON, Columbia University.

Major LAWRENCE MARTIN, University of Wisconsin.

Captain W. C. FARABEE, the University Museum, Philadelphia.

Captain STANLEY HORNBECK, author of "Contemporary Politics in the Far East."

"The above-named, together with map makers and other assistants, will sail with the Peace Commission on the George Washington.

"In its latest stages the Inquiry had its work centred on territorial matters, so that all the specialists going abroad are territorial specialists, except the direct representatives of the State Department. Part of the force in international law are already in Europe, including David H. Miller, Chairman of the Law Committee of the State Department.

Every Nationality Covered.

"Every important nationality of Europe and Western Asia has had representatives here for conference with the Inquiry. Authorities native to the affected countries in Europe have lent their aid and have placed at the disposal of the Inquiry all sources of information in their native languages. These, together with numerous secret documents and much information hitherto unavailable to scholars, has resulted in a bibliographic collection altogether unique and valuable. It will become part of the records of the State Department.

"Passing by the countless details, the Inquiry, broadly, has covered the following fields:

1. POLITICAL HISTORY—
   (a) Historic rights, including suffrage laws.
   (b) Religious development and customs.
   (c) Rights of minority peoples in composite populations; subordinate nationalities.
2. DIPLOMATIC HISTORY—
   (a) Recent political history related to diplomacy, treaties, &c.
   (b) Public law, Constitutional reforms.
3. INTERNATIONAL LAW—
   (a) To lay the groundwork toward bringing the subject up to date.
   (b) Study of treaty texts since the beginning of the war.
   (c) Geographical interpretation of problems of territorial waters, frontiers, &c.
4. ECONOMICS—
   (a) International: raw materials, coaling stations, cable stations, port works, tariffs, and customs unions, free ports, open ports.
   (b) Regional: industrial development, self sufficiency, traffic routes in relation to boundaries and material resources, including food, minerals, water power, fuel, &c.
5. GEOGRAPHY—
   (a) Economic geography.
   (b) Political geography.
6. PHYSIOGRAPHY—
   (a) Strategic frontiers.
   (b) Topographic barriers.
7. CARTOGRAPHY—Maps to illustrate every kind of distribution that bears on peace problems, such as: (a) Peoples, (b) Minerals, (c) Historical limits, (d) Railways and trade routes, (e) Crops and livestock, (f) Cities and industrial centres, (g) Religions.
8. EDUCATION—
   (a) Status in colonial possessions.
   (b) In backward States.
   (c) Opportunities of oppressed minorities.
9. IRRIGATION—
   (a) Present development.
   (b) Possibilities in general reconstruction.

Series of Maps Prepared.

"The cartographic force of the American Geographical Society, greatly augmented by Government aid, began a map-making program hitherto without precedent in this country, all work being carefully drawn from the latest and best sources. Maps have been made to visualize not only all manner of territorial boundaries, but distribution of peoples, number and local densities of population, religions, economic activities, distribution of material resources, trade routes, both historic and potential strategic points.

"A series of base maps and block diagrams, the most nearly complete series existing, has been prepared by the American Geographical Society, bearing upon all the geographical problems both of the war and the peace which is to follow. This series has been adopted by the War Department and prescribed by its Committee on Education and Special Training for use in all colleges and other centres where units of the Students' Army Training Corps are located, and for use by Chairmen of the War Issues Course Groups. Many of these base maps and block diagrams have already been procured by colleges and universities.

"Upon these base maps the Peace Commissioners, or others, by use of colored lines, may immediately have a map showing new State lines, ethnic boundaries, a rectified frontier, or a distribution of any sort desired at the signing of the treaty of peace, a complete record of the new map of Europe.

"All information gathered by the inquiry has been so carefully classified, indexed, and subdivided that it will be instantly available.

Results Carefully Guarded.

"The library for the commissioners will also include hundreds of maps and books from the American Geographical Society, from Harvard, Princeton, Haverford College, the Library of Congress, and the New York Public Library. These, with the data gathered by the inquiry, have been constantly under guard.

"The American Geographical Society will prepare, under the supervision of its Director, Dr. Isaiah Bowman, a complete history of the work of the Inquiry. A history of it will also be prepared for the History Board of the War Plans Division of the General Staff of the War Department.

"President Wilson visited the headquarters of the Inquiry on October 12, on which occasion he registered his name on the wall in the office of the Director of the American Geographical Society. Immediately under it are the names of Secretary Lansing, who visited the Inquiry on two occasions, and of Colonel House.

"During the year there were a large number of other distinguished visitors, including Secretary Houston, Governor McCall, and Major Requin, for a time General Foch's Chief of Staff. The last-named, at the time of his visit, constructed a blackboard sketch of the first battle of the Marne, and this, now carefully preserved, has great historical interest."

away, but in my judgment I regard the President's mission abroad as of too great an importance for Congress to do anything that might embarrass him while he is over there. I do not think the American people would tolerate any meddling in that which so vitally concerns them.

"The President is engaged in a highly important mission. I am opposed to any attempt to throw rocks in his way. I do not think he should be hampered, but should be given the fullest opportunity to carry out his mission successfully."

While Mr. Mann was outspoken in his criticism of the attacks on the President, other Republican leaders took the view that the feeling against Mr. Wilson's absenting himself from the country at this time was on the increase rather than the decrease, and they insisted that Mr. Mann spoke only for himself and not after a consultation with the Republicans of the House generally.

On account of his standing as an authority in matters of international law and foreign relations and his former prominent connection with the Government as Secretary of State and Attorney General the resolution of Senator Knox attracted more than ordinary attention among his colleagues.

Text of Knox Resolution.

A meeting of the Foreign Relations Committee called for tomorrow will consider the measure. Its text follows:

Whereas, the United States of America entered the war with Germany and Austria-Hungary in order to vindicate the ancient rights of navigation as established under international law and in order to remove forever the German menace to our peace; and

Whereas, the splendid effort of the American people and the valor of our soldiers and sailors during a year and a half, added to the enormous sacrifices, the steadfast fortitude and the noble courage displayed by our Allies during more than four years have made possible the attainment of those aims, now best expressed as restitution, reparation and guarantees against the German menace; and

Whereas, the surrender of Germany and Austria-Hungary to the terms of the armistice has attained a great part, and has rendered enforcible the remainder of those aims; and

Whereas, conferences are about to take place with the purpose to complete, to perfect and to guarantee the attainment of the war aims aforesaid, and thus to pass to the state of formal peace; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the purposes of the United States of America in those conferences should be confined to aforesaid aims and matters germane thereto.

Second, That for the safeguarding of those aims the first essential is a definite understanding that, the same necessity arising in the future, there shall be the same complete accord and co-operation with our chief co-belligerents for the defense of civilization.

Third—That any project for any general league of nations or for any sweeping change in the ancient laws of the sea as hitherto recognized as international law and violated by the Teuton powers should be postponed for separate consideration not alone by the victorious belligerents but by all nations, if and when at some future time general conferences on those subjects might be deemed useful.

Further resolved, That immediately upon compliance with the terms of the armistice and the guaranteed attainment of the war aims as aforesaid the army and navy of the United States should be withdrawn from foreign territories and waters except in so far as their retention might be temporarily necessary to establish the status contemplated by the armistice; and

Further, That the extraordinary powers conferred upon the President for the prosecution of the war should be withdrawn and the country restored to a normal condition of peace with the greatest possible celerity consistent with the national interest.

Cites Act of 1790.

Senator Sherman spoke soon after the Senate met. He presented his resolution, which was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

"It is a palpable violation," he said, "of the act of 1790, approved by George Washington, to attempt to exercise the constitutional sovereign powers of the President within the domain of another Government, outside the territory of this country and with the Atlantic Ocean intervening between the President and the seat of Government. His office is an executive one. When its occupant is absent its quorum does not exist; unless a Vice President can assume the office or the executive powers and duties can be devolved upon him, the Presidential office becomes vacant. The Presidential succession act does not apply so long as the Vice President is eligible and competent.

"It is a matter of imperative necessity that Congress declare the President's absence from the soil of the United States and the seat of Government an inability to discharge the powers and duties of President and in effect a vacation of the office and devolution of the same, of its powers and duties upon the Vice President. An executive act is not officially valid unless it be performed in accordance with the Constitution and laws of the United States.

"To say that the Constitution does not prohibit in express terms the absence of the President in a foreign country, and therefore it is lawful, ignores this salutary rule of common sense.

"The intention of those who wrote and the American people who adopted the Constitution was to guard the President against the insidious influences and flattery incident to the servile adulation and absurd pomp of the Kings and council chambers of the Old World. Amid crowns and reminiscences of ancient thrones with profound deference yielded by diplomats grown gray in Europe's quarrels who see centuries beyond their generation the American atmosphere is lost and an alien influence envelops the President.

"A courtier's smile and the bending knee of a sycophant have entangled a nation in fatal alliances. A kiss of a sensuous woman has changed the course of empire. Mark Antony is not the only susceptible official whose public service has deviated from the line of duty, swayed by Egypt's daughter. The savory fragrance of incense offered by alien satellites may mount with intoxicating power to a head already strangely obsessed with the phantasy that he has become the state.

Calls It "Executive Sabotage."

"The President's absence when Congress is in session and domestic conditions are insecure is an act of legislative and executive sabotage against the Government."

Senator Sherman wished to know how the President could receive Ambassadors, make civil appointments, order troops, protect States against violence, pardon or reprieve offenders while absent in a foreign country.

"The President of the United States," he said, "is not its President in France; he is an alien there, a mere citizen of this Republic, shorn of all his sovereign powers.

"In the Spring of 1901 President McKinley emphasized his respect for this limitation. At El Paso, Tex., he wished officially to meet President Diaz near the boundary of the two countries. He did not even go to the half-way line or place his foot upon the international bridge across the Rio Grande River.

"Ten years before this President Harrison adventured as far as the middle line of the bridge. President Arthur, in 1883, was supposed unwittingly to have violated the tradition on a fishing excursion in the Thousand Islands. President Cleveland, on a hunting trip, is commonly believed to have been outside of the United States when he sailed past Cape Hatteras outside the three-mile limit.

"President Taft went to Panama in 1910. His destination was the Canal Zone, by treaty United States territory. Congress was not then in session and no suspension or abdication of essential sovereign powers resulted. No disturbance of necessary governmental operations followed."

Senator Williams, who replied, chided the Republicans for their failure to applaud the President yesterday.

"The first exploit that they made of themselves, what was it?" asked he. "They went over to the Houses the other day to listen to the President make an address with a sort of a gentleman's understanding that they were not to applaud him. They did not know what he was going to say, but there was a sort of a gentleman's understanding that they were not to applaud him.

Williams on Hypocrisy.

"He had hurt their feelings by saying that he thought the Democrats ought to be elected to office. The hypocrisy of it! Charging Woodrow Wilson with a great crime because he wanted Democrats elected to office. Even that objection was not well founded, because when he found men upon his own side who were not true to the war and true to the ideals of the war, his word went out against them just as significantly as it went out in favor of democracy generally."

Senator Williams accused some members of his own party of infidelity to the Chief Executive.

"Some of you think over there that you beat the President. You did not beat the President. The people beat the Democratic Party at the last election. Do you know why? Because your party, taking it upon the percentage basis, had been truer to the war than we had—and when I say we, I mean my party. We had men in the other wing of this Capitol and we had men here who were sticking the President with a fine Italian dagger every chance they got.

"I have come to the conclusion that the American people put you in office in these two houses because they thought maybe you could be more safely trusted to stand behind the President than a lot of our fellows could be. That may be an error, but that is my opinion, because I have found a good many Mississippi Democrats talking that way, even Mississippi Democrats who never voted any other ticket than the Democratic ticket, and would not do so to save their lives. But we have got rid of them, and the people ought to have known that we have gotten rid of them before we went into this.

"I imagine the difficulty the Senator from Illinois will have, together with all of the wiser men behind him who are going to spend the next two weeks attacking Woodrow Wilson, in persuading the old Indiana Democrat in the Vice President's chair that he should qualify as President of the United States while Woodrow Wilson is over having heart-to-heart talks with Clemenceau and Lloyd George. You might just as well try that on me if I had happened to be Vice President. You know that sort of camouflage does not go."

"The two English-speaking countries, the United States and Great Britain, can maintain a league of nations, even if France, Belgium, Italy, and other nations refuse to have a part in it," Senator Williams said.

Power of League of Nations.

"If the two English-speaking nations go into it we can by our sea power, by our control over raw materials, by our control over natural resources, force the other nations of the world to do the league's bidding. We can agree that any civilized nation that makes war upon another without first submitting the questions in controversy to an arbitration tribunal shall be outside of the pale of civilization, and that the freedom to operate upon the high seas shall be denied to her, that access to the raw materials and markets which the two nations in the league shall control shall be denied to her, and in that way we can keep peace in the world for 100 years if we only have the courage to do it. That is what Woodrow Wilson is going to Europe for."

Senator Williams warned the Republicans that they would be "digging their own political graves" by making personal attacks upon the President while he is abroad.

"We want to have all of the influence we can while over there to bring about a permanent and just peace as nearly as possible, but what are you doing here?" he continued. "Weakening your own case every day, throwing mud and accusing him virtually of heresy, of un-Americanism, weakening him in the councils that, if you can help it, America shall not predominate. What do you want to do it for?

"All at once, nicely caught with little complexities of constitutional-oiled arrangements, cosmetics upon the base chiefly, you try to make a scapegoat out of Wilson. Well, you can't make a scapegoat out of anybody who is not a goat to start with. I want to leave this thought: How is all this goin gto hurt him? How is it going to help you? How is it going to help your posterity? How is it going to help the American Republic? How is it going to help American influence in Europe? How is it going to accomplish any good end of any description for the purposes of civilization, or democracy, or humanity?"

unable to give the proposition the careful consideration it requires before it can be brought to Mr. Wilson's notice. However, the matter is far too important to brook delay, and the decision will doubtless be hastened as much as possible."

Protests Against Indemnities.

But Dr. Suedekum had something more on his mind. He called attention to a telegram from London stating that, in the opinion of The Daily Chronicle, Germany might be made to pay an indemnity in yearly instalments of 5,000,000,000 marks.

"What would the world say to the spectacle of a dozen able-bodied men looking on from a safe position, jeering and sneering at a drowning man whom every time he tried to scramble ashore they brutally kicked back into the deadly element? What would the world say if at last, by sheer luck and pluck, this abused creature managed to save his life if thereupon his tormentors kicked his prostrate body and made his exhausted limbs carry their own burdens? That is exactly what the Entente is doing with Germany when it compels us to pay fabulous indemnities although we are starving and are torn with internal convulsions.

"Inhuman Armistice Conditions."

"I notice from another newspaper dispatch that America and the Entente still distrust Germany to such degree that they feel they cannot afford to make any change in the inhuman armistice conditions for fear Germany should manage to crawl out somehow.

"Now, who has been cheated right and left but Germany? Who has been told for years by Entente statesmen that they dreamed of neither conquest, annexations, nor revenge? Who has been told, even as late as a month or two ago, that if only Germany changed her Government she might reckon on a peace of justice and conciliation?

"Germany has undergone a change of such completeness as is unparalleled in history, not because of those promises, but because her time had arrived. Nevertheless, those promises still stand. But now look at what treatment the most modern of all republics receives from the old democracies! Where is your peace of justice and conciliation? What has become of Wilson's fourteen points?"

BRITISH TROOPS ENTER RHINELAND

Cavalry Vanguards Pass Through the Silent Countryside Near Malmedy.

FARMS SEEM DESERTED

Some Village Pedestrians Ignore the Troopers, Others Salute Them with Gravity.

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MALMEDY, Germany, Dec. 3.—At 9 o'clock this morning the British troops crossed the Belgian frontier and entered Germany. I went with the leading patrol of cavalry over a little stone bridge across the Rothwasser Brook and through the town of Malmedy, a few miles within German territory. It was a cold morning, with a fog on the hilltops and all the fir trees and red bracken on the hillsides and down the steep ravines covered with white frost, like the scenery of German Christmas cards.

The cavalry and horse artillery with their transport, drawn up on the Belgian side of the frontier before the bugles sounded "Forward, march!" were standing by their horses, clapping their hands and beating their chests and stamping their feet to get a little physical heat. The men wore their steel helmets as though for an advance in the usual conditions of warfare, and the troopers of the leading patrol rode forward with drawn swords.

Through Groves of Christmas Trees.

The young cavalry officer commanding the first troops of Dragoon Guards seemed a little nervous at his responsibility of being the first to ride into Germany, and swore he didn't know a word of the blessed language and couldn't pronounce a single blessed name, so that it would be no fault of his if he took a wrong turning.

But the road was fairly simple to Malmedy, except for a hairpin turn some way outside the town, and the patrol went forward at a trot through pine woods and fir forests along the edge of ravines where the German Santa Claus seems to grow all his Christmas trees, and there was the beat of horses' hoofs on frozen roads, and cavalry swords gleamed ahead of us.

We followed the leading troop. There were no longer double sentries on the bridge across Rothwasser Brook, and the gate of Germany was wide open, and we went into the silent countryside which yesterday we had seen from the Belgian end of the bridge.

It was very silent, and the first farmhouse we passed and the cottages under the shelter of the woods seemed quite abandoned. There were no flags hung out from them like those millions of flags which have fluttered along all the miles of our way through Belgium.

Now and again, looking back at a farmhouse, window, I saw a face there, but it was withdrawn quickly as I turned. A dog came out and barked at us as we passed, and a man with a sense of humor said that it was the first sign of hostility.

Nearer to Malbedy little groups of people appeared as though taking a Sunday morning walk, and not expecting the entry of the British troops. Some of them just glanced our way, and then looked ahead, as though they had no interest in us. Others lifted their hats gravely and passed on.

START MOVE TO INDICT EX-KAISER IN CHICAGO

Law Officers to Push Charge Made by Mrs. Hayden, Daughter of Lusitania Victim.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Mrs. Catherine Callan Hayden of 3,208 Taylor Street, this city, daughter of Patrick Callan, who lost his life when the Lusitania was torpedoed, has applied to the United States District Attorney for a warrant against William Hohenzollern, former Emperor of Germany, charging him with murder.

The application was turned over to Assistant District Attorney Francis Borelli. Mrs. Hayden will make affidavits charging the Kaiser with having ordered through Admiral von Tirpitz the torpedoing of the Lusitania.

Mr. Borelli, at the direction of United States District Attorney Cline, will go before the Federal Grand Jury early this month asking that true bills be voted against William Hohenzollern on charges of conspiracy and murder. If the indictments should be voted, warrants for the former Kaiser's arrest would be issued.

"If the laws are far-reaching enough to bring the ex-Kaiser here for trial, we intend to do it," said Mr. Borelli. "He could be indicted on two charges, conspiracy to commit murder, and murder."

The United States is the best place for such a trial, Mr. Borelli thinks.

"We were a neutral nation when the Lusitania was sunk," he went on. "The laws of extradition provide that prosecution can be held on an indictment for murder from any civilized nation in the world."

Mrs. Hayden's father was in the contracting business in Chicago. He started for his old home in Ireland in response to a request from his aged father. The senior Callan died of shock when he heard of his son's fate.

The fact that Patrick Callan's naturalization papers went down with the Lusitania complicates the situation, because the United States can base its case only on the citizenship of the victim.

"The only thing I object to," said Mrs. Hayden, "is that hanging is the severest penalty which can be inflicted."

GEN. HAIG FORBIDS ALL FRATERNIZING

Tells His Troops to Avoid All But Essential Relations with the Germans.

URGES PROPER COURTESY

Also the Respect Due to the Persons and Property of a Beaten Enemy.

LONDON, Dec. 3, (British Wireless Service.)—The following general order has been issued to the troops of the British Army of occupation:

"Intercourse with the inhabitants of Germany will be confined to what is essential and will be marked by courtesy and restraint. It is not seemly that anything approaching familiarity should be allowed to enter into any relations between British soldiers and men or women of the German nation. But neither is it in accordance with our traditions to do otherwise than to respect the persons and property of a beaten enemy.

"Reparation and compensation from the German people are matters for the appointed authorities to take care of. The Field Marshal Commander in Chief knows that he can rely upon all ranks to display that careful attention to their deportment, their arms, their accoutrements, and their ideas which always has characterized the British Expeditionary Forces in France, and he is confident that they will show themselves, as they are, the tried and proved soldiers of the victorious army of the British Empire."

MORE WOUNDED HOME SOON

Most of Americans in English Hospitals Expected by Christmas.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—All the American wounded in England, with the exception of about 500 of the most serious cases, will be back in the United States by Christmas, according to present plans. Efforts are now being made to move the Americans quickly, and the wounded will be sent homeward as rapidly as shipping is available.

Two of the large American hospitals in London will be closed within the next few days.

Many nurses are being sent with the wounded, but all who are in England and are not needed will probably be sent home soon, as there is said to be a sufficient number in France.

Four American rest camps are in the last stages of abandonment. One camp at Winchester, which is the largest, will be maintained until it is decided definitely if any men are to be transferred from France to England in accordance with demobilization plans.

Pershing Defines New Line.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—General Pershing's communiqué for Monday says: "The Third American Army, continuing its advance into Germany, today reached the general line Krewinkel-Metterich-Rievenich - Morscheid - Hirschfelderhof. The important city of Treves has been occupied by our troops."

WILSON MAY VISIT POPE.

Italian Newspaper Speculate on His Probable Movements.

ROME, Dec. 2.—President Wilson, during his stay at this capital, will pay a visit to Pope Benedict, it is announced by the newspapers here. He will go to the Vatican, it is stated, from the American Embassy instead of from the Quirinal, where the President and Mrs. Wilson will be the guests of the King and Queen while in Rome.

"We demand a Wilsonian peace, excluding any imperialism," declared Deputy Giuseppe Canepa, former Food Controller, at a meeting today of the Socialist party favorable to the war to discuss its attitude toward the conclusion of peace and problems after the war. "Out of this peace must arise a world without soldiers and without fleets. Any germ of new wars must be destroyed absolutely.

"During the war we Socialists were represented in the Government by Bissolati, (leader of the Reform Socialists,) and must demand that Bissolati also represent democracy at the Peace Conference."

PARIS MESSAGE TO WILSON.

The Matin Sends French Tribute on the Eve of His Sailing.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—The Matin has sent the following message to President Wilson:

"President Wilson: At the moment when the Chief Citizen of the United States embarks for France, Le Matin prays you to accept its best wishes for a good voyage. France will never forget what your generous country has done to save for the world the civilization so slowly acquired by the work, suffering, and thought of centuries. The world will never be able sufficiently to thank the American people for its great aid in destroying German treachery and crime."

NORTHERN CABINETS BUSY.

Scandinavian Conferences Take Action for League of Nations.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 2.—The Official Journal will publish the following statement tomorrow:

"According to decisions at meetings of the Scandinavian Cabinet Ministers, the Governments of the three northern countries have appointed committees to prepare material for the purpose of looking after the common interests of neutral States at the Peace Conference and after the conclusion of peace. These committees have held a series of meetings in Copenhagen and agreed on a detailed proposal with a view to the possible organization of a League of Nations. This proposal embraces especially the general obligation to subject disputes between States to arbitration, the establishment of an International Council, a permanent International Court of Justice, international institutions of investigation and arbitration, and the permanent organization of peace conferences or conferences on international law at The Hague.

"The question of the position of the northern States to suggest international restriction of armaments and international enforcement of such organization has been temporarily discussed by committees, and will be further considered during the continued co-operation between the three countries. In respect to this, a Danish committee has been appointed, headed by the Minister of Defense, Dr. P. Munch, and a Swedish committee headed by Hjalmar Branting, while no new member has yet been appointed for Norway.

BIG FLEET TO MEET WILSON.

Ten Battleships and 28 Destroyers Will Be in Escort.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—The fleet which will meet President Wilson at sea on his way to Europe is being assembled at the American naval bases at Brest, France, and Portland, England. The dreadnoughts in the fleet comprise the largest ships on this side of the water, including the New York, the Oklahoma and the Nevada, under Admiral Rodgers. The destroyer contingent will number twenty-four vessels.

The fleet will proceed 1,500 miles out to sea, where the meeting with the steamship bearing the President, with its escort, will take place. Admiral Mayo, on board the escorting battleship Pennsylvania, will then take command of the combined fleet of ten battleships and twenty-eight destroyers, the latter including the four proceeding with the Pennsylvania. A stop will be made at the Azores, principally to insure a supply of oil for the destroyers.

It is probable that French and British warships will meet the incoming American fleet at a later stage, but no notification to this effect has thus far reached the American authorities. It is said, however, that reports that prominent personages are going on board the President's ship before its arrival are unwarranted, as any such formalities will await his landing.

Colonel E. M. House will go to Brest to meet the President on his arrival.

BREST, Dec. 3.—President Wilson will land at Brest on the afternoon of Dec. 12 and will receive military honors. Foreign Minister Pichon, Minister of Marine Leygues, and Captain Andre Tardieu, head of the General Commission for Franco-American War Questions, will greet Mr. Wilson in the name of the French Government. The Presidential train will arrive in Paris on the morning of Dec. 13.

G.B.SHAW, LABOR CANDIDATE

Coalition Opponent Leaves Field to Christabel Pankhurst.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Among the incidents of the election campaign is the appearance of George Bernard Shaw, the writer, as Labor candidate for East Middlesbrough. Mr. Shaw previously had consistently resisted all efforts to bring him into Parliamentary politics.

At Smethwick today Major Thompson the coalition candidate, retired in favor of Christabel Pankhurst, the Woman Suffrage candidate. Major Thompson explained that he withdrew at the request of Premier Lloyd George and Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who expressed the fear that the seat might be lost.

LONDON WOMEN PROTEST.

Discharged War Workers Besiege Downing St. and Munitions Ministry

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Women munition workers, who have been receiving high pay and who have been discharged, marched to Downing Street today and demanded to see Premier Lloyd George.

The Premier sent word that he was too busy to see them. The marchers, who numbered between 500 and 600, then proceeded to the Ministry of Munitions. Officials of the ministry met a deputation of the women and arranged for a further conference at which the employers also would be present.

The women in many instances wore expensive clothes, and they were all from one firm, whose Government contract will soon expire. They demanded the immediate withdrawal of their discharges, and their attitude, it was said at the Ministry of Munitions, was uncompromising.

The women continued to parade through the streets for hours after the conference.

OFFICERS STIR UP GERMAN REACTION

dressing a mass meeting last night, referred to the anti-Jewish campaign which is being waged, by calling attention to the distribution of some exciting pamphlets among his audience, as evidence. He ascribed the campaign to the reactionary activity, which, he trusted, would fail to make any impression on the sound sense of the German people.

"I myself," he continued, "have never made any secret of my Jewish origin, but I cannot help watching with some apprehension the ever-increasing number of Jews in all the public offices, men as well as women. This number is far out of proportion to the actual percentage of Jews among the German people, and must lead to discontent, if not restricted to reasonable limits."

Delegates of Bavarian garrisons and troops from the front met in Munich yesterday to constitute a State Soldiers' Council, which will ally itself with the State Workers and Peasants' Councils to form a Provisional National Council. The State Soldiers' Council must not be identified with the Munich Soldiers' Council, which, in accordance with Eisner's ideas, objects to an early assembling of the National Convention. On the contrary, it was no secret that the State Soldiers' Council was decidedly in favor of an early convention.

Eisner Tries to Sway Meeting.

In order to sway its opinion, Premier Eisner addressed the meeting and sought to convince it that the National Convention must be deferred. He made a reference to the demands voiced by various newspapers, but, being a journalist himself, he knew only too well what was behind this madding cry:

"It is nothing but the guilty consciences of the persons who lied for four years and a half. I know very well what I must expect if I attack this pestilential press. I cannot expect mercy, because those scoundrels will fight.

"Don't believe one word you see in the newspapers. Today you may read my position is shaken. But there is not a particle of truth in it."

He asserted that he had not seen the newspapers in three weeks. He had no time. The only danger threatening, he said, was a restoration of conventional parliamentarism, which would eliminate any influence of the Soldiers', Peasants', and Workers' Councils. As long as he was in power he would seek to prevent that with all his might. He ended by saying:

"Just have patience a few weeks more; then we shall have conquered them. We shall not only have secured the fruits of the revolution. We shall also have peace.

Bitter in Attacking Solf.

Nov. 30.—In addition to what has been previously sent, Kurt Eisner, the Bavarian Premier, in discussing his objections to the personnel and character of the Berlin Government, said:

"We cannot work together with those men. Solf does as he likes, without ever consulting Kautsky. I am under the impression that in Berlin, after the fearful tribulations of the war, the exhaustion is so great that it will lack all energy. That is why we intended to let some fresh mountain air in on them.

"The seriousness of the situation must not be underestimated, for the Foreign Office belongs to the old system. What is worse, they control public opinion; the foreign as well as the German press is at their disposal.

"The press is full of telegrams dwelling on the fact that the Entente will occupy certain parts of Germany. I can state authentically that all that is a gross falsehood and pure invention. Such methods will yet cost us dearly. Why? Because compromised personalities like Erzberger and Solf will never gain us tolerable armistice or peace conditions. They can not and will not, because they fear being found out. They fear what will come when they no longer control the whole apparatus of the press.

"The game that is now being played in and outside of Germany is not less nefarious than that of July, 1914. Only today Grand Headquarters at Cassel telephoned, informing me that every proclamation bearing Hindenburg's name is, if not dictated, at least inspired, by the Foreign Office. I left word for Hindenburg that he was a victim of the Berlin policy.

Denies Allies Plan New War.

"From Berne I hear from a personage formerly in the service of our legation that there is not a word of truth in the rumor that the Entente is contemplating a new war, which the Erzberger press is spreading all over the country. Can you believe that the Entente soldiers would like to go to war again, any more than our soldiers? Their peoples, too, must have peace. I guarantee that we shall have peace the very minute we in Germany have a trustworthy Government in working order, backed by the masses.

"Only one more example of the nefarious game which the Berlin Foreign Office is playing. A few days ago some newspapers contended that the statement of People's Commissioner Haase concerning the dearth of foodstuffs was exaggerated. They did not regard the situation quite so pessimistically. In consequence, the Entente refuses to believe in the starvation of our people, and begins to regard our revolution as a mere masquerade.

"This must not continue. The masses in Berlin should bestir themselves and create a trustworthy Government. Until then Munich will take her place at the head of Germany. We can no longer submit to the criminal activity of a small band of men who tremble for their existence.

"That is the meaning of my agitation. I do not wish to separate Bavaria from Berlin, but if the masses in Berlin do not create a new republic, we shall never get peace.

"From now on I shall do the necessary thing right here in Munich. There is no other way."

He continued:

"They fear Bolshevism over in the Entente countries as much as we do. The Entente's fear is caused by the fact that we created Workers', Soldiers' and Peasants' Councils after the Russian fashion. But we know we have no use for the Russians' methods or aims. With the exception of a few fanatics, none now believes we can reach our aims on the Russian lines.

"We know it is impossible to socialize production at the moment when it is completely disorganized. Even the Executive Committee of Soldiers' Councils in Berlin unanimously supports this view. We do not want a Germany of the sword, but by hard work and inventive activity we hope speedily to reconstruct Germany, and we beg the Entente to aid us.

"But our first step must be right in Berlin, as represented in the Foreign Office, without fear of the consequences. Our next task is to obtain peace; no separate peace, but if no other way is possible, we in Bavaria must seek to obtain peace for the whole of Germany. If we cannot get along with Berlin, we must proceed on our own responsibility."

Appeals to the Entente.

Eisner made this appeal to the Entente:

"We do not come to you in sackcloth and ashes, doing penance. We come as men, conscious of having cleared away the old system. We come with pure hearts. That is why we remind you that we are 70,000,000 human beings who want to live, and that it is your duty to forget and to help us reconstruct the new world."

Soviets Now Demand Convention.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 2, (via The Hague.)—All the newspapers, with the exception of Die Rote Fahne, approve the Government's decision that the elections for the national convention shall take place Feb. 16. Most of them assume that the convention will assemble immediately afterward.

It is generally supposed that the tendency now prevailing in the Soldiers' and Workmen's Councils is a sufficient guarantee that their general meeting in Berlin Dec. 16 will approve the Government's decision. The Berlin local Workmen's Council, which is in session now, will make known its attitude toward the national convention within a few days. In all probability it will resign itself, though reluctantly, the Government's decision.

The Berlin local Soldiers' Council, which seems to be undergoing a purging process, will almost certainly declare for the Government within a day or so, and then the Executive Committee of the combined Berlin Soldiers' and Workmen's Council must announce where it stands.

The leading spirit in this body is Richard Müller, who not long ago declared that the way to a national convention would only lead across his dead body. Since that time, however, Müller has had considerable experience in the art of governing, and if the Berlin committee's decision were adverse at present, due to one man, it would face almost a certainty that the great convention of Soldiers' and Workmen's Councils from all over Germany on Dec. 16 would express itself decidedly for the Government.

There is sufficient evidence of this daily at the Government offices from Soldiers' and Workmen's Councils throughout the country demanding an immediate national convention. Besides, by Dec. 16 the influence of the returning soldiers will already have made itself felt, and no doubt in favor of a convention.

The elections were planned on the basis of the status of the old German Empire, meaning that they were to include Alsace-Lorraine, but not yet (German) Austria. At the Chancellor's palace in Wilhelmstrasse it was suggested today that amendments covering both cases would soon be added. THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent is informed that Austria will make a formal motion to be allowed to participate in the elections.

GERMANS UNDECIDED ON EX-KAISER'S FATE

Haase Thinks He May Be Sufficiently Punished by "International Odium."

MUST ABANDON FORTUNES

Hohenzollern Princes Have Accepted This Condition That They May Leave the Country.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—"The German Government is still undecided as to how to deal with the former Emperor and the Hohenzollerns," said Hugo Haase, People's Commissioner for Foreign Affairs at Berlin, to a correspondent of The Express on Sunday. "I think," he continued, "they may be sufficiently punished by the international odium they have incurred."

Discussing the war, Haase said:

"The guilt of starting the struggle lies with both German and Austrian militarism. The Government is now investigating the pre-war methods of the Foreign Office, particularly regarding the handling of secret funds. The result will be published as soon as the investigation is completed.

The German Government has consented to permit a number of the Hohenzollern Princes to leave Germany, on condition that they leave their fortunes behind them, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Amsterdam says. They have accepted the conditions, it is stated, and most of them expect to proceed to Switzerland, Denmark, or Holland.

Prince August William, the former Emperor's fourth son, and his wife are going to Argentina as soon as possible, the message adds.

AMERONGEN, Holland, Dec. 3.—The former German Empress has apparently almost recovered from her recent indisposition, and is occasionally seen with her husband walking in the grounds of the castle here.

The ex-Empress, according to good authority, contributed largely to the decision of her husband to sign his act of abdication. Her confidential informants gave an unrosy account of the internal situation in Germany relative to the throne.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—French citizens are lodging complaints with Attorney General Lescouve regarding crimes committed by the German armies under the former Emperor. Several persons who lost relatives in the bombardment of Paris by the German long-range guns have filed complaints.

In the case of Mme. Prieur, whose husband was killed on the torpedoed mail steamer Sussex, the Attorney General declares that the steamer was an extension of French soil, and, consequently, the French authorities are competent to make an investigation.

A decision with regard to the complaints against the former Emperor will be reached within a few days. If it is decided that French tribunals are competent to open proceedings a Judge will be appointed. One of the first acts of the Judge will be to ask for the extradition of William Hohenzollern.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 30.—Messages from Germany show that there is an increasing demand for something more drastic than the neutral commission suggested by the German Government to inquire into the question of responsibility for the world war. Numerous Soldiers' and Workers' Councils are pressing on the Government the need for setting up a State Court of Justice to try all those concerned in the conduct of affairs prior to the opening of the struggle.

The demand appears to increase in strength, too, that the German Government should require of the Dutch Government that the ex-Kaiser be sent to Germany. I learn from The Hague that a request of this nature is expected in Government circles. It is thought that a demand will also be made for the return of the ex-Crown Prince.

The greater part of the ex-Kaiser's personal suite has gone back to Germany, and the ex-Crown Prince's Adjutant, Major von Müller, has also left Holland for Berlin.

BERLIN SOVIET DEMANDS THE OUSTING OF SOLF

LONDON, Dec. 3.—A Copenhagen dispatch says that it is announced officially in Berlin that the Executive Committee of the Soldiers' and Workmen's Council for Greater Berlin has reached an understanding with the Bavarian Executive Committee to demand that the resignation of Dr. Solf, the Foreign Secretary, be fulfilled immediately.

The committees will demand that Dr. Solf be replaced by a consistent opponent of the old system and the war policy. They will ask also that Mathias Erzberger, who was a member of the German armistice delegation, be not permitted to participate in the peace negotiations.

Kurt Eisner, the Bavarian Premier, is losing prestige, according to Munich advices received here by the way of Amsterdam, Copenhagen, and Berne. A Copenhagen dispatch says that Eisner was hissed by his own partisans at a Munich celebration in honor of returning soldiers. Later a supporter of Eisner was not allowed to make a speech, and was obliged to flee from an angry crowd which removed the red flags along the streets and stormed the Ministry of the Interior, shouting: "Down with Eisner!" Guards fired over the heads of the crowd, which dispersed.

A Berne dispatch to The Mail says it is believed that Bavaria is gradually reaching a conclusion to retain her unity with the rest of Germany rather than to seek a separate peace. This message also reports evidences of growing hostility toward Eisner, adding that there are signs in Munich that a crisis is approaching and that action favoring some form of monarchy may be taken within three weeks.

The diplomatic corps in Berlin has asked the German Government for protection against the anarchistic propaganda of the Spartacus group, which is agitating for the general arming of the proletariat, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Amsterdam.

The German Foreign Office destroyed by fire all damaging documents in the archives of the German General Government at Brussels and destroyed all documents in Berlin which might be useful in placing responsibility for the war on the German Government. Hert Melkenbuhr, a former Socialist member of the Reichstag, declared in a speech in Berlin, according to advices received in Paris. The revelations of Melkenbuhr, the Paris newspapers say, throw a singular light on the proposal of Dr. Solf to have a neutral commission inquire into the origin of the war.

The Berlin wireless station has sent out a message categorically denying that control of the wireless stations in Germany has passed into the hands of any political group.

The Dutch Government has decided to stop all exports to Germany in reprisal for the stoppage of the export of German coal to Holland, according to a dispatch from Amsterdam.

HEAD OF TREASURY TO BE NAMED TODAY

to succeed Mr. McAdoo as Director General of Railroads, though were there some difficulty in finding the proper man it would not be so necessary, it was stated, for the Director General to be named before the President left the country, as it is for the Secretary of the Treasury, since this office the President can fill by proclamation. This, however, is not considered at all likely.

One of two men, it is predicted tonight, will be named for Director General, Judge Robert S. Lovett, Director of Capital Expenditures of the Railroad Administration and formerly Chairman of the Union Pacific, and Walker D. Hines, Assistant Director General. The chances are considered to be in favor of Judge Lovett, but there is no certainty that some new name will not come out at the last moment.

may have. One sees that a suit of clothes costs 600 marks, that the rich have and the poor have not. One pictures the unfilled market basket of the other side of the city when one eats at the Porta Nigra and sees well-to-do Germans and boche officers in uniform eating five courses for luncheon. While this has kept on, the district west of the Rhine has been plastered with notices telling that the Americans will send many shiploads of food if the people will only wait—behave and wait! And, seeing what one sees here, one hopes that America will see to the distribution of that food.

One almost hopes that, somehow or other, the menus at the Hotel Porta Nigra will be shortened before the first food ship sails with the fruits of American sacrifice to feed a country the rich of which do not share with their poorer brothers. Should we not take care that in feeding the needy among our enemies we insure a supply for the unlovely upper classes as I have seen them here?

OUR MEN ADVANCE 12 MILES.

Germans Along Route Maintain Attitude of Indifference.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION, Dec. 3, (Associated Press.)—Further evidence of the determination of the Germans not to be jarred out of their assumed rôle of indifference was shown in every village into which the Americans marched today. The long lines of khaki-clad troops resumed their movement toward the Rhine at daybreak, passing through dozens of villages, until another twelve miles had been covered.

Farmers in the fields and residents in the villages and towns glanced at the troops and went on with their work. Here and there Germans stared for a time curiously, but rarely was there a display of emotion or even of keen interest. With the exception of trifling acts by children, there have been no signs of hostility reported. In a few instances children shouted derogatory remarks and threw small stones, but there was nothing more serious than that.

The German troops are well back in their retirement, and apparently there is no desire whatever to hamper the working out of the terms of the armistice.

German business men, especially in Treves, have already begun to display more interest in the Americans, who, as is customary with them, are beginning to spend their money. The prices of both foodstuffs and other articles are enormously high, but the soldiers desire souvenirs, and they were quite ready to patronize shops which are far superior to those in any other town through which they have passed.

It is understood that the American Military Government proposes to deal sternly with any offenders against the regulations the army may establish, but the Germans appear to accept without question whatever orders are imposed. It is probable that some of the civil guards left by the retreating army will be retained, if they give satisfaction in their duties.

A proclamation issued by General Pershing has evoked a few expressions of appreciation from the Germans, and there is a notable tendency on the part of the people of Treves, Saarburg, and other of the larger communities to act on his suggestion to resume their normal activities.

The towns are filled with returning German soldiers, discharged from service, who since the Americans have arrived have been negotiating for civilian clothing to replace the uniforms which they are still wearing.

CROWN PRINCE HOLDS TO RIGHTS

stay at a watering place when mobilization was ordered.

"My father, also, I am sure, did not desire war. If Germany had sought the best opportunity for making war she would have chosen the period either of the Boer war or the Russo-Japanese war.

"From the beginning I was certain that England would enter the conflict. This view was not shared by Prince Henry and the other members of my family.

"People have credited me with warlike intentions. But I was only a soldier with a desire to see the army kept thoroughly efficient, and I worked hard to bring this about.

"People blame me with the failure at Verdun. But I refused twice to attack there with the troops at my disposal. On the third occasion my attack was successful for the first three days, but I was not properly supported.

Verdun Attack "a Mistake."

"I thought that the Verdun attack was a mistake. We should have attacked to the eastward of Verdun, where there would have been great probability of success."

The ex-Crown Prince was rather bitter regarding the work of the General Staff, which he asserted was responsible for numerous mistakes, including the attack in March, 1918, which he was ordered to make, contrary to his own view, and he was compelled to obey. He said that Ludendorff was the mainspring of Germany's warlike activities, while von Hindenburg was a mere figurehead.

Ludendorff and his staff, the Prince said, continually underestimated the enemy's forces and never believed that America's contribution of soldiers was as great as it actually proved to be.

Frederick William declared himself to be an admirer of President Wilson, who, he felt assured, would bring about a peace of justice for the German people. He concluded:

"Any humiliation of a nation containing seventy millions of people would only leave a feeling of revenge. Such a nation cannot be crushed."

"The armistice terms are very severe and almost impossible of execution, as the Entente Powers are taking away a large portion of the means of transport."

Asked whether Germany, if victorious, would not have imposed even more severe terms, he expressed the belief that such would not have been the case.

When the Brest-Litovsk treaty was mentioned, the Prince said that its terms were hard because in Russia the Germans were confronted by the Bolsheviki.

Says He Opposed Barbarities.

With regard to air raids on unfortified cities, the fierce submarine warfare, the bombardment of Paris, and the deportation of women from the occupied districts to work in Germany, Frederick William said he had always entirely disagreed with these policies.

"The air raids on London and other towns and the big gun used against Paris were useless militarily, and, in fact, silly," he said. "Orders to submarine commanders were read differently by various officers, who went much too far. Regarding air raids, I suggested two years ago an international agreement confining air activities to the actual war zone, but my opinion was entirely disregarded. I was again told that my job was to command my armies."

In connection with Germany's actions in Belgium at the beginning of the war, the Prince said that the German General Staff had informed him that Field Marshal Haig was in Belgium in July, 1914, making a complete military survey for future operations. When it was suggested that the German Staff had done the same thing, Frederick said he knew nothing about it.

German diplomats, he declared, had made "awful" mistakes, being unable to see the viewpoint of the countries where they were stationed and misreading opinion in other countries.

"Made to Send" Boer Telegram.

Referring to the notorious Kaiser telegram while the Boer war was in progress, he said:

"My father was made to send this telegram by his political advisers."

The Prince is living a very simple life now. He strolls about the island, chats with peasants, and is learning the Dutch language from a small boy. He says he is interned, although in reality not interned, as all the other German officers have been permitted to leave Holland. The Prince does not expect his wife to come to Holland. She will remain in Berlin to superintend the education of their children.

Frederick William discussed various subjects quite frankly with the correspondent for two hours, but requested that some of the matters under discussion should not be published.

BETHMANN ISSUES DENIAL.

Protests Against Kaiser's Version of 1914 Yachting Trip.

BASLE, Dec. 3, (British Wireless Service.)—The North German Gazette of Berlin, the former semi-official organ, publishes an interview with Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, once Imperial Chancellor, protesting energetically against the former Emperor's statement as related by the German journalist, Dr. Georg Wegener, according to which immediately prior to the war the Emperor was sent on a cruise in Norwegian waters in order not to be connected with the events which precipitated the world conflict.

Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg in his protest absolutely denies that this was the object of Emperor William's voyage.

MAYO SEES NEED FOR A BIG NAVY

America's Salvation and Peace of World Depend on This, Says Admiral.

MADE INSPECTION ABROAD

Quotes Beatty: "Would Not Exchange 36 American Destroyers for 42 British Craft."

"The salvation of America and, indeed, the peace of the whole world, lies in our having two things—a big, efficient navy, and universal military training," declared Vice Admiral Henry T. Mayo yesterday. Admiral Mayo, just back from a three months' inspection trip covering all American naval operations abroad, was at the Hotel McAlpin, where he discussed his conclusions drawn from the war while awaiting the hour to board the dreadnought Pennsylvania and assume command of the convoy today for President Wilson's trip abroad.

His declaration was in response to a question as to Secretary of the Navy Daniels's recent plea to Congress that the "big navy" program should be carried out despite the ending of the war.

"I am heartily in favor of the Secretary's program," said Admiral Mayo, "and I still am firmly convinced that, had America had universal military training long ago, we never should have had to go to war. One thing I am glad of is that a great many American Congressmen have crossed the Atlantic since we entered the struggle. These men have seen and learned much and I anticipate that they will be more sympathetic, as a result, with the aims and ambitions and needs of the navy. I am sure many of them cannot have failed to learn that it is better to spend millions for fighting ships, than billions of money, and countless lives as well, that eventually must be sacrificed because of lack of preparation."

Proud of the Atlantic Fleet.

He said he came back full of pride and enthusiasm for what the American Navy has done abroad, and he had nothing but praise for "the splendid youth of America." He explained that the American vessels operating abroad were in reality a part of the Atlantic fleet, of which he is in command.

"I can say that I found everything in splendid shape, with just one qualification," he said. "That was in the matter of aircraft. There was some delay in getting all the flying craft we needed, and naturally it was a long job to build up, often from the very beginning, the tremendous ground facilities that we required. However, all that was brought to a satisfactory stage just about the time the war ended, and had it gone on there would have been nothing to complain of as to the navy's part in the air.

"The way our young men, thousands of them, altogether unaccustomed to such work, turned in and dug the foundations for buildings, erected the frame work, and even put up the steel, deserves the highest praise. Not only that, but the way our boys turned to on all their jobs, and made good, has made me intensely proud of them. They deserve well of the country. One respect in which their behavior aroused my particular admiration was in their conduct toward the foreigners with whom they were thrown in intimate contact for the first time in their lives. They made friends, and when they come back they are going to leave a mighty good impression behind them. Their experience abroad has had the finest effect on them as a whole, and I am confident they are going to come back broadened into better citizenship.

"Of course, we can't keep all these young fellows in the navy, but I hope a lot of the best of them are going to stay. The opportunities are very good, and while it still is true that the best way to get into the navy is to get a regular appointment to Annapolis nevertheless it has become comparatively easy for enlisted men to take the Secretary's examinations and go there, or to rise to the grade of warrant officer and then get sent to the Academy. I am sure a lot of them have acquired the habit and are so imbued with the attraction of the sea that they will stay with us."

"I think it is a fair matter for self-congratulation," he said, "that we compared well with the others over there. We went over realizing that they had been at it for more than three years, and expecting to find that wherever our procedure differed from theirs, we were wrong. But I am able to say now that in all technical matters such as range-finding, fire control, and direction, range recording and the like, we were up to the best there is. Nor need we fear any comparisons at marksmanship. Of course, the only open shooting we had was at submarines, since there was no fleet action in which we took part, but our target practice showed us up mighty well. At the start of the war we were in better shape than we had been for many years, and though extraordinarily rapid expansion lowered our efficiency for a while, we soon came back to first-class shape."

"Do the British concede all this?" he was asked.

"They say they do, and I am convinced they are quite sincere about it," was the reply. "Admiral Sir David Beatty expressed his personal gratification to me that we were able to send a fleet of dreadnoughts over there, and that they were able to fall right into the work, just as though they had been doing it always. The British Admiralty has made similar expressions of appreciation to me.

Beatty Praised Our Seamen.

"On one occasion when I was discussing the comparative merits of American and British ships and men with Admiral Beatty, he said to me:

"'I would not exchange the thirty-six American destroyers that I have under my command for forty-two British destroyers. Your men are less specialized and more all-round seamen. Your destroyer commanders know their ships. When one of them reports to me at the end of his five days' tour of sea duty he can tell me all about his engines and his boilers and everything else. Now the British destroyer commander, if he wanted to talk about some trouble with his machinery, probably would bring his chief engineer along with him to explain the technical side of his problem.'"

Turning to a discussion of anti-submarine warfare, Admiral Mayo said that every one in authority was most conservative in estimating achievements in terms of submarines destroyed. Neither the British nor the Americans, he said, actually recorded a U-boat as being certainly destroyed unless they had practically incontrovertible evidence.

"They are not satisfied with observing bits of wreckage or a trace of oil on the water or anything like that," said he. "Of course, if they sink a submarine and pick up survivors, they are sure of what has happened, and that particular U-boat at once goes in the record.

"I have no official figures as to how many U-boats the American Navy accounted for. I have heard or seen recently that there were fifty U-boats which never returned to their bases. Perhaps they were caught in the Dover barrage or sunk by the North Sea fleet. Who knows? Perhaps they still will be digging them up from the bottom of the English Channel for the next two or three years."

"Did America contribute any one outstanding factor to the success of the anti-submarine warfare, and were early predictions that American inventive genius would accomplish some such result justified by actual experience?" was the next question.

"No," Admiral Mayo answered, "I cannot say that we brought any conspicuously new thing to this type of naval warfare. You see, there was a free interchange of ideas among all the associated belligerents, and everybody worked to develop any device suggested by any one that seemed to have merit.

"That was true of such devices as the elaborate undersea listening apparatus, but there was no typically and strictly American invention which in any sense revolutionized submarine warfare. Depth bombs from destroyers, the convoy system, patrols of seaplanes and dirigibles, and a combination of every other proved weapon were what did the work."

Admiral Mayo said that naval airmen flying land planes had done excellent observation and bombing work in Belgium.

WHAT ARE THE REAL FACTS ABOUT GILLETTE BLADES

MOST MEN are disposed to be fair and reasonable about a situation these days if they are in possession of all the facts.

You may have found of late in your neighborhood a temporary scarcity of Gillette Blades.

The big true story back of this condition can now be told for the first time.

We want you to know the facts. What we have done—what we are doing—why we say the condition is a temporary one. And we want you to see with us the bright outlook immediately ahead.

Refused to Recognize the Impossible —and Did It

TAKE NOTE of the task put up to the Gillette the last ten months, and how it has accomplished the well-nigh impossible. Consider the spirit of service, of devotion to duty, the enthusiasm and co-operation of the great army of Gillette employees day-force and night-force, day in and day out.

Consider the importance of the Gillette as a part of the Mandatory Military Equipment of the United States Army and Navy—its place in the daily lives of the men; its relation to the health, well-being and soldierly appearance of our Troops on the Seas and Overseas.

Any Gillette user in touch with the situation, who read the cables, who felt the pressure, would gladly put aside his personal inconvenience and extend the hand of fellowship and congratulation for a duty recognized and a big job done.

Where We Stood When the War Department Called "Time"

WHEN AMERICA entered the War the Gillette factory in Boston had a capacity of four thousand razors a day; barely sufficient for the domestic trade. Our European factories were closed. Our Canadian plant was working overtime to handle the world-wide export demand.

Foundations were laid for a great new Gillette factory alongside the Boston plant for the manufacturing of blades exclusively. Then came the call to arms.

The Government realized that in modern warfare, as never before, conditions made the clean shave of vital importance. It searched the world for the most proficient shaving device. The Gillette had been tried out in the trenches. It was already the Razor of the Great War. The French had proved it.

The War Department told us what we were expected to do. It was up to us.

In the meantime, the necessary building restrictions of the War Industries Board stopped work on our new factory.

What It Cost to Make Good

IT MEANT just this—that we had to reach seven times our existing capacity in a limited number of weeks. Doubling a business is difficult enough. An increase of sevenfold without additional factory space looks like a knockout. But we got on our feet before the gong sounded, and went to it.

We furnished the Government three million, five hundred thousand razors, and six and a half million dozens [78,000,000] of blades. That's about thirty-five miles of shaving edge every twenty-four hours. And we're not done yet.

The end of hostilities stops the demand for gas masks and shrapnel. But the boys are over there and they must continue to shave. The cables still come to rush Gillette razors and blades.

In the meantime, supplies to foreign civilians throughout the world—where the demand has almost doubled—had been cut to 5 per cent of former deliveries. During the past year home demand increased 80 per cent, and much of this increase has been met. Shipments were even brought back from China and the Far East to meet the needs of the home trade.

It has been a great experience and you will find every man and every woman in the great factory proud of the work and of each other—and especially proud of the many members of the Organization who have been in the thick of the fighting Overseas.

What About the Immediate Future?

NEW FACILITIES are almost ready. So pressing was the demand of the Government for deliveries that the War Industries Board finally let us go ahead with our building plans.

The new factory is nearing completion: eight stories high, with thousands of additional feet of space. This entire building will be devoted to blade production—giving us a total capacity of one hundred and ten thousand dozen blades a day, or three hundred and fifty-six million blades a year.

Gillette Razors for Christmas

THERE ARE dealers in almost every community fortunate enough to have in stock an assortment of Gillette Sets and Combinations suitable for Christmas gifts. The events of the past year have settled once for all the supremacy and proficiency of the Gillette as the razor for every man's use. There is no more acceptable, practical or lasting Christmas remembrance.

The variety of patterns now in dealers' hands offers a selection that will meet any man's requirements—even if he is already a Gillette user, replacing an old model with a new one: the Regular Standard Set with a Pocket Edition, or a Traveller's Combination. The Gillette will be in greater demand this Christmas than ever. All available stock in dealers' hands will be sold out early in the Christmas shopping season.

A Packet of 12 double-edged Blades accompanies each Razor Set, and there will be no difficulty later about an ample supply of blades in every store of the 143,000 Gillette dealers throughout the world.

NEW REPUBLICS AT DAGGERS DRAWN

Independent Fragments of Former Austrian Empire Won't Trade with One Another.

GRAB FOR ROLLING STOCK

German-Austrian Plan of Joining German Federation Said to Have Been Dropped.

VIENNA, Dec. 1, (Associated Press.)—"Compensation" has become one of the most important words in the republics of the former empire of Austria-Hungary.

Vienna is facing a heavy snowstorm with a coal supply for only two weeks, due to the fact that the Czechoslovak Government is not willing to trade with German-speaking towns and also because the Czechoslovaks will not deliver coal to Austria. The Austrian Republic contends that the Czechs have an excess of coal, but will not give it up, and also that they will not permit coal contracted for by Austrians to pass through their territory.

The Poles have coal, but will not let it out through Czech territory to Austria because the Czechs have not yet granted certain territorial compensation. The Poles also control the Galician oil output and refuse to sell it to the Czechs. It is expected the Czechs will obtain their oil supply from the United States. The German-Austrians denounce the Czechs as the spoiled children of the Entente.

Vienna has obtained a small supply of food from the Hungarians at extravagant prices, paying $50,000 for a carload of 20,000 pounds, or more than $2 a pound. The wholesale prices of other products are in proportion, and the price of food continues to jump. A piece of chocolate smaller than an American silver dollar sells for $3. There is also a lack of fats and pork is selling at $3 a pound.

In order to obtain coal and oil, in addition to running the risk of its being taken by the Governments of some of the neighboring States, the Austrians are forced to provide compensation in the form of natural gas, coke, and clothing at peace prices.

After One Another's Rolling Stock.

For more than a month each republic has been trying to gain possession of the railway rolling stock of the other republics, which was the equipment of the Austrian State Railroad. They will not let cars go out for fear they will not return.

The same situation applies to money. While each republic is still using the money of the old empire, none of the republics wishes to let it leave its boundaries, since any one republic might soon find itself drained. A bank at Vienna may transfer credit for a customer to Prague or Budapest, but the banks in the latter places are not permitted to issue money against credit until the money itself is deposited. Hence the attempts to smuggle large sums of money over the various frontiers.

At every frontier the passengers and their baggage are searched. If large sums of money are found in the possession of the passengers, it is taken and a receipt given for it. An officer who left Vienna today was searched and 2,000,000 crowns were taken from him at the railway station. A Sergeant was searched and 1,000,000 crowns were found in his haversack.

How business is deranged is shown by the story related to a correspondent by Julius Weiss, the Prague representative of the Vacuum Oil Company of the United States. Weiss wished to transfer 1,000,000 crowns from Vienna to Prague. The bank informed him that the only way to do it was to take it himself, which he did. The oil company continued its operations in Galicia until two weeks ago. The property is now in the hands of the Poles and the Ukrainians, while the company's customers are in Bohemia and Moravia.

Herr Weiss pointed out that it was impossible to continue business under such conditions. He said it was necessary for the Allies to regulate and also to straighten out the railway situation.

Budapest Policed by French.

Conditions in Budapest are reported to be good, due to the fact that the French troops are maintaining order.

The disintegration of the former empire goes on apace, and is accompanied by fighting here and there and the depredations of marauding bands.

Czechoslovak forces are reported to have occupied Bodenbach, near the German frontier, thereby cutting off from Vienna large stores of provisions belonging to the German-Austrian Republic. It had been planned to send these stores to Vienna by way of Munich. The Czechoslovaks have garrisoned the larger part of German Bohemia and are said to be pressing toward the frontiers of Upper Austria. The rapidity of the Czechoslovak advance is illustrated by the report of a woman of Vienna who went to Raab, fifty miles southeast, recently, and found the town occupied by the Czechs.

A State employe, who was excited by events in Berlin, asked the correspondent if, according to American ideas, it would not be a good thing to assassinate the royal family, and also to overturn forcibly the Austrian republican Governments that are too conservative. It was with difficulty that he was made to understand that Americans obtained governmental changes by orderly voting.

American Propaganda Urged.

Some observers here insist that it is the duty of the United States not only to scatter a few military officers throughout the empire in the guise of missions, but also to send American citizens with blood ties in the former empire and speaking the various tongues for the purpose of undertaking propaganda to explain how American politics are guided by reason and not by force, and also that republics do not fight with each other. Otherwise, these observers say, the peoples of the former empire will never settle down. It is pointed out that during the best days of the empire the Hapsburgs kept order only with the greatest difficulty.

The delegates of the German-Austrian Government at the Peace Conference probably will endeavor to obtain permission to form some sort of a commercial federation within the limits of the old empire. They have dropped the plan of joining the German federation since they feel that the Allies are not willing to permit this. They declare that one of the mistakes of the old rulers of Austria-Hungary was to compel the use of the German language in Austria and the Magyar language in Hungary. This mistake, they say, should be rectified by granting autonomy to each race, as well as separate schools and separate churches.

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT HOSPITAL

This organization built the Fox Hills Clearing Hospital, at Rosebank, Staten Island, for the United States Government, containing accommodations for 2,000 of America's heroes from Over There.

The point of interest in this operation is that the contract was awarded to us after we had completed Camp Upton, at Yaphank.

A repeat order from the Government is twice a compliment, and we have had others since.

WANT ALL CASUALTY LISTS EXPEDITED

Senate Committee Asks Baker, March, and Keppel About Delay in Publication.

NONE HAS BEEN HELD UP

Secretary Thinks Most of Those Missing Are of Slightly Wounded and Are Coming by Mail.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Secretary Baker, appearing before the Senate Military Committee today to explain the delay in completing the publication of American casualties overseas, said he thought most of the unreported names were those of men slightly wounded and would come by mail.

General March, Chief of Staff, and Assistant Secretary Keppel were with the Secretary. Mr. Keppel said the system of obtaining and verifying casualty reports in France had been slow at first and if it had to be done over again it probably would be done differently. Other Governments experienced similar difficulties, although they had been perfecting their systems four years.

Senators were unable to understand why only something over 100,000 names had been published, when it had been officially announced that the casualties numbered 262,693. The Secretary said every effort consistent with accuracy was made to prevent delay, and that General Pershing had been urged repeatedly to expedite his lists, sending the names of the dead first.

"The department from the beginning," Mr. Baker said, "has never held up, withheld, or delayed giving out casualty lists. Our policy has been to give a complete statement as soon as possible."

Many complaints, he explained, had been based upon misunderstanding and suspicions that the lists were being held up, and distress had been caused among relatives by inaccurate reports in soldiers' private letters. He told in detail of the publication plan under which a telegram is sent immediately to the next of kin before a name is put on the lists transmitted by mail to the newspapers for simultaneous publication throughout the country.

"Has there been any unwarranted delay on the other side?" asked Senator Weeks of Massachusetts.

"I don't feel free to say that," Mr. Baker answered.

"Has General Pershing been asked to expedite the reports?"

"Repeatedly; repeatedly."

"There have been so many cases it seems to me the system was inefficient," Senator Weeks observed.

"The system at central headquarters was too slow at the outset," Mr. Baker continued, "but it has been improved. We had to choose between speed and unreliable information and a somewhat slower system but reliable. Whether we've had too much time spent on reliability and accuracy is a question on which there might be a difference of opinion."

Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska said that soldiers' mail has been "awfully" delayed and that there must be literally shiploads of it held up. Mr. Baker disagreed, and also said he doubted if a statement by Senator New of Indiana that it takes an average of twelve days to get answers to letters to the department could be true.

Senator Johnson of California asked what was holding up the names of the men included in the total number already announced.

"I don't know why," Secretary Baker answered. "We're getting them as rapidly as the cables are able to carry them. I think the major part of these missing are of slightly wounded and coming by mail. I cabled General Pershing a suggestion made to me by Mr. Stone of the Associated Press to send the deaths first and let the seriously wounded follow and then the slightly wounded. I asked General Pershing if his machinery was adapted to cable the deaths first. He replied that sending of wounded was not delaying the lists of dead, and that no speed could be gotten by the process suggested."

Senator Johnson asked how many Americans had been in actual fighting up to the signing of the armistice.

Secretary Baker estimated 750,000, and General March added that it was above that number, but "somewhat less than 1,000,000."

General March also said unless relatives of Americans who had lost their lives requested otherwise, all bodies of the American dead would be brought home, without legislation by Congress. How soon the transportation of bodies would begin General March said he could not state.

Obviously, General March said, while active fighting was in progress, reports of casualties were slow. He read telegrams exchanged between the department and General Pershing last July and August after the heavy American losses in the Chateau-Thierry fighting, which were delayed in transmission. In reply to orders from Secretary Baker advising General Pershing that the delay was "creating a feeling of distrust" of the department, General Pershing replied detailing difficulties of securing and verifying casualty reports, and assuring that all possible speed was being exercised.

General Pershing explained that the troops were widely separated, with some in British and French hospitals, that sometimes records were destroyed, and that the field telegraph wires were overburdened. General Pershing insisted that to avoid unnecessary distress, verification of reports was necessary.

Senator Hitchcock conceded that while fighting was in progress reports might be slow, but added:

"But it stopped Nov. 11 and still we don't know what has happened."

General March replied that on Nov. 11 he cabled General Pershing to send promptly a complete total casualty summary of dead and missing. General Pershing replied that it would be done, and a report of seriously wounded would come without delaying reports on the dead and missing.

Senator Hitchcock observed that apparently about 130,000 casualties still were unreported.

General March said as Secretary Baker had that most of these were slightly wounded.

Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey said that apparently the total American deaths were 60,000, and of these only 42,000 had been reported. He urged that the committee act to expedite the final returns.

General March, discussing demobilization, said General Pershing was selecting units for the occupational force of about 1,250,000 men, and that all the other American soldiers in France would be brought home as rapidly as shipping could be provided.

ASK SUGGESTIONS FOR ARCH

Art Committee Seeking Advice About Memorial for Soldiers.

Thomas Hastings, Joint Chairman with Paul Bartlett of the Art Committee in charge of the erection of an arch of triumph at Madison Square and Fifth Avenue for the returning soldiers, said yesterday that advice and co-operation from many architects and sculptors was being asked in working out the detail of the arch.

A contract has already been let for the building of a framework, but the plans for the ornamentation of the arch are now being developed, and it was stated yesterday that suggestions were welcomed. Several weeks may elapse before the complete design is ready, so that the second contract, for the exterior of the arch, may be let. The Board of Aldermen has appropriated $80,000 for the work.

SIX OTHER SHIPS COMING

First Fighters from France to be Discharged Expected on Transport Sierra Monday.

The first troops to arrive from France to be mustered out are on board the American transport Sierra, which is scheduled to reach New York on Saturday, but on account of the strong gales and headseas may not arrive until Monday. She has 1,531 officers and men on board.

The White Star liner Lapland, which sailed from Liverpool on Saturday, Nov. 23, with a total of 2,030 troops, nurses, casuals, and officers on board from camp in England, was reported by wireless off Nantucket Lightship last night, and will reach Pier 60, North River, at the foot of West Twentieth Street, between 9 and 10 this morning.

Here is a list of the units on board:

The air and photo units, the sailmakers and medical detachments, and the air service casuals will go to Camp Mills, while the other groups mentioned in the list will report to Surgeons.

The Lapland under ordinary conditions would have arrived on Monday, but she encountered a series of strong northwesterly gales after leaving Liverpool which caused the forty-eight-hour delay. Captain A. H. Rostron of the Mauretania, which was delayed eighteen hours coming across, said it was one of the worst passages he ever made.

The next transport to arrive from England will be the Orca, which is due at Pier 54 North River, foot of West Fourteenth Street, at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. She has a total of 1,928 on board, chiefly air squadrons, which will be sent to Camp Mills. The list:

The White Star liner Cretic is due on Friday with about 1,500 more troops from England, and the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain and the White Star liner Adriatic both sailed from Liverpool on Dec. 2 with soldiers, which should about empty the training camps in England.

"It was announced at the Executive office today that United States Fuel Administrator Garfield had tendered his resignation to take effect at the pleasure of the President, and that the President had accepted the resignation, although it was made clear that the needs of domestic consumers will continue to receive the attention of the Fuel Administration until the Winter is past.

"Dr. Garfield has been anxious for some time to be relieved of his duties as Fuel Administrator and to return to Williams College. The understanding tonight is that Cyrus Garnsey, Jr., of Memphis, Assistant Fuel Administrator will conduct the work of the office.

Three volunteer workers in the Fuel Administration, W. H. Warren of Richmond, Va.; Alexander Yule of St. Louis, and J. O. Knight of Baltimore also have resigned and have returned to their homes.

WILSON PARDONS AIRCRAFT OFFICIALS

Holds with Gregory That Mixter and Vincent Were Only Technically Guilty.

PRAISED FOR SERVICES

Attorney General Notes Hughes's Finding That Fraud Was Not Contemplated.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—President Wilson tonight authorized the announcement that he had pardoned Lieut. Cols. George W. Mixter and J. G. Vincent, whom the recent report submitted by Charles E. Hughes, after his investigation of aircraft production, declared to be guilty of violation of a section of the criminal code which prohibits any person interested in profits or contracts of a corporation from acting as an officer or agent of the Government for the transaction of business with that corporation.

Attorney General Gregory agreed with Mr. Hughes's conclusion that these two officers had violated this section of the code, but did not think the ends of justice required that either of the two officers be prosecuted. At the White House today it was announced that the President had pardoned both officers because he concurred entirely in the views of the Attorney General.

"He (the President) believes," says the official announcement, "that the two gentlemen concerned were entirely innocent of any improper or selfish intention, that their guilt was only technical, and that their service to the Government, which has been of the highest value and of a most disinterested sort, deserves the most cordial recognition."

No further statement was authorized by the President, but the letters written by the Attorney General were made public. Mr. Gregory's letter dealing with the case of Lieut. Col. Vincent follows:

Dec. 3, 1918.

To the President,
The White House.

My Dear Mr. President: In the report submitted to me by the Hon. Charles E. Hughes at the conclusion of the aircraft investigation, Lieut. Col. J. P. Vincent was one of three officers found to have transacted business for the Government contrary to the prohibition contained in Section 41 of the Criminal Code and against whom prosecutions were recommended. In transmitting the report to you I said:

"I agree with Judge Hughes's conclusion that Lieut. Col. Vincent violated Section 41 of the Criminal Code, which prohibits any person, directly or indirectly interested in the pecuniary profits or contracts of a corporation, from acting as an officer or agent of the United States for the transaction of business with such corporation. I further agree with Judge Hughes that the evidence does not afford ground for the conclusion that the Government was defrauded, or that there was any intent to defraud on the part of any of the parties concerned, or that the services rendered were not worth the amount paid therefor, or that the estimates of the outlay of the Packard Company were not fair estimates."

While there was a violation of the statute, I do not think the ends of justice require that Colonel Vincent be prosecuted.

Colonel Vincent was one of the designers of the Liberty motor. At that time he was not in the employ of the Government, but was Vice President of the Packard Motor Car Company. When the motor had been designed the Packard Company tendered Mr. Vincent and its engineering staff any facilities for such service as might be necessary to test out and develop the design for production. The authorities authorized Mr. Vincent to build the required number of models and experimental motors, and he directed his company to do the work under his supervision. Later, during the progress of the work, he was commissioned in the Signal Corps, resigning as an officer of the Packard Company, but retaining the ownership of his stock. His offense is that he acted for the Government in connection with settling the compensation to be paid the Packard Company for this work. There is no evidence that he did not act in entire good faith, or that any advantage was taken of the Government.

The production of the Liberty motor was one of the great achievements in connection with the war. Colonel Vincent rendered invaluable services in designing and perfecting it.

In view of all the circumstances I recommend that a full and complete pardon be granted for the offense, as I believe it was unwittingly committed.

Respectfully, T. W. GREGORY,
Attorney General.

The text of the other letter is as follows:

Dec. 3, 1918.

To the President, the White House.

My Dear Mr. President: The report made by the Hon. Charles E. Hughes to me at the conclusion of the aircraft investigation shows that Lieut. Col. George W. Mixter acted for the Government in supervising inspection and production at the Curtis Airplane and Motor Corporation while he owned twenty-five shares of the preferred stock of that company, of the par value of $2,500. I concurred with Judge Hughes in his conclusion that this was a violation of Section 41 of the Criminal Code.

Lieut. Col. Mixter testified that he had formerly owned a small amount of both common and preferred stock in the company referred to; that at the time he was commissioned he had sold the common stock and overlooked the fact that he still owned the preferred. There is nothing in the evidence warranting the conclusion that Lieut. Col. Mixter did not act in entire good faith in the transaction referred to, or indicating that he was influenced by his ownership of this preferred stock, which paid a fixed dividend.

Lieut. Col. Mixter has performed efficient service for the Government, and at a substantial sacrifice. I believe that the offense was unwittingly committed, and recommend that he be granted a pardon. Respectfully.

T. W. GREGORY, Attorney General.

GARAGE FOR MOTOR CORPS.

Women Pour Tea In Building Lent by Edwin Gould.

With a tea, attended by a number of officers back from the front and now at Debarkation Hospital No. 3, Eighteenth Street and Sixth Avenue, in connection with which its members work, the Motor Corps of America celebrated the opening of its new ambulance station at Queens Boulevard and Packard Avenue, Long Island City, given by Edwin Gould for use as long as the organization is in existence.

The garage accommodates fifteen ambulances, has every convenience of a modern garage, and in it the Motor Corps is to have its expert mechanical department of twenty-five women, where the ambulances will receive first aid treatment. Mr. Gould has had the rooms above the garage arranged as barracks for the ambulance drivers, who will remain there over night when coming in from late calls. It was in these rooms that the housewarming tea party was held yesterday.

Mr. Gould has arranged a trust fund, the income of which will support the garage and barracks. Mrs. Gould was a guest at the reception.

Today the corps gives another housewarming in its new headquarters in this city, 98 Park Avenue, corner of Fortieth Street, a large five-story building, the Sarah Payne house. The corps has now some 600 members.

REVENUE BILL FINISHED.

But Opposition to It Is Likely to Prevent Its Passage Soon.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The Senate Finance Committee will complete its work on the Revenue bill in time to present the measure to the Senate on Thursday, Senator Simmons, Chairman of the committee, announced tonight. The committee spent today checking over the final print of the bill, and will conclude this work tomorrow.

No changes affecting the structure of the bill were made today, and committee members said they expect none. As it will be reported, the bill provides for approximately the $5,000,000,000 that Secretary McAdoo said would be sufficient for the 1918-19 fiscal year.

In view of President Wilson's admonition that no undue delay should be allowed to interfere with telling the business men of the country what taxes they must pay in 1918, 1919, and 1920, Senator Simmons intends to seek early consideration of the bill. But the opinion is general that the organized Republican opposition to including any provision for the 1920 levies will make impossible the enactment of any revenue legislation at this session. Republican committee members declared today that the President's insistence on speed had not convinced them of need for extraordinary haste. "The President's remarks on revenue have not caused us to change our opinions in any respect," said Senator Penrose.

Music Greets the Victorious

WITH flags flying and bands playing, the boys will march up Fifth Avenue. Thrilled with the stirring strains of martial music, with the first sight of our home-coming boys, we will greet them with songs and cheers, straight from our hearts.

When these millions of soldiers come back to their homes and tell us what music has meant to them in the training camp and during the soul-trying days at the front, and when they are greeted by the song of victory, springing spontaneously from a hundred million throats—then we will realize what music means to every human being.

How will it be with your own boy when he comes home? For months he has been making a superhuman effort. Every nerve strained to the breaking point, every muscle tense, every ounce of energy expended in days and nights of battle for civilization. His weary muscles and jaded nerves need to relax—to get every possible refreshing influence to re-build his body and mind afresh, so that he may turn back to the pursuits of peace with happiness and success. Music will benefit every member of your family. If you would bring pleasure and relaxation to the entire household, bring the joy of music to your home.

Give to your boy the new pleasures he needs. The Ampico Reproducing Piano offers you music of a finer character than you ever dreamed possible to attain in your home. It is more than a piano, it is music itself. Within its casing lies the genius of the world's greatest pianists. You have but to touch a lever and they will play for you exactly as they play on the Concert Stage, touch for touch, tone for tone, just as if they were present and their gifted fingers were sweeping over the keys. ADMITS CAMPAIGN TO STOP MUNITIONS

Hammerling Says He Understood They Were Intended for the German Army.

WOULD NOT AID THE ENEMY

Tells of His Connection with the American Leader and of Ex-Secretary Nagel's Articles.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Organization in 1915 of a $200,000 advertising campaign, by which it was hoped to stop the manufacture in the United States of munitions for the Allies, was admitted by Louis N. Hammerling, President of the American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers, in testifying today before the Senate committee investigating activities of brewers and German propagandists.

Edward A. Rumely, recent owner of The New York Evening Mail, and Dr. Heinnerich F. Albert, a German propagandist, were connected with the campaign by the witness, who declares that the money for the insertion of the advertising in practically all of the 619 newspapers of the association of which he is President was contributed largely by Rumely. He said his dealings with Albert consisted in the collection through the [illegible] of a portion of the $200,000 which Rumely contributed.

Hammerling denied, upon questioning, any connection or acquaintanceship with former German Ambassador Bernstorff and sought to justify his part in the advertising campaign with the statement that he believed the munitions manufactured in this country were being shipped to Germany. Hammerling admitted he knew the German ports in 1915 were closed, but asserted that knowledge had nothing to do with his belief the munitions were being shipped from this country to Germany. Another thing that impelled him to take part in the plan he said, was his desire to contribute toward reducing the carnage of war through stopping the production of war materials.

"What if for the almighty dollar, or to help Germany or to help humanity?" asked Senator Nelson of Minnesota.

"It was to help humanity," replied Hammerling, "and I also was glad to get the advertising. If I had any idea that it was in the interests of the German Government I would not have done it. I thought the munitions were being sent to Germany."

In answer to questions by Major E. Lowry Humes, in charge of the investigation for the committee, Hammerling denied having given THE NEW YORK TIMES an interview in which he was quoted as stating that the $200,000 fund was subscribed by churches, societies, and individuals.

Asked about the placing of the advertising, Hammerling said the newspaper owned by Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, published the advertisement without charge.

Other activities of Hammerling including his connection with the Republican National Committee in 1908 in an advertising capacity, and his embarkation in the advertising business in New York in 1904 at the solicitation of the Republican National Committee and Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, also were brought out at today's hearings.

Hammerling's connection with The American Leader, a semi-monthly New York paper, was shown by Major Humes. Hammerling said one of the contributors to this periodical was Charles Nagle, Secretary of Commerce and Labor in President Taft's Cabinet, who received $125 for each article on personal liberty.

MUSIC

By James Gibbons Huneker

The Oratorio Society.

The first disappointment of the Oratorio Society concert last night at Carnegie Hall was an announcement made by Walter Damrosch that, as the orchestral parts of the "Hymn to the Sun" were lost in transit from Paris to New York, the chorus would not be sung. The composition was the second of two choruses by Lilli Boulanger, a young Frenchwomen who recently died at the early age of 24. The second disappointment was after hearing the first chorus by the young composer, "For Soldier's Burial," which is fairly well made, not in the least original, nay, not even individual.

It might have been scored by Mr. Everyman, and is modern in the handling of the instruments. The score lacks unity of idea and style. There is effective use of antique ecclesiastical modes in the first chorus, but the general effect was choppy. The atmosphere is elegiac aa befits the theme. There is a solo for baritone, not particularly novel. Mlle. Boulanger had no doubt a promising talent, but following the music of Wolf-Ferrari's "La Vita Nuovo," her effort seemed pale and ineffectual.

Women composers of merit are not numerous. From the ineffable "Maiden's Prayer," by the Polish Thekla Bardzewska, to Mrs. H. A. Beach, from the "virile" Augusta Holmes of Paris to the graceful Cecile Chaminade—the sister-in-law of Moritz Moszkowski—the unfair sex has not composed anything new or striking to say. Three Dutchwomen lead their race—Elizabeth Kuypers, Cornelia van Osterzee, and Anna Lausbrecht Vos. They move freely in large forms, while Lilli Boulanger seems cramped in them. Mr. Damrosch raised our hopes, but failed to gratify them. Women who have been admirable as painters have not succeeded in writing a Fifth Symphony. The psychology of this we leave to some courageous Freud of the future.

But the audience enjoyed the singing of the lovely "La Vita Nuovo," although the general performance was rather lympathic, till the finale, when the society shrieked and rumbled a lot, the shrillness of the sopranos being due to awkwardly high vocal writing. But the Oratorio Society will always be true to form.

The daughters and granddaughters of the original members sang about the same as did their forbears. The oldest subscribers, as usual, slumbered in peace when the noise—nicely graduated noise, be it understood—was at its loudest. The entrances of the choral mass were less flabby than of yore; the organ, with Brother Frank Sealy at the stops, was well manipulated, though in one place it held a bar too long. The Symphony Society Orchestra proved an effective background. Wolf-Ferrari's music is as elastic as his name. He is one of the remarkable mocking birds in music; at home in every style from Handel to Puccini—the last named a born mimic himself. There are charming and sincere pages in "La Vita Nuovo," though it is far removed from the austere and beautiful spirit of Dante.

The solo singing was by Rosalie Miller, soprano, who sang the little she had to very well, and Reinald Werrenrath, whose voice, intonation, diction, and finished style left nothing to be desired. He is an artist in that most soporific of unusual forms, the oratorio, which is as obsolete as the mastodon, and quite as monstrous. A tabernacle in Brooklyn on a stuffy August night or the entrancing atmosphere of a Chautauqua are eminently suitable to oratorios in general.

Even such a masterpiece as "La Vita Nuovo," demands a huge apparatus consisting of mixed chorus, solo singers, and girl choirs, orchestra, pianoforte and organ, yet it is often like the mountain that brings forth a mouse. In a word, Wolf-Ferrari's manner outshines his matter. Mr. Damrosch conducted with fervor and authority.

'THE GONDOLIERS' REVIVED.

Gilbert and Sullivan's Comic Opera Wins Great Favor at the Park.

"The Gondoliers," in a gay, new Venetian setting, a Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera "in excelsis," and a Swan Song that marked the climax of twenty-three years' partnership, when it ended their London Savoy series nearly a generation ago this month, was produced at the Park Theatre last night by the Society of American Singers, now in their eleventh week here, and their sixth week of continuous Gilbert and Sullivan. It was a triumph for the young singers when, at the close of the first act, the Park's audience gave them a prolonged ovation, unusual in a Broadway theatre.

Blanche Duffield and Gladys Caldwell among the Venetian flower girls, Craig Campbell and Bertram Peacock as the gondoliers and heirs to Barataria's throne, and William Danforth as the Grand Inquisitor, were called out many times and cheered. Herbert Waterous and Josephine Jacoby were a Duke and Duchess of Plaza Toro to the Gilbertian manner born. Many in the audience heard for the first time the Duke's lines that might have been written today of certain Teutonic princes:

In enterprise of martial kind
When there was any fighting,
He led his regiment from behind,—
He found it less exciting;
But when away the regiment ran,
His place was at the fore-O—
This celebrated, cultivated, underrated nobleman,
The Duke of Plaza Toro.

Mr. Peacock in turn made a hit with one of Gilbert's "patter songs," about "Rising Early in the Morning," while Mr. Hinshaw's chorus and orchestra under John McGhie gave Sullivan's string of dances—fandango, bolero, cachuca, and what not—with all the zest of a stage that hasn't forgotten "The Land of Joy." Practically every song of triumphant democracy and tottering thrones last night was encored.

Three Puccini Operas Next Week.

The Metropolitan's triple Puccini "world-première" of one-act operas, "Il Tabarro," "Suor Angelica," and "Gianni Schichi," to be staged Dec. 14, a week from next Saturday night, was formally posted on Broadway yesterday, and the tickets at advanced prices will go on sale tomorrow. One other addition to the current répertory will be Verdi's "Trovatore" next Wednesday night, while next Sunday's concert will appropriately have a gala Puccini-Verdi program.

Operas and casts for the season's fifth week include "Madama Butterfly," next Monday, sung by Farrar, Martinelli, and Chalmers; Wednesday, "Trovatore," Muzio, Homer, Martinelli, De Luca; Thursday, "Elisir d'Amore," Caruso, Hempel, Scotti, and Saturday matinée, "Daughter of the Regiment," Hempel, Diaz, and Scotti.

In the Puccini première, engaging nearly the entire roster of the company, Mme. Farrar will have the title rôle in "Sister Angelica," and Mr. De Luca will be the comic hero of "Gianni Schichi."

Toledo Lawyers Acted for Railroad.

Representatives of the law firms of Wollman & Wollman of 20 Broad Street and Tracy, Chapman & Welles of Toledo, counsel for the Stockholders' Protective Committee of the Toledo, St. Louis & Western Railroad, pointed out yesterday that the pleadings in the injunction proceedings against the Director General of Railroads were drawn by the Toledo lawyers. Henry Wollman said that he was not chief counsel for the committee, but that his firm handled the legal business for the railroad in this city.

REGAN TELLS OF MURDER.

Repeating Confession as Baksa Witness, He Says He Wants Justice.

The dramatic moment in the trial of nineteen-year-old Elizabeth Baksa, who is charged before Judge Rosalsky and a jury in General Sessions with having murdered Mrs. Helen Hamel, the keeper of the rooming house in which she lived, came yesterday when James F. Regan, the Sing Sing inmate who has confessed that he and not the girl was responsible for Mrs. Hamel's death, took the witness stand. His story, told first to Judge Rosalsky, was not credited by the District Attorney, and so when he testified yesterday it was as a witness for the defense. Regan repeated his confession again in court.

He testified that he went with a "pal" to rob the Hamel house. There was a struggle with the woman, and he knotted a towel about her neck, he said. Then he took some money and he and his partner left the house separately and met later in Harlem.

"Where did you meet?" asked Samuel S. Koenig, counsel for Elizabeth Baksa.

"I don't want to answer that," replied the witness. "It might put me wrong and some of my friends in wrong."

"Do you know this girl?" asked Mr. Koenig, pointing suddenly to the defendant.

"No. I want to see justice done," was Regan's answer.

He was cross-questioned by Assistant District Attorney Talley, who asked: "Why do you confess to murder and deny such amiable charges as burglary?"

"All I can get for murder is twenty years and it is over," said Regan. "When I get out now, I can have other things wrapped around my neck." He amplified this by saying that he had been told that five other indictments would not be pressed if he behaved well in Sing Sing, and when he got there found he had been "double crossed."

Mr. Koenig in his opening for the defense said he expected to prove that the accused girl, Elizabeth Baksa, had been sent to the store by Mrs. Hamel, who had given her a $20 bill, and that on her return she found Mrs. Hamel dead and the two men in the house.

The first witnesses were the grocer and his clerk, who testified that the girl had made purchases at the store about the time of the murder.

FORD MAY MAKE A CONTEST.

Said to Have Changed His Attitude as to Senatorial Election.

DETROIT, Dec. 3.—Steps to obtain a recount of the ballots cast at the Senatorial election last month are under contemplation by Henry Ford and his advisers, it was said here today on reliable authority.

The official tabulation of the vote showed that Ford, running on the Democratic ticket, was defeated for election by Lieut. Commander Truman H. Newberry, Republican, by 7,567 votes.

Although Mr. Ford soon after the election announced in a formal statement that he did not intend to seek a recount, he was quoted more recently as saying that, while he did not want the seat in the Senate, he was "not so sure that he would not get it."

A recount of the votes cast at the election is possible only through action by the United States Senate, as the Michigan election laws do not permit the State Canvassing Board to make one.

The statement that Mr. Ford was considering steps for a recount came from one of his closest advisers, who declined to be quoted. He made it clear, however, that no definite decision had been reached. Mr. Ford himself was not in the city late this afternoon.

FRENCH ARE MAKING DYES.

Two Big Companies Render Them Independent of Germany.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—France is freed from German domination in the chemical and dye industry by the formation of the Compagnie Nationale des Matières Colorantes et du Produits Chimiques. This corporation, with a capital of 40,000,000f., manufactures all kinds of chemicals. It already has a factory capable of producing 2,000 tons of indigo annually, enough to meet the needs of the country, and another for alizarine compounds.

This corporation is allied with the Société des Produits Chimiques et Colorants, with a capital of 31 000 000f., formed in 1918 for the manufacture of intermediary dye products. Both concerns will receive co-operation from abroad until their own production is at the maximum. Although they are separate companies, they have one Board of Directors.

STRIKE CLOSES CHURCHILL'S

Employes at Several Other Restaurants Also Quit Work.

Churchill's restaurant, Broadway and Forty-ninth Street, was in darkness last night as a result of the 250 employes walking out when their demands, which, according to the proprietor, would have amounted to from $40,000 to $45,000 a year, were refused. Attachés stationed at the doors explained that just before 6 o'clock last night an organizer for the International Federation of Hotel and Restaurant Employes called upon Captain James Churchill and demanded that he raise the wages of his workers at once. The organizer told Captain Churchill he must make a decision on the instant. The proprietor said that it was impossible for him to concede the men's demands.

Upon Churchill's refusal to grant the demands all the waiters, cooks, pantrymen, and other kitchen employes quit and left the building. Mr. Churchill then entered the dining rooms and told the waiting patrons that, due to the strike, it would be impossible to serve them. Luechow's restaurant in East Fourteenth Street, was also closed last night as a result of a walkout. Yesterday morning waiters, cooks, and other employes in the Pekin restaurant at 1,572 Broadway quit work.

Strikes called at Lorber's and Reisenweber's restaurants caused little or no inconvenience to the proprietors or patrons, as the Hotel Association's Labor Committee moved new workers on short notice to these eating places.

RECOVER STOLEN DIAMONDS

Butte Detectives Restore Their Trunks to New York Salesmen.

Special to The New York Times.

BUTTE, Mon., Dec. 3.—Trunks containing from $80,000 to $100,000 worth of diamonds and jewelry belonging to Arthur Gogel of the New York firm of Whitlow Brothers, of which firm Gogel is a member, and another principally containing gold jewelry, belonging to Sol Kauffman, also of New York, were stolen last evening from the baggage room of the Legget Hotel.

Gogel and Kauffman were traveling in company and arrived in the city from Spokane Sunday. They expected to leave last night for St. Paul, but remained when they found that their sample trunks had disappeared.

A detective, in scouting around, saw a young man coming from a yard in the rear of the hotel. The suspect took to his heels, but was captured after a hot run. A search of the yard resulted in the finding of the trunks in a coal shed. A further investigation brought to light two other parties to the robbery, who were found hiding under an old blanket in another building in the yard.

The prisoners confessed to the robbery, but said that they thought the trunks contained liquor. They gave Spokane as their residence and apparently arrived simultaneously with the trunks.

"No! Your mother is not well today!"

It goes hard with little children when they have to be turned from their mother's door because she is too feeble to take care of them.

Yet there is no necessity for the half-invalid state in which so many formerly healthy women find themselves. The condition can be corrected if taken in time.

First try to get at the real cause of the trouble. Is it overwork or worry? Is it loss of sleep? Is it lack of fresh air and outdoor life? Is it careless diet? Put your finger on the real cause, then it will take only reasonable perseverance in right living to remove it.

Naturally, too, a rundown and anemic condition requires a reliable tonic and blood maker. Such is Gude's Pepto-Mangan.

FRIENDLY WARNING
There is only one Pepto-Mangan and that is Gude's. Bottle and package as shown here. Sold by druggists everywhere.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan

"The Red Blood Builder"

Pepto-Mangan helps build the body by building the blood, supplying it with thousands of new, sturdy red blood cells and with hemoglobin. The red cells carry oxygen—the breath of life—to every cell and tissue, charging the whole system with vitality and stamina. Hemoglobin is the element that gives healthy blood its rich, red color. Gude's Pepto-Mangan is easy to digest, promptly assimilated, and exceedingly pleasant to taste. Universally endorsed and prescribed by the medical profession.

Pepto-Mangan is made only by

THE PRESIDENT'S VOYAGE.

Whatever division of opinion there may have been as to the wisdom of Mr. WILSON'S European journey, the good wishes and hopes of all the American people accompany him. The untried and unprecedented is a natural invitation to the American mind. It stirs the soberest imagination to think of an American President, the head of the most powerful State in the world, combining within the scope of his official functions powers more extensive and wide-reaching than those of any other ruler of a nation, on his way to Europe to give and take counsel with the Governments of the peoples by whose side we have fought in the war, as to the terms upon which peace shall be concluded, a lasting peace of justice.

By some peoples, by important parts and parties of other peoples, Mr. WILSON'S coming is looked upon as a necessary help. They see in him as the representative of the United States a friend and counselor remote from all the racial and territorial struggles and ambitions of Europe. They know him as a great idealist. They remember his famous watchword of making the world safe for democracy. In the clash of interests and claims, in the application in detail of the fundamental principles which Europe has accepted in the main, many severe disappointments are to be expected. It is honorable to Mr. WILSON and the United States that they should be regarded, and rightly regarded, as unselfish friends of an equitable and democratic peace. To all Europe Mr. WILSON'S visit is a memorable event. The voice that has spoken with so much wisdom and authority is now to be physically heard. A great personage is now to be seen. Most and first of all, the statemen of the Entente and Mr. WILSON will soon be able to sit down together and have a good long talk.

Good health and a kind sea to the illustrious traveler! May he come back to us, bringing a real "peace with honor," not the short-lived triumph that DISRAELI thought he carried from the Berlin Congress. And surely Mr. WILSON ought to be greatly flattered by the loathness of so many people to let him go.

ANOTHER NICHOLAS PASSES.

NICHOLAS of Montenegro was a King as much out of date as his distinguished namesake of Russia. In his defense it can be said that when he came to the throne nearly sixty years ago he was quite up to date; Balkan progress has been very rapid in the past half century, and the change from Turkish conditions to modern democracy has come so rapidly that it is no wonder some distinguished personages of the old school have been left behind. As a fighter in a nation of fighters, a poet in a nation of poets, he was a picturesque ruler; his gallant struggle for Scutari in the first Balkan war aroused general admiration, which was perhaps not sufficiently tempered by the observation that NICHOLAS came near precipitating a general European conflict. He was an expert at the kingly art of playing both ends against the middle; subventions from Russia and from Austria kept his Court going, and for a long time he played off Russia, Austria, and Italy against each other to the greater glory of NICHOLAS.

As the operetta king of an operetta kingdom, he was good enough; but the times changed. NICHOLAS continued to be an autocrat long after autocracy had fallen into disfavor among his people. When MACKENSEN'S army swept into the Balkans PETER of Serbia and his people never gave up the fight, but NICHOLAS fled across the Adriatic and left one of his sons to capitulate to Austria. Thereafter he lived at Neuilly with the Crown Prince, pensioned by the allied Governments, while another son was prudently sent to Vienna so that the dynasty would have an anchor to windward whichever way the wind might shift. This brought NICHOLAS into great disfavor with his people, and the alienation was completed by his attitude toward the dominant question of Jugoslav unity. The original proposals called for the abdication of NICHOLAS and PETER of Serbia, his son-in-law, so that the new State might arise under the Prince Regent ALEXANDER of Serbia, in whose person the dynasties were combined. NICHOLAS refused to abdicate; two successive Ministries resigned because he would not follow their views as to the necessity of abdication. It became apparent very soon that the force of the idea of unity was so great that no individual whatever could stand in its way, and when NICHOLAS held out for a Jugoslav confederation which should enable him to keep his crown his Parliament deposed him. Montenegro's economic situation calls for unity with the other Jugoslav districts; many thousands of her people have migrated to this country because they could not make a living at home, and the sentimental impulse is stronger even than the economic. Royalty in Europe loses its most romantic representative in the passing of the poet-King, but he was too costly a luxury for his people.

SPARKS FROM THE KRONPRINZ.

However the abdicating Kaiser may feel about it, the non-abdicating Crown Prince is as trig and gleesome as ever. Indeed, he has a pronounced case of I-told-you-so. He "considered our "position hopeless" after the battle of "the Marne" in 1914, and holds that it was then that Germany lost the war. At that time, it may be recalled, the Germans were telling us that we were fools and blockheads to believe the French rodomontade about a German defeat at the Marne; that there had been no battle of the Marne; that the Germans, having got as near Paris as was then advisable, had executed a strategic movement.

But the Crown Prince knew better, as indeed did all the world outside of Germany. "I tried to persuade the "General Staff to seek peace then, "even at a great sacrifice, going so "far as to give up Alsace-Lorraine." Is this true? The General Staff can contradict him if it is not; he seems to care precious little for the General Staff and what it may do. In fact, FREDERICK WILLIAM'S contempt and hostility to the General Staff are the best proof we have yet had that the army chiefs are really in sympathy with the revolution.

It may be because they contemned him and showed their scorn. Something that they did in 1914 and later rankles in the princely bosom. When he besought them to give up Alsace-Lorraine and make peace—in 1914—"I was told to mind my own business "and confine my activities to com-"manding my armies." This gives a pretty fair measure of the opinion entertained by the Generals of their future Emperor, and of the spite and malice that reigned in his breast afterward.

"I have not renounced anything and "I have not signed any document "whatever." Neither has he been deposed. He has a fair title, then, to be called German Emperor tomorrow if any shift of the wind blows his way. HINDENBURG, who really stands for all there is of law in Germany today, declares that "until the national con-"vention has assembled the Workers' "and Soldiers' Councils are regarded "as the representatives of the peo-"ple's will"; and the Berlin Soldiers' Councils have demanded the assembling of a convention, which would be a national assembly, at the earliest possible moment.

It is expected that the Workers' Councils will fall in with them. If they can achieve their aim they can form a Constitution which, if backed by the army, will save FREDERICK WILLIAM the trouble of abdicating, renouncing, or "signing any document whatever." Meanwhile KURT EISNER in Bavaria and the Socialist minority in Prussia are working with might and main to bring about a situation which shall render the meeting of the National Assembly as frivolous and nugatory as the meeting of the Russian National Assembly was made by the Bolsheviki. They are a minority, so far as Prussia is concerned. But so were the Bolsheviki in Russia. Meanwhile, the Junkers continually plot for the restoration of the Old Régime.

THE BEEF TRUST SERIAL.

In the decision that the Shoe Trust was a good trust the Supreme Court said it was tried on the "innuendo" of the Department of Justice. That is equally true of the Trade Commission's arraignment of the Beef Trust. The chapter of the serial now sent to Congress in substance differs hardly at all from the previous installment to which the President gave no attention known to the public. No complainant of unfair practices is produced, and no evidence apart from the Commission's deductions from the business of the Big Four, now the Big Five.

If these innuendoes of restraint of trade were heard for the first time the reaction would be different. As it is, the charge of restraint is revived when it is known to everybody that the trade done approaches three billion dollars, and the country's exports of these products are about a billion. These are unprecedented figures, and are not consistent in fact with restraint of trade. That piece of ancient law slang, false in most of its modern applications, was never more misleading than here. The food supply of the Allies' armies was one factor of their success, and if these alleged conspirators had not been in existence it is difficult to see how the work could have been done. These restrainers of the meat trade supplied trainloads and shiploads of food on a few hours' notice, and fed the country also. Single orders were given for over a hundred millions, and were filled without fuss. That is not an answer to the allegation that they are conspirators, but it is a tribute to their efficiency when their efficiency was worth more to the country and to the world than their conviction would have been.

The question of guilt or innocence of conspiracy in restraint of trade is not to be sidetracked in that manner, however. It may be necessary to try it again, but it is not to be forgotten that it has been tried in court on an indictment. Then nothing which skill or money could do was lacking to secure conviction, and the result was to discredit the charges. These revamped charges are discredited in advance by their source, which has confessed that it has hitherto brought false charges against one of these defendants. The charges of profiteering are further discredited by being in flat contradiction of Commissioner GARFIELD'S findings that the Beef Trust's profits were moderate, and made by economies and efficiency rather than by extortion. He was expected to reveal awful iniquities, and nothing could be more obnoxious than the enhancement of food cost by a capitalistic combination to run up fortunes for millionaires from pennies extorted from the poor. The sermon on this text preaches itself, and nothing that cartoons or demagogic denunciations can do has been left undone to smash this trust, although the deduction of the total of its profits from its prices would not cheapen meat a cent a pound. And now comes a department of Government with innuendoes upon "facts" which have been disproved.

This country cannot prosper, either in domestic or foreign trade, if commercial enterprise approved by results and by good merchant practice is to be attacked by appeals to popular support on charges which fail in court. There is a recoil against Government itself when officials are formally denounced by reputable business organizations. The case is made worse when the officials criticised retort with a suggestion that the critics are venal and the charge is shown to be false. It has been sufficiently proved that business does not own this Government. What is yet to be proved is that Government can deal justly with business. The bad trusts have been beaten as badly as the boches, and no man defended or defends them. But in the attempt to deal with business by a rule of unreason there is worse ahead than lies behind, and that is bad enough.

BRITAIN'S DAY.

Under the auspices of several patriotic societies, Saturday, Dec. 7, is to be kept as Britain's Day. Americans, it may be said, need to set apart no special day for the gratitude and honor which they owe to Great Britain for its vital and splendid services in the war. They are in every intelligent memory. Yet it is right that they should be formally and publicly celebrated. The British made the last Fourth of July a festival of their own. From the minds of the great democratic nations that have fought side by side to save freedom and democracy the recollection of ancient grudges has faded. When we remember the secular wars of England and France, that the beginnings of friendship, founded on self-interest and the common danger from Germany, are only fourteen years old, the tempest of plaudits with which London has just saluted FOCH and CLEMENCEAU tells us what a dissolvent of national jealousies is comradeship in arms, the communion of peoples in valor and suffering and disaster and victory for a common cause.

It is difficult to be moderate and at the same time do justice to the multifarious energy and power which Great Britain has developed in the war. The British Navy was the prime guarantee of the Entente, condition precedent of its success. It swept the enemy warships and trade from the seas. It patrolled the sea roads of commerce. Because of its protection supplies reached the Allies. The British fleet was the elemental, basic, constant, controlling factor of the military and economic situation. It strangled Germany with the blockade. At the beginning of the war British naval tonnage was 2,500,000. Before the end of the war it was 8,000,000. Transportation, convoy, patrolling, mine sweeping, submarine hunting—who can write the achievements of the British Navy?

When can the world forget that "contemptible little army" of 160,000 which reached France two weeks after Great Britain came into the war, stopped the right of the German advance, fought unflinchingly, and perished for the most part? That an unmilitary people, accustomed to look to the sea for its defense, should have raised in the British Isles an army of 6,250,000 men, nearly one in seven of the population; that the Dominions and Dependencies should have sent 2,000,000 more; that the British Air Service, negligible at first, should have become larger than that of any of the other Allies; that some 4,000,000 men and women should have worked on the munitions for the British armies fighting in a dozen countries; that Great Britain should have greatly helped her allies with money and supplies; that she should have kept her financial system sound in spite of the innumerable unprecedented demands upon it; that the tank is due to her inventive genius; that while HAIG was taking and giving tremendous blows in the west ALLENBY and MARSHALL were bringing about the downfall of Turkey in Mesopotamia and Palestine and Syria—these are but chapters of British achievement in the war. The 650,000 British dead tell the story best:

These, in the glorious morning of their days,
For England's sake lost all but England's praise.

Great Britain has given the flower of her youth and strength to the war. The unyielding, unconquerable, constant, tenacious British spirit, cheerful in disaster, unboastful in victory, has never bent or weakened. It is the great deeds of a comrade in arms and in democracy that Americans are to remember on Britain's Day.

EDMOND ROSTAND.

When EDMOND ROSTAND published his first book of poems in the late '70s, he displayed an ease of versification, a grace and spontaneity, although he was technically a disciple of THEODORE DE BANVILLE, that charmed the critics. Here was a brilliant rebirth of Romanticism. The young poet was often compared to MUSSET. He had something of the elegance, fantasy, affectation of that unrepentant prodigal son of the Romantic Movement. Inevitably he found his way to the theatre. In "Les Romanesques" he showed again, and more notably, the flexibility of his poetic style, a natural humor, and a kind of careless gayety and buoyant, scintillating rhetoric that never deserted him. If but one act, the first, is completely successful, the whole can still be read with pleasure. "La Princesse Lointaine," whose theme is one that would easily lend itself to vagueness and formlessness, is a marvel of crystalline clearness. In the library, if not on the stage, this retelling of an old troubadour legend may seem almost more charming as a poem than "Cyrano," about which the world was mad twenty years ago, and whose title rôle was so brilliantly and differently played by COQUELIN and RICHARD MANSFIELD. It is not too much to say that, whatever be the final judgment as to the literary standing of this play, it throbs with life, energy, many-sided movement. It portrays splendidly a character who may be said, without too much exaggeration, to reach from Gil Blas to Amadis of Gaul. The richness and fire and "go" remind one of the prodigal splendors of the Elizabethan dramatists.

"L'Aiglon" has, perhaps, too much fustian, too many conceits; but some of the noblest poetry of ROSTAND is there. About "Chantecler," which crowed so loudly a few years ago, there are wide differences of opinion. Symbolism is ticklish stuff of dreams, at the best. Symbolism in a hen house, so to speak, is lucky not to be laughed at. But "Chantecler" is full of charming poetry. Indeed, Mr. ROSTAND'S work, differing by the whole heaven from that of many mechanically more proficient playmakers, has such wit, such variety, such a profusion of fancy and imagination, that it can be read with pleasure in the theatre of the lazy, the easy chair by the fire, or on the porch.

The severe Mr. FAGUET said, sorrowfully, that Mr. ROSTAND had no taste. Then Mr. ROSTAND was not a Frenchman. He advertised his "preciosity." He even went to the Hôtel de Rambouillet for a subject. Something too much of Euphues he had. All the Romantics, all the swarming schools of modern French poets, love to venture into the "New World of Words"; but at his best he is clear, ardent, splendid, an authentic wit and poet.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Our Special Duty to the Wounded.

Between the soldier who comes back from the war not only unscathed, but bigger, stronger, and healthier than when he sailed away, and the one who is suffering from hurts received on the firing line, there is no distinction as to essential merit, any more than there is between these two classes and the men who died in battle. There are other distinctions, however, that make our debt greatest to those who made the last sacrifice, and only less great to those who still bear—often to bear through life—the burden of wounds received.

To the dead we can promise only that they shall not be forgotten, and those who are sound can reap their honors without much of material help. The case of the wounded is somewhat different, and we are under every obligation to pay our debt to them by a particular tenderness and an active sympathy, taking substantial form whenever necessary. What we should not do, however, is to encourage their natural impatience to quit the Government hospitals or to effect their untimely discharge by bringing political or other influence to bear on the military authorities. The Government is properly willing, and properly eager, indeed, to take care of the soldiers who are ill until they are well, and of those who are crippled until to them has been given all the aid that science can render in the way of fitting them for a life of self-supporting independence—the only life really worth living. That is the Government's part; but it is the duty of us all, to the extent of our opportunity and ability, to lighten the inevitable tediums of a prolonged stay in hospital. It is lonely there, and visitors—if they have tact and sense, as well as sympathy—are always welcome. They should not be kept away, even if they do sometimes make a little extra trouble for the attendants.

Welcomes for the Soldiers.

There are reasons enough, and more than enough, why much thought should be given by all the stay-at-home folk, official and other, to the problems incidental to the proper welcoming of our soldiers as they return from abroad. That there will be difficulty in doing this is obvious, for the repatriations will be scattered over many months, and if wise action be not taken the tendency will be to use up the greater part of our enthusiasm and attention on the earlier groups to come—which would be cruelly unjust, of course, to the men who have been kept in France and Germany to perform duties as important, though not as glorious or exciting, as were those performed by these same men under fire.

The fact that a thing is difficult, however, is no excuse for not doing it, and there is not a man from across the water who has failed to earn the cheers of welcome that will make him forget how the exigencies of war forced us to let him depart without any of the audible farewells that would have expressed our appreciation of what we owed to him. Apparently the War Department is not disposed to favor great demonstrations at the ports of landing and prefers to hurry the troops as quickly as possible to the camps where they were trained. There is wisdom in this, but there is also wisdom in recognizing the sentimental as well as the practical, and our soldiers certainly deserve something more than the receptions of small groups at their homes after final discharge, which seems to be all that the department is going to allow if it can have its way.

Hardly a "German" Reception.

So open to criticism in all its forms are the Germans that they are probably safer from undeserved reproach than any people that ever lived. One cannot help wondering, however—wondering very gently, of course—how the population of Treves could have been expected to give the American troops who entered the city a welcome any different from, or warmer than, the welcome they did give them. Mr. JAMES, who was in Treves for THE TIMES when our men marched in, only showed himself the good observer he is when he described the reception they got as impressively unlike the joyful demonstrations made in the liberated towns of France and Belgium, and even in Luxemburg, but really the inhabitants of Treves behaved themselves fairly well, even though they watched the victors in frowning silence.

That silence was not "German"—it was merely human—merely the way in which the inhabitants of any French, English, or American town would have acted if it had been their tragic lot to be the helpless spectators of a like taking over of their private and public affairs by an alien conqueror.

The Germans, too, were depressed by more than the evidence thus forced upon them that they had lost the war—and vastly more besides! In the minds of them all there were vivid memories of what German soldiers had done when they took possession of lands and towns not their own, and, with characteristic German inability to understand other peoples, few of them could have been free from the fear that now it was their own turn to endure the ruthless abuse of irresistible military power.

Some Good Advice for Soldiers.

So eager—so nearly desperate—is the demand for food now coming from many lands that President WILSON was more than justified in devoting a part of his farewell message to an exposition of the possibilities of profitable employment for our returned soldiers that lie in the intelligent cultivation of our as yet unused land. Of this we still have many millions of acres that can be made productive in one way or another, and while to turn from war to farming is indeed a change of occupation about as extreme as could be imagined, yet it has been done many times before by many men.

They who think that the farmer's life is one entirely calm forget that he faces anxieties and dangers not a few and is always at the mercy of that most uncertain of all uncertainties—the weather.

But farming is not the lonely life it used to be. Good roads and the automobile have made trips to town matters of minutes instead of hours, and the telephone keeps the farmer in constant, quick, and cheap communication with all his neighbors. That modern improvements have not succeeded in changing farming from a very close imitation of hard work is true, but soldiers shouldn't, and probably wouldn't, mind that, and in going "back to the land," even if he were never there before, the man of war could have his accustomed sense of high duty recognized and done.

An Early Woman Envoy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

What's all this about Mme. Rosika Schwimmer, or any other lady of this century or the last, being the first female Ambassador? Was not St. Catherine of Siena sent in 1376 to Pope Gregory XI. at Avignon, as Ambassador from the Republic of Florence? LOUIS HOW.

New York, Dec. 2, 1918.

THE ISHMAELITE OF NATIONS.

The Ishmaelite of Nations, she shall wait
Until the crawling centuries mute again
The hideous echoes of her Hymn of Hate.
Cursed by the world's immeasurable disdain,
Cursed by the tears a million mothers shed,
Cursed on the fields where countless boys lie dead,
Whimpering for mercy, blustering, desolate—
The Ishmaelite shall wait.

By rotting wharves her empty ships shall rock,
Her slattern towns their poverty proclaim,
Her high-towered factories topple block by block
Since "Made in Germany" is a brand of shame.
Thrust from the Door of Human Brotherhood,
Misunderstanding and misunderstood,
Beggared, unpardoned, excommunicate—
The Ishmaelite shall wait.

Gray skulls plow up through fields of Picardy,
Great fanes lift shattered arches to the dawn,
Where once dead babies strewed the bitter sea
The cliffs still whiten in undying scorn.
Down weary years shall men, beholding this,
Turn from her bribes and pleading with a hiss,
Sullen, unpitied in her self-sought fate—
The Ishmaelite shall wait.

JAMES CHURCH ALVORD.

STATE SUFFRAGISTS BACK PROHIBITION

Vote to Oppose Candidates Whose Suffrage Record Is Unsatisfactory.

MRS. CATT'S VIEW OF DUTIES

Women Voters, She Says, Ought to Point the Way to True World Democracy.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Dec. 3.—The New York State Woman Suffrage Party today at its fiftieth annual convention decided to oppose candidates for public offices, irrespective of their political affiliations, "when the records and policies of such candidates are at variance with the objects set forth in the constitution."

It was also determined to keep the organization strictly nonpartisan, and it was urged upon the members that they enroll with the party of their choice.

The women indorsed the ratification of the prohibition amendment now pending in the New York State Legislature. Miss Mary Garrett Hay of New York offered the resolution, and it was seconded by Miss Adelia Potter, Secretary of the Anti-Saloon League.

One of the big features of today's session was the address of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the International Woman Suffrage Party, who discussed "A Women Voters' Council—State, National, and International."

"The women voters of the world," she said, "have a unique opportunity at this time to render a signal and immortal service to the liberty and welfare of humanity. It is an opportunity which will not come their way again. The call comes for help from the distressed nationalities of Middle Europe, struggling forward to representative institutions over the obstacles of prejudice and tradition on the one hand and conflicts for mastery between groups holding special theories upon the other.

"It is not the first time this has happened. When the Napoleonic world-war came to an end it was followed by a fine impulse to democracy. A hundred years have passed, and the world has moved forward far since that day. Yet, the autocracies, the Tories of every land, our own included, are as frightened of real democracy and as determined to prevent its establishment as ever they were.

"The women voters of the world—and they number millions—united, insistent, can do for the women of those struggling new republics what no men ever have done for them. The leaders among them may be encouraged and aided in unnumbered ways. From the experience of women voters much may be contributed to embolden the timid, to convince the doubting, and strengthen the morale of the entire movement.

"If an intelligent, alert democracy is in truth the only safeguard against world-war—and no one has suggested any other—women voters should know their opportunity is more than an open door; it is a command to action."

Speaking of domestic problems, Mrs. Catt said:

"The laws of the States could be unified and improvements added even in the States more liberal in their laws if women voters would agree upon a proper constructive program. It is a fact so obvious that it needs no demonstration that if one section of the country is much behind the times in education and legal protection to women and children, its civilization is bound to prove a deterrent influence over the whole nation. Therefore it becomes the duty of all forward looking people to see that the laws of the whole nation are unified, and that the standard by which to measure the proper program for each State is the code of laws of the most advanced States."

Mrs. Charles S. Whitman was enthusiastically received when she appeared at the meeting. The convention closed late this afternoon after a number of reports had been received from the various committees.

WHEAT PRICE STANDS IN 1919

Lever Act Effective, Regardless of Peace, Until June 1, 1920.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The Food Administration today announced that the guaranteed price for the 1919 wheat crop stands under the terms of the Lever act, under which the Food Administration is operating. It was explained that the President's proclamation of Sept. 2 stated that the "producers of wheat produced within the United States for the crop of 1919" were to receive the price set forth in it, $2.26 per bushel at Chicago, and also that the end of the war or the proclamation of peace did not in any way affect this guarantee.

Section 24 of the Lever act provides that "the provisions of this act shall cease to be in effect when the existing state of war between the United States and Germany shall have terminated, and the fact and date of such termination of this act shall not affect any act done, or any right or obligation accruing or accrued." It further states that "all rights or liabilities under this act arising before its termination shall continue and may be enforced in the same manner as if the act had not terminated."

The guarantee for the 1919 wheat crop expires June 1, 1920.

Eight American engineers will sail for France on the Espagne tomorrow to attend the French Engineering Congress in Paris to study reconstruction in France and restoration of French industries.

An invitation to send representatives to the meeting was received by the American Society of Civil Engineers from the French Society of Civil Engineers, and the American organization invited representation from the national societies of civil, mechanical, electric and mining engineers. The members of the delegation are: George F. Swain, Nelson P. Lewis, George W. Fuller, A. M. Hunt, George W. Tillson, Major James F. Case, L. B. Stillwell, and E. Gybbon Spilsbury.

SUES ON PLAGIARISM PLEA.

Author of "The Bargain" Says "The Very Idea" Is from Her Book.

On the ground that the play "The Very Idea," by Thomas H. Uzzell and William Le Baron, is a plagiarism of her story, "The Bargain," Mrs. Jean E. Burrill, wife of Professor Edgar Burrill, assistant to Professor Brander Matthews in the English Department at Columbia, filed suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against Le Baron and Uzzell for an accounting of the profits of "The Very Idea."

Mrs. Burrill alleges that when the defendants were editors of a weekly publication she submitted to them her story, "The Bargain," which was rejected, but when she saw the performance of the play, "The Very Idea," she recognized it as taken from her story.

The defendants deny that their play is derived in any way from Mrs. Burrill's story.

OPPOSE FEDERAL INSURANCE

Phillips Wants Industries Restored to Private Management.

Jesse S. Phillips, New York State Superintendent of Insurance, yesterday told the members of the National Council of Insurance Federations, in annual convention at the Hotel Astor, that if private insurance companies were forcibly eliminated by Federal legislation by the inability to compete with the State, because of the latter's exemption from expenses and taxation, it would impose a great burden upon all citizens required to pay taxes. Superintendent Phillips insisted that the first step which the Government should take, now that the war was over, was to restore to private management the actual operation of industrial enterprise. James H. Carney, President of the Boston Board of Fire Underwriters, was elected President for the ensuing year.

A letter was read at the evening session from Secretary of War Baker expressing his regret at his inability to be present. Joseph Chapman, Vice President of the Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis, Minn., made a plea for greater participation by business men in the conduct of Government whether municipal, State, or national.

The annual convention of the National Association of Casualty and Surety Agents, held at the Astor, came to a close yesterday after the adoption of resolutions opposing possible Government intrusion in the insurance field. W. G. Wilson of Cleveland, Ohio, was elected President. The National Association of Insurance Commissioners met yesterday at the same hotel for the semi-annual meeting. The day was devoted to the naming of committees and the consideration of executive business. The insurance commissioners will continue their convention today. Edgar M. Griffiths of Albany was re-elected President.

TO ASSIST JEWISH RELIEF.

Food Board Will Turn Over Information Gathered in Europe.

Official information gathered in Europe by the Food Administration is to be turned over to the Jewish War Relief for use in apportioning the fund of $5,000,000 now being gathered in this city, it was announced last night by Felix M. Warburg, Chairman of the Campaign Committee. The information will be transmitted through the Joint Distribution Committee of the American Fund for Jewish War Sufferers.

A questionnaire is to be distributed among American officials in Europe, and Louis L. Straus, attached to the Hoover Commission abroad, is to receive the answers at the American Embassy in Paris and tabulate the information. The announcement says that "in this manner it will be possible to obtain very quickly the facts as to the immediate needs of the Jewish populations, and steps can be taken for the wise and equitable distribution of the funds collected in America."

Among the facts to be gathered are those on shifts of population, percentage of population self-supporting, occupations, prices and other information on food and clothing conditions, and local institutions to be used in distributing the funds.

A reception is to be held in the Hotel Savoy tomorrow night in honor of Felix M. Warburg, and on Sunday night the Committee of Rabbis aiding the drive will begin their campaign at a dinner at the Biltmore.

SPANISH MINISTRY RESIGNS.

Reformist Party Formulates Program of Constitutional Changes.

MADRID, Dec. 3.—The Spanish Ministry resigned today.

The Reformist Party recently began the holding of meetings to promote its program of constitutional reform. The measures demanded by the party include the following:

Any bill rejected by the Crown to become a law without further reference to the Crown if the Parliament reapproves the measure; the royal prerogatives to be exercised under responsibility to the Ministers; the entire Senate to be chosen by the electors; every province which demands autonomy and is in a position to fulfill the necessary conditions shall receive it; military service to be universal and obligatory, with any exempted person paying during the term of service required a tax proportionate to his income; State schools and technical education to be largely increased.

Internal conditions in Spain and the question of Spain's attitude toward the war have been the cause of numerous Ministerial crises in the last two years.

The Cabinet which has just resigned was headed by the Marquis de Alhucemas, a Liberal and friend of the Allies, with the Count Romanones as Foreign Minister. It took office on Nov. 17, in succession to a coalition Cabinet under Antonio Maura, in which both Alhucemas and Romanones held portfolios. The Maura Cabinet took office last March, succeeding one under the Premiership of the Marquis de Alhucemas.

FRATERNIZING IN PEKING.

Chinese Soldiers Entertained by the American Legation Guard.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, Dec. 3.—A pleasing fraternizing of Chinese and American troops has just been recorded. Thursday morning, prior to the Chinese-Allied review in the Forbidden City, Chinese soldiers breakfasted at the American Legation Guard mess. The Chinese, delighted with their reception, reciprocated by sending two chickens for each man and also fifteen cows for the mess. The latter were distributed by the Americans among the allied legations.

Owing to a mistaken order, five cows instead of five chickens were delivered to the three Cossacks at the Russian Legation.

NEGROES BUY FINE CHURCH.

Baptist Congregation Takes Harlem-New York Building.

One of the finest church buildings in Harlem, the former Harlem-New York Presbyterian Church, at the northeast corner of Seventh Avenue and 128th Street, has been acquired by the Metropolitan Baptist Church, a negro congregation, of which the Rev. W. W. Brown is pastor. It now occupies an altered dwelling in 138th Street. The acquisition of this church by a negro congregation marks the most southerly point in a formerly select residential section reached by the expanding Harlem negro quarter.

The church was sold over a month ago for $85,000 by the New York Presbytery, which holds a mortgage on the property of $80,000.

The church is an attractive granite building, occupying a plot 100 feet square.

SHAH BUYS LIBERTY BONDS.

$100,000 Forwarded by Dr. Judson from Teheran.

A subscription of $100,000 made by the Shah of Persia for Liberty Loan bonds, which was borrowed temporarily by Dr. Harry Pratt Judson, the representative at Teheran of the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief, to feed starving Persians, was forwarded to Washington yesterday by the committee. The Shah's subscription was in appreciation of $2,000,000 expended by the committee a year ago to feed his subjects during the famine.

He paid the money to Dr. Judson at Teheran, but, as funds were short and the need was great, it was used to relieve immediate distress. Dr. Judson notified the committee of his action, and the bonds purchased yesterday will be deposited in New York according to the Persian ruler's directions.

WHITMAN'S TACTICS ROUSE REPUBLICANS

Up-State Leaders Are to Meet Here on Friday to Plan Reorganization.

TIRED OF COURT ACTIONS

Governor Gets Another Setback from the Appellate Division and Smith Will Get Certificate.

Dissatisfied with the action of Governor Whitman and New York City Republicans who have refused to admit the election of Alfred E. Smith and who are insisting upon an examination of the ballots cast in the last election, up-State Republican leaders have called a meeting for next Friday at the Republican Club in West Fortieth Street to discuss plans of reorganization. If the up-State Republicans have their way there will be a complete reorganization of the State Committee with a new Chairman and with the balance of power firmly established in the up-State counties.

A number of Republican leaders in the city are in complete accord with the up-State men and expect to take some action to end court actions over the election..

The notice for Friday's meeting, sent out by Robert W. Bonynge, President of the Republican Club, says that a committee of seven members, besides the President, is to be appointed to prepare a program for presentation to the proper authorities. The notice says that it is necessary, if the party is to be put in good fighting trim for 1920, that the party in the State be reorganized and all factions brought into complete harmony.

The Governor's efforts to delay the granting of the certificate of election to Mr. Smith received a setback yesterday when the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, First Department, handed down a decision sustaining the order of Supreme Court Justice Philbin some time ago that there should not be an examination of the ballots until the Governor-elect had received his certificate of election. The opinion was written by Justice Clarence J. Shearn and was concurred in by Justices Victor J. Dowling and Edgar S. K. Merrell. Presiding Justice John Proctor Clarke and Justice Walter Lloyd Smith wrote dissenting opinions. The Governor's application was for an examination of "all the ballots used, furnished, or voted in the general election held Nov. 5 within the counties of New York and the Bronx."

The decision, while it granted the privilege of examination to the petitioner, was virtually in conformity with the contention of Mr. Smith's attorneys that an examination, if had at all, should not take place "until after the State Board of Elections shall have issued a certificate of election to the office of Governor."

Justice Shearn said it was a wise one, as it allowed sufficient time to permit other candidates who might wish to examine ballots to apply for examination orders and therefore avoid "duplications of handling."

Attorneys for Mr. Smith succeeded yesterday in having the decision of the Appellate Division, Second Department, which sustained the ruling of Justice Fawcett that the void, blank, and protested ballots cast in Richmond County should be immediately examined in court, taken to the State Court of Appeals. Judge Cardoza of the Court of Appeals, in Albany, signed an order directing Governor Whitman and his counsel to show cause why the question of the legality of Justice Fawcett's order should not be reviewed by the State Court. The order contains a stay restraining Justice Fawcett from starting the examination of the ballots in the Borough Hall in St. George, Staten Island, as he had planned to do today.

Lawyers for Governor Whitman, it is understood, will take an appeal from Justice Shearn's decision, thereby taking the matter to the State Court of Appeals. They admitted, however, that there was little possibility of holding up the certificate of election granted to Mr. Smith and that the outlook was that Mr. Smith would be inaugurated on Jan. 1. Invitations for the inauguration have already been printed and distributed.

COMMERCIAL FAILURES CUT.

Fewer Insolvencies Reported Than In Any Month Since 1894.

A continued decrease in the number of commercial failures in the United States is shown in the report of R. G. Dun & Co. for the month of November, when the total was only 570. This marks the eighth consecutive month in which a decrease has been shown. The failures of last month involved an indebtedness of $13,815,166.

These figures compare with 660 insolvencies for $13,980,306 in October of this year, 981 for $13,635,605 in November, 1917, and with 1,815 reverses for $25,480,458 in November, 1914—the high point for the period. Last month's failures disclose a numerical decrease of 13.8 per cent. from those of October and one of 41.9 per cent. from those of November, 1917, while the falling off from the very heavy mortality of November, 1914, which reflected the dislocation of trade and industry caused by the outbreak of the war, several months earlier, is 68.6 per cent. More than this, the November liabilities, although somewhat larger than those of November, 1917, are smaller than in October and September of this year, and are also less than in any November, with the exception noted, back to 1910. Of greatest significance, however, is the fact that so few insolvencies as the 570 of November have not previously occurred in any month since monthly returns were first compiled in 1894.

ROOSEVELT ASSAILS PRESIDENT'S SPEECH

Says He Has Not Given the Slightest Explanation of His Trip Abroad.

MUST NOT TRY TO UMPIRE

Wilson, He Declares, Must "Act Loyally as One of the Allies" and Stand by Them.

Colonel Roosevelt, in a statement dictated in Roosevelt Hospital yesterday, said:

"President Wilson has not given the slightest explanation of what his views are or why he is going abroad. He pleads for unity, but he is himself responsible for any division among the American people as regards the Peace Conference at this time.

"He has never permitted the American people to pass on his peace proposals, nor has he ever made those proposals clear and straightforward. As for the fourteen points, so far as the American people have expressed any opinion upon them, it was on Nov. 5, when they rejected them. What Mr. Wilson says of these points is sheer nonsense. He says the American Army was fighting for them. Why, there was not one American soldier in a thousand that ever heard of them. The American Army was fighting to smash Germany. The American people wanted Germany smashed.

"The Allies have never accepted the fourteen points. The United States has never accepted them. Germany and Austria enthusiastically accepted them. Here certain individuals, including President Wilson, Mr. Hearst, Mr. Vierick, as I understand it, and a number of pro-Germans and pacifists and International Socialists have accepted them, but neither the American people nor the American Congress has accepted them.

"Mr. Wilson himself has rejected at least one of the fourteen outright and has interpreted another in the directly opposite sense to its plain and obvious meaning. The simple truth is that some of the fourteen points are thoroughly mischievous under any interpretation and that most of the others are so vague and ambiguous that it is nonsense to do anything with them until they have been defined and made definite.

"Inasmuch as Mr. Wilson is going over, it is earnestly to be hoped that it is his business not to try and be an umpire between our allies and our enemies, but act loyally as one of the Allies. We have not suffered as much and we have not rendered as much service as the leading Allies. It is the British Navy and the French; British, and Italian armies that have done the most to bring about the downfall of Germany, and, therefore, the safety of the United States. It is our business to stand by our allies.

"The British Empire imperatively needs the greatest navy in the world, and this we should instantly concede. Our need for a great navy comes next to hers, and we should have the second navy in the world. Similarly, France needs greater military strength than we do, but we should have all our young men trained to arms on the general lines of the Swiss system.

"The 'freedom of the seas' is a phrase that may mean anything or nothing. If it is to be interpreted as Germany interprets it, it is thoroughly mischievous. There must be no interpretation of the phrase that would prevent the English Navy, in the event of any future war, from repeating the tremendous service it has rendered in this war. The British must, of course, keep the colonies they have conquered.

"As for this nation, it must keep its absolute economic independence and raise or lower its economic barriers as its interests demand, for we have to look after the welfare of our own workingman. We must insist on the preservation of the Monroe Doctrine. We must keep the right to close the Panama Canal to our enemies in wartime, and we must not undertake to interfere in European, Asiatic, or African matters, with which we ought to have properly no concern.

"As for Mr. Wilson at the Peace Conference, it is his business to stand by France, England, and our other allies and to present with them a solid front to Germany."

The Idea of Service
has always been the controlling thought with the American Hosiery Company, established in 1868.
No attempt has ever been made to manufacture garments at a price or to make any article to sell in big volume.
AMHO Body Clothing
is so named because of its appeal to intelligent people who appreciate the importance of wearing such garments next the skin as will induce comfort and health and will give the fullest possible service.
The discriminating merchant will always have customers that will insist on wearing AMHO Body Clothing in preference to mere underwear.

BEATTY HEAPS SCORN ON THE GERMAN FLEET

Their "Humiliating End" Proper for an Enemy That Is a "Despicable Beast," He Said.

LONDON, Dec. 3, (British Wireless Service.)—A scathing denunciation of the personnel of the German Navy was made by Admiral Sir David Beatty, Commander in Chief of the British Grand Fleet, in a speech addressed to a gathering of representatives of the First Battle Cruiser Squadron on board the battle cruiser Lion prior to its departure for the Scapa Flow as an escort to the surrendered ships of the German high seas fleet.

"We had expected them," said Admiral Beatty, "to have the courage that we looked for from those whose work lies upon the great waters, and I am sure that the sides of this gallant old ship, which have been well hammered in the past, must have ached as I ached and as you ached to give them another taste of what we had intended for them.

"Their humiliating end was the proper end for an enemy who has proved himself so lacking in chivalry. At sea his strategy, his tactics, and his behavior have been beneath contempt, and worthy of a nation which has waged war in the manner in which the enemy has waged war.

"We know that the British sailor has a large heart and a short memory. Try to harden the heart and lengthen the memory, and remember that the enemy which you are looking after is a despicable beast, neither more nor less. He is not worthy the sacrifice of the life of one bluejacket in the Grand Fleet, and that is the one bright spot in the fact that he did not come out."

JESSE LIVERMORE MARRIES.

Spectacular Wall Street Operator Weds Miss Dorothy F. Wendt.

Jesse L. Livermore, spectacular operator in Wall Street, and Miss Dorothy F. Wendt, daughter of a retired merchant of Brooklyn, were married on Monday evening at the Hotel St. Regis by Magistrate Peter B. Barlow. Yesterday the couple left for Atlantic City on their honeymoon.

The first intimation that Mr. Livermore, who was divorced last year from his first wife, was to remarry followed the announcement that he had bought a dwelling at 8 West Seventy-sixth Street.

Mr. Livermore is 41 years old, and on account of his daring speculations in stocks some years ago he was called "the boy plunger" by the Wall Street brokers. He has amassed and lost several fortunes since he first entered the market as an operator. His spectacular rise to fortune during the panic of 1907, and equally startling losses in cotton a few months later, made him one of the well-known characters in Wall Street. From the age of 16 he has been a speculator, and while still in his teens he had won $10 000.

He won a fortune out of the movement that followed the leak on President Wilson's peace note in 1917. About a year ago, following the accumulation of more than $3,000 000 and the payment of $2,000 000 of debts, he declared that he had changed his method of trading to one of caution.

Colonel Pierkowski was an artillery designer. He came to the United States about twenty years ago to negotiate the sale of Krupp material to the American Government.

STRAIGHT.—Major Willard. On behalf of the members of the American Asiatic Association the Executive Committee have to record their sense of the irreparable loss the association has sustained by the untimely death of its former President and present member of the committee, Major Willard Straight. Stricken in the midst of exacting duties performed in the service of his country, Major Straight died as he had lived, an earnest, devoted, and self-sacrificing patriot. His associates on this committee who have had ample occasion to appraise his value as a fellow-worker in the task of broadening the relations and deepening the sympathy between the United States and the peoples of Eastern Asia can testify to the fact that in this field of effort Willard Straight had no peer. His preparation for the task, leading up through experience in the consular and diplomatic service to responsible initiative in financial negotiations and constructive enterprises of far-reaching import, was unique, equally in kind and degree. It is the simple truth that no man can fill the place in the work of Asiatic development and reconcilement which his death leaves vacant. Even in times like these there is an exceptionally tragic pathos about the interruption of a career the brilliancy of whose past achievements was merely the earnest of services still more valuable to the immediate future of Asia and to the world at large. His associates have lost a resolute leader, a wise counselor, and a well-beloved friend. His country has lost a distinguished representative of the best type of Americanism, and an authoritative exponent of her obligations and her true policy toward Asiatic millions with whom her destiny is indissolubly bound. Those who knew him most intimately have lost the companionship of a man of rare personal charm, large-minded toleration, and warm-hearted impulses whose generous expression was the characteristic note of a nature of exceptional fineness of temper.

To War Service Committeemen:

Things will go "back to normal" all right, but it will be a new normal—not the old.

That is obvious in your discussions this week.

The new normal will be better too—better largely because industries are expected to act as groups, to advance as groups, with developed group consciousness and group machinery.

To meet this new order, to hasten it, we have prepared. For years we have been the central, cementing, point of contact for groups of manufacturers.

Now we offer a complete group-engineering service. We devise and maintain group machinery which, by individual-service contract, removes the threat of disastrous competition and makes for profitable standardization.

Of our executives Julian Armstrong, Murray Springer and Montague Ferry are at the Traymore, Atlantic City, this week.

Leader — Halstead. Record — 1,053 miles and 5 laps, made by Cameron and Kaiser in 1915.

Reggie McNamara, the curly-haired bike flyer from New South Wales, and his partner, Jake Magin, who has a lot of speed in spite of the fact that he comes from Philadelphia, led the merry chase in the six-day race at Madison Square Garden yesterday. This pair practically monopolized all the points in the sprints, both afternoon and evening. It is this pair which is causing the backs of the other twenty-six riders to ache, to say nothing of making their legs numb, in the ceaseless spin.

"They're doing a powerful lot of riding, but they don't seem to be going anywhere," said one sailor last night when the pine saucer was jammed with all of the twenty-eight riders. The riders are now going through the most trying part of the race. Several of them fell asleep on their wheels and the trainers are having a hard time waking them up when they go to their cots at the side of the track for a half hour's nap. The chefs in the riders' camp are as sleepy as the riders, for they are up over their cook stoves night and day trying to satisfy the ferocious appetites the riders are developing.

McNamara and Magin captured the lion's share of the sprinting honors. McNamara especially outrode the field every time he went out to annex the lead. In one of the sprints last night, the sixth, Reggie had such an advantage over the other sprinters that he crossed the finish line sitting up. The pair will have such a commanding lead in the point score if they keep up their wild riding that it will be a difficult task to catch them unless some one laps the field.

Kramer continues to command a lot of attention, for he is riding stronger now than he did at the start. The veteran has been conserving his strength, and he showed that he was still in the ring when he flashed over the line a winner in the first sprint last night. After that single victory, however, the light blue jerseys of McNamara and Magin were at the head of the procession most of the time. Both are quicker to pick openings in the field than any of the other riders, and they have not shown a single sign of weakening. These riders have been so alert that they haven't been mixed up in a single spill. They know how to keep out of the way of the troublemakers who are always engineering to catch them in a pocket.

The Garden was jammed from the boxes right up to the rafters last night when the sprints started. Kramer was the hero of the first ten-lap dash for points. He trailed along quietly in fifth place until the bell lap. Then the old-timer sunk his head over the handle bars and started to burn up the track. On that last spin around the bowl Kramer slipped cleverly through the leaders and fairly lifted his wheel over the line in front of George Chapman.

Six o'clock in the morning, when the cold gray dawn is spreading its chilly mantle over the city, has been designated as the official housecleaning hour at the race. At that hour the house officers go through the galleries and wake up the sleepy ones. Nearly everybody is asleep then, and the favorite means of informing the slumberers that the Garden is not a lodging house is a few healthy taps on the soles of the feet with a nightstick. "All out for breakfast" yell the officers.

Some of the fans who for hours have been inhaling the smoky atmosphere in the attic of the amphitheatre are just as unconscious as if they were under the influence of an anaesthetic. The lure of the race is so great that when the loafers are turned out they go outside, get a large whiff of unadulterated air, and then go right back in to the race again. It is estimated that the six-day race robs the lodging houses of as much as $500 a night.

Francisco Verri, the Italian rider, was the first of the cyclists to crack under the strain of sleepless riding, and early yesterday morning he was forced by his doctor to quit the race. Pete Drobach had four hours to get another partner, and when he failed to find a rider the team was declared out of the race at noon. This left fourteen teams in the race, all tied in the distance covered with the exception of the Bowker brothers, who are a lap behind.

As a result of the sprints in the afternoon Reggie McNamara and Jake Magin continued to monopolize the points. The team at the end of the afternoon session had a total of 109 points, while their nearest rivals were Madden and Corry with 79 points. A prize of $500 has been offered to the team which will gain a lap on the McNamara-Magin combination. This aggressive pair captured four out of the five sprints in the afternoon.

Frank Kramer caught the pack napping about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and before they had opened their sleep-laden eyes the veteran sprinter was whizzing around the pine saucer half a lap in the lead. Out came his partner, Dupuy, and in another thrilling sprint increased the lead to three-quarters of a lap.

The crowd this time was on its feet yelling like mad for the Frenchman to stick to his task. Round and round they whirled, with Dupuy gaining at every lap. This was the most successful bit of generalship of the whole pace, and Kramer was mounted again, ready to relieve Dupuy to complete the coveted lap, when a loud pop like the explosion of a gun stopped the sprint. The rear tire of Hanley's wheel went flat and the well-engineered coup of Kramer and Dupuy went for naught.

Early yesterday morning Percy Lawrence fell asleep on his wheel and rolled down the embankment, landing in a heap on the flat surface of the saucer. Grenda and Drobach, who were following him closely, also tumbled in the spill. Drobach was knocked unconscious, but was soon revived. Grenda was badly upset, not so much by the fall, but because his favorite wheel after the smashup was ready for the scrap heap.

Kramer protested to the judges about alleged foul riding by some of the contestants. The veteran believes that there is a clique against him in the race, as he frequently finds himself locked in a pocket during the sprints. Kramer charges that Hill and McNamara, all bitter rivals of the old timer, have been resorting to unfair tactics.

The riders are falling behind the record. The reason for this is that their strength is taxed during the sprints and they are compelled to loaf between times.

The point scores of the teams in the sprints are as follows:

McNamara and Magin, 161; Madden and Corry, 123; Grenda and Hill, 79; Lawrence and Hanley, 75; Chapman and Halstead, 55; Kramer and Dupuy, 53; Weber and Eaton, 22; Coburn and Kopsky, 14; Grimm and Thomas, 11; Lang and Byron, 8; Gerwig and Keller, 1.

ALLEN AND WEINER WIN.

Defeat Opponents in Class B Billiard Tournament.

M. Allen and David Weiner were the victors in yesterday's matches of the Class B 18.2 balkline billiard championship tournament of the A. A. B. A. at the Morningside Academy.

Allen vanquished A. Ortiz by a score of 250 to 102 in the afternoon. The winner finished his string in thirty-nine innings for an average of 6 16-39 and had high runs of 39 and 20. Ortiz's highest run was 27 and he averaged 4 6-39.

In the evening Weiner triumphed over Mark Muldaur by a count of 250 to 142 in forty-six innings. Weiner had high runs of 57 and 20 with an average of 5 20-46. Muldaur's highest run was 26 and he averaged 3 7-46.

HARNESS LEADERS STILL FAR APART

Amalgamation of Controlling Bodies Uncertain Until Biennial Congress in 1920.

Horsemen gathered at the Murray Hill Hotel yesterday for the semi-annual meeting of the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association. There was some interest in the details of a couple of ringing cases tried at the morning session, but prominent men in the light harness world were more concerned with the prospects of the proposed amalgamation of the National Trotting Association and American Trotting Association which has been hanging fire since last May.

A. H. Cosden, Chairman of the Trotting Horse Breeders' Association Committee, which met last month in the hope of speeding up the ruling bodies, was present to further impress on the N. T. A. officials the necessity of immediate action. He had a conference with President John C. Welty and requested that the committees appointed respectively by the N. T. A. and A. T. A. meet as soon as possible with the committee of the breeders and take up in earnest the matter of amalgamation.

No idea, however, could be obtained of when these committees would meet, and the impression was conveyed that it might be a long time yet before any definite action would be taken leading to a merger of the two bodies. Secretary Gocher explained that nothing could be done until the American Trotting Association officials were ready to move and that it would be a matter of time to get them together as they are in widely separated parts of the country.

President Welty said: "The two associations are operating at the present time under absolutely the same rules, but the complete amalgamation cannot be effected until the meeting of the congress. There are only 40 or 50 mile tracks in the country; there are, however, 1,500 half-mile tracks, and the question is largely a matter of adjusting overhead expenses. On the question of reconstruction of rules, wherever there is conflict, the final protest goes to the two Presidents, whose judgment is conclusive."

Most of the cases tried by the board consisted of horses with wrong records in which mistakes had been made innocently. There was an old-fashioned scandal, however, in which a mare had not only started out of her class and under a wrong name, but had been dyed black in order to more effectually hide her identity. The ringing took place at Windsor, Conn., on Oct. 2, 1918, when Edna L., with a mark of 2:09¼, started in the 2:18 class under the name of Sister Hal. In spite of the coat of black the substitution was discovered and the board expelled Richard Squires and Belcher Squires of Frankfort, Conn., for starting Edna L., and also expelled the mare.

Another ringing case was that of the bay mare Nettie H., which had been finally identified as Emeline Dillon, 2:07¼. She raced at Warren, Penn., under the name of F. E. Holladay. The ruling of the board was that the mare and Holladay be expelled, and the winnings distributed to the parties entitled to them.

The session of the Board of Review will be continued today, when it is believed all the cases on the docket will be disposed of.

C., New York State amateur boxing champion at 125 pounds, was among the successful boxers who competed last night in the preliminary bouts of the Bensonhurst Yacht Club's tournament. Taking advantage of ideal autumnal conditions, four professional golfers played in a thirty-six-hole match at the Englewood Country Club yesterday. Carl Anderson of Bronxville and William Entwistle of Syracuse defeated Will Gourlay of Elizabeth and Jack Hobens of the home club, by 2 up. At the end of the morning round the winners led 2 up, but they lost this later on because of a brilliant outward journey by Hobens, who won the first four holes in the afternoon.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Grover Cleveland Alexander, the Chicago National League Club pitcher, who entered the army soon after the club paid Philadelphia $50,000 for him, is with the American army of occupation now marching into Germany. This information was received by Manager Fred Mitchell today and dissipates hope that the manager had entertained, he said, that the pitcher would be available for duty next season.

PLAN SQUASH TITLE PLAY.

Amateur Championship to be Held Here on Feb. 1.

Play for the national amateur squash tennis championship will start Feb. 1, it was announced yesterday following a decision reached by the Executive Committee of the National Squash Tennis Association. No place for holding the title tournament has been selected.

The association has decided to conduct all its tournaments this season, and every effort will be made to stimulate interest in the game. During the season monthly meetings will be held. The interclub tournament, which this year will be conducted as a round robin home-and-home competition, will commence during the week of Dec. 16.

An entry of at least thirty players is promised for the open handicap tournament to be held at the Columbia Club beginning Saturday. Among the lower handicapped players will be John W. Appel, Jr., of the Harvard Club, President of the N. S. T. A.; Robert G. Coburn, Harvard Club, and W. J. Knapp, E. W. Putnam, and Fred S. Keeler, all of the Columbia Club.

FORDHAM TO PLAY AIRMEN.

Final Football Game Arranged for Polo Grounds Saturday.

Although the collegiate football season was practically finished last Saturday, the Fordham University S. A. T. C. unit team has arranged a game with the Mitchel Field Aviation team to be played on Dec. 7, at the Polo Grounds. The Garden City aggregation has defeated some of the best service teams in the East.

COLUMBIA PASSERS WORK.

Twenty-five Candidates Report for Basket Ball Team.

With twenty-five candidates on the floor, basket ball practice got under way at Columbia University yesterday under the direction of Fred Dawson. A dozen football players were called in to fill out the squad, which was further augmented by the return to the university of C. C. Latour, Captain of the 'Varsity team last season.

It is understood that the Intercollegiate League will have a meeting shortly, at which Ralph Morgan, Secretary, will present plans for a limited schedule of games between Columbia, Pennsylvania, Princeton, and Yale, all of which are expected to have teams. Dartmouth and Cornell are not expected to have teams because of the lack of financial support.

BASEBALL LEAGUES MAY GATHER HERE

Nationals Want Joint Meeting with Americans to Erase Differences in Game.

The National League has asked the American League to take part in a joint meeting of the two organizations in this city next week, for the purpose of bringing about more harmonious conditions between the major baseball bodies. The National League will meet here next Tuesday, but the American League plans to meet in Chicago on Wednesday or Thursday. If Ban Johnson accepts the invitation for the joint conference it will probably be held here Dec. 13.

There are three important questions which the two leagues will endeavor to agree on. They are a new Chairman for the National Commission, a new schedule for next season, and the player limit. According to the plans of several club owners, the season will be cut down to 140 games, the season opening on May 1 and closing on Sept. 30. It is also believed that the two major organizations will limit the players to at least eighteen for each club.

There are so many of the club owners of both leagues anxious to see a change in the makeup of the National Sommission that a big shake-up seems certain. The National League is anxious to find out where Ban Johnson stands on the question of baseball reforms. Johnson, last season, openly violated the national agreement by refusing to abide by the decision of the National Commission, and as this entirely destroyed the authority which the commission has exercised in the past, the club owners are anxious to know what regard Johnson is going to have for the national agreement in the future.

The one thing which the club owners in both leagues want, however, is absolute harmony before plans are made for the coming season.

Since William Howard Taft made it plain that he would not consider a place on the National Commission, several candidates have been suggested. Among these are Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis of Chicago and John Conway Toole of New York.

Numerous candidates have also been mentioned for the Presidency of the National League. Mr. Toole is among those suggested for this place. The names of Secretary-Treasurer John A. Heydler, who is the logical man; Magistrate Francis X. McQuade of this city, and Robert Brown of Louisville have been suggested for the Presidency.

Johnson gives no indication yet that he will accept the suggestion of the National League for a joint meeting. If he is unwilling to call his club owners for a conference here the National League, it is understood, is willing to meet in some city in the Middle West.

Fisher Out of Army.

MIDDLEBURY, Vt., Dec. 3.—Ray Fisher, former New York American League pitcher, who for the last year has been assistant physical director at Fort Slocum, N. Y., has obtained his discharge from the service and today came here to spend several months on his farm.

COCHRAN FORGES TO FORE.

Passes Morningstar in Match at 18.2 Balkline Billiards.

Welker Cochran, the young Chicago balkline expert, passed Ora Morningstar, former champion, as a result of yesterday's two blocks in their 3,600 points match of 18.2 balkline billiards at Daly's Academy. Cochran overtook his older rival in the afternoon match, when he compiled a total of 366 points to Morningstar's 139. This effort enabled the Chicagoan to blot out a disadvantage of 66 points and gave him a lead of 161 tallies.

Cochran completed his string in ten innings, for an average of 36 6-10. The young Westerner showed excellent ability to make difficult shots, and accomplished frequent massés in an unfinished run of 152 for his final turn at the table. On comparatively easy shots, however, Cochran often fell down. Morningstar had two runs of 50 points, with an average of 13 9-10.

In the evening the former champion cut down Cochran's lead when he ran out a count of 350 before Cochran negotiated his 300 points. This match took seven innings. Cochran had a high run of 100, which he scored in his first inning. Morningstar, in the second inning, made a high run of 140. Cochran's average was 42 2-7, and Morningstar's 58 2-6.

The total score now favors Cochran by 1,200 to 1,089.

The scores:

Afternoon Match.

Cochran—8 44 14 15 1 2 58 39 33 152—366. High run—152. Average—36 6-10.
Morningstar—20 50 0 0 0 2 2 50 9 5—139. High run—50. Average—13 9-10.

During the entire period his fortitude and cheerfulness were so marked that the men under his command were encouraged to a successful resistance despite five days' hunger and exposure.

Capt. Weston C. Jenkins, 307th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action in the forest of Argonne on Oct. 5. He commanded the Second Battalion of his regiment with conspicuous gallantry. With utter disregard for his own safety, he continued throughout the action to direct his troops personally, moving about from place to place under heavy artillery and machine gun fire. Exposing himself to the hostile fire, he encouraged his men in their efforts to break through the enemy's line, and succeeded in maintaining their aggressive spirit by his personal example of fearlessness.

First Lieut. Paul R. Knight, 308th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Binarville between Oct 3 and 5. Although he had been twice wounded, he led his company in four attempts to cut through a heavy barbed wire entanglement to capture Hill 205, in the forest of Argonne in order to reach two battalions of his regiment which had been cut off by the enemy. Home address: Mrs. Albert Clinton Knight, 541 West Thirty-fourth Street, New York City.

First Lieut. William J. Cullen, 308th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Binarville, between Oct. 2 and 8. During the advance of his regiment through the forest of Argonne, he led his company under intense concentration of machine gun fire to the day's objective, steadying his men and directing the organization and intrenchment of his position. During the period in which part of the regiment was cut off by the enemy, his regiment was cut off by the enemy, he continued to visit his posts and encourage his men under intense concentrations of trench mortar and machine gun fire, effectively directing the repulse of attacks on his position. On Oct. 4, 5, and 6 this officer, observing friendly airplanes, left his shelter and went out into a cleared space in plain view of the enemy, and under intense machine gun fire signaled the position to the airmen. During all this critical time, when his company as well as the battalion was entirely without food for five days, he displayed coolness, good judgment and efficiency, furnishing an inspiring example to his men. His gallantry in action contributed materially to the holding of the left flank and the successful resistance made by his battalion. Home address: William Cullen, father, 1,187 Woodycrest Ave., New York City.

Second Lieut. Harry Rogers, 308th Infantry. Deceased. For extraordinary heroism in action near Binarville, between Oct. 2 and 6. He was in command of a detachment comprising part of two battalions which were cut off and surrounded by the enemy in the Argonne Forest. During the days of isolation from friendly troops, he was on the exposed flank without food. Although under a heavy concentration of fire from enemy machine guns and snipers, by his personal example of calmness he kept his men in order and helped repel counterattacks. This intrepid officer was killed in action on Oct. 6.

Second Lieut. E. W. Akers, 308th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Binarville, on Sept. 28. During the advance in the Argonne Forest Lieutenant Akers, having been severely wounded, led his platoon in a successful assault on two machine gun nests.

I.

Priv. Joseph Charles, Co. L, 306th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action in the Forest of Argonne on Oct. 2. Home address: Mrs. Marie Arlington, mother, High Falls, N. Y.

Priv. Philip Cepeglia, Co. C, 308th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Binarville between Oct. 2 and 8. He was on duty as a battalion runner during the period of six days, in which his own and another battalion were surrounded by the enemy in the Argonne Forest, and cut off from communication with friendly troops. Although he was without food, and toward the end of the period almost exhausted, this soldier carried messages to all parts of the position. Constantly under heavy fire from machine guns and trench mortars, he showed an utter disregard for his own personal safety. Home address: Mrs. Angeline Cepeglia, mother, 630 West 188th Street, New York City.

Priv. Joseph Friel, Co. A, 308th Infantry, (deceased.) For extraordinary heroism in action near Binarville between Oct. 2 and 5. He was on duty as a battalion runner during the period of six days, in which his own and another battalion were surrounded by the enemy in the Argonne Forest, and cut off from communication with friendly troops. Although he was without food, and toward the end of the period almost exhausted, this soldier carried messages to all parts of the position. Constantly under heavy fire from machine guns and trench mortars, he showed an utter disregard for his own personal safety. On the night of Oct. 5 he was sent to carry a message through the enemy lines to regimental headquarters. Several other attempts had been made, as this soldier knew, which had resulted in the death or capture of the runners. He made the attempt, but was killed in the performance of his mission by the enemy fire. Home address: Mrs. Mary J. Friel, 301 East Seventy-sixth Street, New York City.

Priv. James M. Bragg, Medical Detachment, 308th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action near Binarville between Oct. 2 and 7. Lieutenant Brittain, by his aggressive spirit and action when out beyond the main infantry line, pushed forward unsupported with his platoon and captured two German officers, 94 men, and 8 machine guns. From this point of action he proceeded with his platoon in a direction from which firing could be heard and by his quick decision captured two enemy field guns, calibre 105, and six trench mortars, and immediately thereafter attacked and captured 30 prisoners and three additional heavy machine guns. Home address: Mrs. Anna Brittain, mother, 703 Margaret Street, Flint, Mich.

Sergt. Michael Castura, Co. C, 125th Infantry, for repeated acts of extraordinary heroism in action at Cierges and Mont. St. Martin, northeast of Château-Thierry, between Aug. 1 and 3. During the attack on Cierges he took command of his platoon when the commanding officer had been evacuated and led it successfully through the barrage to its objective on Aug. 3. When one of his men had been left wounded on the field and as no first aid men were present, this soldier dashed through a terrific barrage and carried the wounded man to shelter. Home address: John Castura, father, 998 Peace Street, Hazelton, Penn.

Sergt. Albert B. Brown, Medical Detachment, 121st Field Art.—For extraordinary heroism in action near St. Gile, south of Fismes, between Aug. 7 and 14. When a bombardment was laid down on the batteries of his regiment Sergt. Brown on his own initiative rushed his detachment to the assistance of the wounded, administering first aid and evacuating the wounded in spite of continued enemy shelling. On another occasion when he was severely gassed and blinded by the explosion of a mustard gas shell he made his way to a telephone and summoned medical assistance for the wounded, exposing himself to the increased danger from the effect of gas in order that the other wounded might be cared for. Home address, Mrs. Nellie Hintz, sister, 116 18th St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Sergt. Herman Korth, Co. D, 121st Machine Gun Battalion.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Juvigny, north of Soissons, on Aug. 31. Home address, Mrs. Gusta Korth, mother, Fond Du Lac, Wis.

Corporal Clarence L. Turley, Co. I, 128th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Juvigny, north of Soissons, on Aug. 30. In an attack by his company he gave proof of unusual gallantry and courage by fearlessly going out under heavy machine gun and artillery fire to give aid to and carry back the wounded. He was himself seriously wounded while engaged in this work. Home address, Joseph H. Turley, father, Grandwies, Wash.

Priv. Roy C. Mark, Co. I, 125th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Cierges on July 31. Though he was twice wounded during the attack on Hill 212, Private Mark displayed remarkable bravery and devotion to duty by continuing in action and advancing with the attack. He continued to fight until he was ordered to the rear on account of his wounds. Home address: Willard Mark, father, McMillan, Mich.

Priv. Clem Anthony, Co. E, 128th Infantry, for extraordinary heroism in action near Juvigny, north of Soissons, on Aug. 30. When a retirement had been ordered he was the last to leave his post, fearlessly exposing himself to fire from machine guns and snipers to bring in a wounded soldier, together with his automatic rifle and ammunition. Throughout the engagement his conduct under fire furnished an example of coolness and courage to his comrades. Home address: Mrs. Mary Anthony, mother, New York, Mich.

Priv. Lonzo L. Fuller, Co. H, 128th Infantry, for extraordinary heroism in action near Juvigny, north of Soissons, on Sept. 1. During an attack on a strong enemy position, in the face of heavy fire from artillery and machine guns, Private Fuller, a runner, worked unceasingly throughout the attack in maintaining lateral liaison between units. The entire route which he was obliged to travel was exposed to heavy fire from the enemy, and on one of his trips he succeeded in locating a machine gun nest which had been inflicting heavy losses on our troops. Returning through a rain of bullets he reported the exact position of the emplacement, which enabled the artillery to demolish it. Home address: Mrs. Emma B. Raynolds, mother, 316 South Cedar Street, Lansing, Mich.

First Lieut. George Willard Furlow, pilot, 103d Aero Squadron, for extraordinary heroism in action near Charey, on Sept. 13. Lieutenant Furlow, while leading a patrol of three monoplace planes at an altitude of 400 meters, met and attacked an enemy patrol of seven monoplace planes. Despite numerical superiority he destroyed two of the enemy's planes and with the aid of his companions forced the others to withdraw. An Oak Leaf is awarded Lieutenant Furlow for the following act of extraordinary heroism in action in the region of Verneville on Sept. 17. Lieutenant Furlow while on patrol with two other companions met and attacked an enemy formation of eight planes. In the course of the combat which ensued his planes were severely damaged by the enemy's fire. Despite the damage he continued the attack until he had destroyed one hostile aircraft and with his patrol forced the remainder of the enemy to retire. Home address: Mrs. S. C. Furlow, mother, 504 West College Street, Rochester, Minn.

First Lieut. George R. Phillips, Pilot, 50th Aero Squadron.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Beffu et La Morthomme, on Oct. 23. Lieutenant Phillips, (pilot,) accompanied by Lieutenant M. H. Brown, (observer,) while on a reconnaissance for the 78th Division, attacked an enemy balloon and forced it to descend, and was in turn attacked by three planes, (Fokker type.) The incendiary bullets from the enemy's machines set the signal rockets in the observer's cockpit afire. Disregarding the possibility of going down in flames, Lieutenant Phillips manoeuvred his plane so that his observer was able to fire on and destroy one enemy plane and drive the others away. He then handed his fire extinguisher to Lieutenant Brown, who extinguished the flames. They completed their mission and obtained other valuable information. Home address, George W. Phillips, father, 122 West Market Street, Lewiston, Penn.

Second Lieut. Mitchell H. Brown, Observer, 50th Aero Squadron.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Beffu et La Morthomme on Oct. 23. Lieutenant Brown, (observer,) piloted by Lieutenant Phillips, while on a reconnaissance for the 78th Division, attacked an enemy balloon and forced it to descend. They were in turn attacked by three enemy planes, (Fokker type,) The incendiary bullets from the enemy's machine set the signal rockets in Lieutenant Brown's cockpit afire. Disregarding the flames, he continued firing, destroying one enemy plane and forcing the others to retire. He then used the extinguisher handed him by his pilot and put out the flames. They successfully completed their mission and secure valuable information. Home address, Mrs. Mitchell H. Brown, mother, Rockwall, Texas.

First Lieut. Ernest A. Giroux, Pilot, (deceased.)—For extraordinary heroism in action, near Armeyeres, on May 22. Lieutenant Giroux, while on patrol with four other scout planes, attacked an enemy formation of eight monoplane machines. Two of Lieutenant Giroux's companions were forced to retire when their guns became jammed. Despite numerical superiority, he continued the attack, endeavoring to protect his leader, until finally forced down and killed.

Sergt. Arthur Schultz, Co. E, 128th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Juvigny, north of Soissons, on Aug. 30. He displayed great courage and coolness during an attack in going forward under heavy fire and firing upon machine-gun emplacements. Later when a retirement was ordered he remained in advance of the line to carry back the wounded in spite of heavy fire from artillery and machine guns. Home address, Mrs. Robert Schultz, mother, 217 East Water Street, Neenah, Wis.

Sergt. Ray Bolain, Co. L, 127th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action at Juvigny on Aug. 31. He attacked a machine-gun nest single handed after the four soldiers accompanying him had been wounded. He killed the operator of one gun and captured the remainder of the two gun crews and both guns. Home address, Alfred Rolain, father, 1,254 Eagle Street, Rhinelander, Wis.

Corporal Donald D. Palmer, Co. C, 107th Field Signal Bat.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Cierges on Aug. 2. He was a member of a detachment stringing telephone wire far in advance of the front lines through the heaviest artillery fire. Connection was established at a point within 100 yards of the German line before the American advance was begun. Corporal Palmer volunteered to remain there until our troops had advanced far enough to establish the advance regimental post of command at that place. His devotion to duty under conditions of great danger assisted immeasurably in maintaining unity of action between the front lines and regimental post of command, and his utter indifference to his own safety made easier the capture of a strong enemy position. Home address: Mrs. F. B. Palmer, 653 Sixty-eighth Street, West Allis, Wis.

Second Lieut. John D. Cosgrove, (deceased;) 139th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Charpentry on Sept. 26 and 27. As battalion intelligence officer he repeatedly went in front of his own and adjoining battalions to obtain information which he conveyed to regimental headquarters over fields swept by artillery and machine gun fire. When the advance of his battalion was checked by destructive hostile fire, this officer, disregarding personal danger, conducted a personal reconnoissance, locating many machine guns and strongholds. He was killed while voluntarily leading and placing troops in advantageous positions to reduce these machine gun nests.

Sergt. Willie A. Oldfield, Co. I, 139th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action near Charpentry on Sept. 26 and 27. He was in charge of his platoon when it was subjected to heavy enemy machine gun fire, causing numerous casualties. By his word and example he held his men in line as a unit until nightfall, when they intrenched. Next day, when the tanks appeared, he led the charge upon the machine guns which were holding up the advance. Inspired by his gallantry, his men went forward and cleared out the guns and assisted in the capture of Charpentry, with many prisoners.

Second Lieut. Stephen D. Elkins, 105th Infantry.—For extraordinary heroism in action east of Ronssoy on Sept. 29. During the operations against the Hindenburg line Lieut. Elkins, with three Sergeants, occupied an outpost position in advance of the line, which was attacked by a superior force of the enemy. Lieut. Elkins so directed his small detachment that he succeeded in repulsing the attack, killing ten Germans, capturing five, and putting the rest of the enemy to flight. The bravery and determination displayed by this group was an inspiration to all who witnessed it. Home address, M. A. Elkins, father, Europa, Miss.

Lost Enamel is Lost Forever

The only tissue in the body which does not renew itself is the enamel of the teeth. It is also the hardest substance and if properly cared for should last a lifetime.

"Acid-Mouth"—an unnatural condition—breaks down the enamel, exposing the softer part of the teeth and decay sets in.

95 people out of every 100 are said to have "Acid-Mouth."

To preserve the teeth two things are necessary—keep them clean and keep up a constant fight against "Acid-Mouth."

The dentifrice that accomplishes both of these results is

PEBECO TOOTH PASTE

In addition to cleansing the teeth it contains elements that counteract "Acid-Mouth." A single trial will give such a refreshing sense of cleanliness in the mouth that you will be convinced of its wonderful cleansing properties.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Strong Under Moderate Trading — Call Money Rates Firmer.

Stocks again made progress yesterday under the leadership of the railroad issues in the morning, with the industrial shares moving into the position of greater prominence in the afternoon. Trading seemed to be directed by the same approval of President Wilson's attitude toward the railroads which was evident the day before, and the somewhat reactionary tendency of certain of the railroad stocks later in the day was interpreted as a result of profit-taking. From the point of view of money market considerations, the purchasing power in the stock market was greater than might have been expected. Call money was firm all day long at 6 per cent. and it was generally understood that withdrawals of Government deposits in the banks was proceeding on a scale comparable with that of last week, when such deposits were reduced about $100,000,000. Many of the more active stocks gained from 2 to 3 points and advances of a point or more were widely distributed through the list.

While money rates were stiffer and the supply of demand funds more restricted than on recent days, the strong underlying tone of the investment market received fresh demonstration in the quick absorption of $20,000,000 ten-year 6 per cent. bonds of Wilson & Co. The issue was offered at a price to yield 6.70 per cent. and was largely oversubscribed by stockholders of the company and outside subscribers in a half-hour. The bonds showed their popularity even further by advancing 2 points above the offering price of 95 in dealings on the curb, later losing a part of the premium. This was the second ten-year bond issue to be put out in the last ten days and the records show that these longer term securities have been taken up with as great rapidity as the several recent offerings of securities maturing in from three to five years. Corporation bonds and notes made available for public subscription since the last Liberty Loan was closed have proved that the country contains a great deal of investment money which only needs attractive terms to make its presence felt in force. While a comparison between corporate and Government security offerings is hardly fair, still the ease with which short term securities of industrial companies are distributed augurs well for the large Government bond issue, of short maturity, which will come out in the Spring.

There are several pieces of railroad financing to be completed in the near future and it will be interesting to learn the form they will take in view of the situation of the carriers. Bankers interested in railroad security offerings have no less vital an interest in forthcoming efforts to work out the railroad problem than have railroad stockholders, and the drift of sentiment in respect to Federal oversight of the roads in some way is likely to be reflected in new security sales. Bankers say that a return of the carriers to the conditions under which they suffered before Government emergency control was begun would have a decidedly adverse influence on the credit of many roads. For this reason railroad bankers hope for a plan which involves Government oversight in the future, of quite a different character from that contained in the "multiform regulation by State and Federal authorities," to which President Wilson referred in his message.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Ingot Output Falls.

The Steel Corporation's ingot mills were worked at 95.4 per cent. of capacity last week, a decline of nearly 2 per cent. from the rate of the week before. A little more than a month ago the mills were at 100 per cent. of capacity. A natural assumption from the figures would be that the slackening of war demands in certain lines had caused a reduction of steel plant operations, but this was apparently another influence at work last week. For the manufacture of ingots pig iron is necessary and pig iron production has been reduced for the last three weeks by coke shortage. Blast furnaces operations were no higher than 80.7 per cent. of capacity last week compared with about 95 per cent. two weeks before. Coke is expected to be produced in larger quantity from now on, a development which will be felt throughout the iron and steel industry.

Marine Preferred Breaks Again.

Mercantile Marine preferred started off yesterday with a heavy tone which was quickly extended into a sharp break from 115⅛ to 109⅜. Later a recovery to 112¼ occurred which left the stock down 3¼ points. The movement received no explanation in the news of the day, but created no surprise in view of the erratic history of this issue.

Aetna Explosives Situation.

Holders of common stock of the Aetna Explosives Company said yesterday that the efforts of attorneys representing the various classes of securities would be continued for some time toward the end of working out a reorganization plan. If an agreement cannot be arrived at, it was said, which is mutually acceptable court action would probably be entailed in the settlement of divergent interests.

Copper Output Less.

The Anaconda Copper Mining Company produced 22,600,000 pounds of copper in November, the smallest output for any month in the year except September. The cessation of work on Election Day and Thanksgiving apparently worked to reduce mine operations. In October the output was 23,450,000. The Miami Copper Company reports 4,382,750 pounds in November, the lowest month of the year. It is expected that copper mine reports in the next few months will reflect something of the state of demand.

Back to Old Margins?

Wall Street heard a rumor yesterday to the effect that the Money Committee of Bankers has considered the advisability of restoring the old margin requirement on Stock Exchange loans. The new restriction requiring banks to loan not more than 70 per cent. of the value of stocks used as collateral went into effect Nov. 10. The old ruling allowed 80 per cent. on loans on stocks. If the present restriction is removed brokerage houses would only be required to put up as margin 20 per cent., against the 30 per

SECURITY OWNERS WANT TO BE HEARD

Conference of Association's Advisory Council Results in Appeal to Cummins.

FATE OF THE RAILROADS

S. Davies Warfield Says They Must Be Returned Under Plans That Shall Protect All Alike.

An important conference was held in this city yesterday of members of the advisory council recently appointed by the National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities and also of general counsel of the association. Of the advisory counsel, ex-Senator Elihu Root, John G. Milburn, John S. Miller, Chicago, and Hugh L. Bond, Baltimore, were present. The members of general counsel in conference were Samuel Untermyer and B. H. Inness Brown. The conferences were called by S. Davies Warfield, President of the association, who was present.

The question of the return of the railroads, growing out of the President's message, was fully discussed. After the conference Mr. Warfield gave out a copy of a communication sent to Senator Cummins, Chairman of the Committee on Interstate Commerce of the Senate. The letter said in part:

"We respectfully ask that at a propitious time you will accord the association an opportunity to be heard in respect to the return of the railroads to their owners. The National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities through its membership represents $5,000,000,000 of the outstanding $17,000,000,000 of securities of the railroads. It represents 30,000,000 people of the country of 50,000,000 (nearly one-half of the total population) who own or are interested in railroad securities. This association, therefore, represents largely the ownership of the railroads of the country.

"The position taken by the association in so far as the return of the railroads to their owners is concerned, is almost identical with that largely taken by the President in his address before the Congress yesterday. The President said:

The one conclusion that I am ready to state with confidence is that it would be a disservice alike to the country and to the owners of the railroads to return to the old conditions unmodified * * * What the country chiefly needs is that all its means of transportation should be developed, its railways, its waterways, its highways, and its countryside roads. Some new element of policy, therefore, is absolutely necessary—necessary for the service of the public, necessary for the release of credit to those who are administering the railways, necessary for the protection of their security holders. * * * I hope that the Congress will have a complete and impartial study of the whole problem instituted at once and prosecuted as rapidly as possible. I stand ready and anxious to release the roads from the present control, and I must do so at a very early date if by waiting until the statutary limit of time is reached I shall be merely prolonging the period of doubt and uncertainty which is hurtful to every interest concerned.

"Only recently has the association through the public press stated that the railroads must be returned under plans which shall protect alike the shipper, the traveling public, labor, and the security owner; provide adequate means for governmental regulation, including supervision of railroad security issues. We stated that the Interstate Commerce Commission is the authorized agency to which this will be likely intrusted, and that legislation by the Congress would be necessarily required for the direction of that commission, if continued by the Congress as the regulating body. We also stated that provision should be made for the retention of such methods of administration as may have been found to be effective during Federal control; to increase rather than diminish the advantages to be secured from individual initiative and to provide for taxing care of the obligations to the Government of each railroad incurred during the continuance of Federal control.

"We have stated that comprehensive plans for strict governmental regulation, which shall include supervision of security issues, must be studied. They are to be decided upon by the Congress, and should be worked out coincidently with the operation of the railroads by the Government during the remainder of Federal control, with the fixed purpose and to the end that Congress intended.

"At this time we have no completed plans to offer. The subject is of vast proportions. If it is perfectly agreeable to you, I will call upon you with a view of making arrangements for the association to be heard by your committee or by such body as can be delegated by the Congress to study the questions at issue, and when the plans of the association have sufficiently matured to admit of an appearance."

WANTS NEW RAILROAD DEAL

Head of National City Co. Sees Great Harm in Pre-War Conditions.

Charles E. Mitchell, President of the National City Company, when asked yesterday to comment on the idea of the Government returning the railroads to private interests under pre-war conditions, said:

"Such action would be calamitous. If the roads were returned to the owners under the conditions existing before the war, when they faced regulation by a multiplicity of commissions, which were not responsible for the effects of their rulings, it would be wrong, for that was a period of great economic loss due to such regulation without responsibility.

"The majority of railroad men and bankers realize that return to private ownership under the old conditions should not be made, but that some plan of unification, possibly by the regional system that has been suggested, should be adopted.

"This is no time for an academic discussion of the situation. What is needed is a railroad Moses, who will come to the front with a definite, concrete plan."

Great importance is attached in the financial district to the conference today of railroad men, who will meet at the Chamber of Commerce to discuss the general situation. The meeting, which has been called by the Railway Executives' Advisory Committee, will begin in the morning and is expected to run through the day.

EGGS.—6,442 cases. Arrivals continue light and advices indicate very little if any increase of supplies in the transit. Demand is cautious, showing the effects of the high prices ruling and few receivers have a slight accumulation of stock carried over. As a rule, however, the market is well cleared of desirable qualities and the tone is steady. Sales reported show no material change. Fall packed held stock is working out moderately at a wide range of prices, showing very irregular quality. Storage eggs continue strong, with demand for more stock than can be readily obtained. The rate of production indicates an early clearance. Nearby white eggs in small supply and fancy qualities firm; under grades quiet. Fancy Californias are meeting a fair demand at sustained prices. COTTON FIRMER IN TONE.

Many Favorable Factors Influence Upward Movement.

There was a much firmer undertone in the cotton market yesterday, when contrasted with recent sessions. Opening prices were 5 to 36 points higher than Monday's closing. After the call the trading was featured by the selling of March contracts by Japanese interests, which alone prevented a fuller response to the firm cables from Liverpool. The market in Liverpool was better than had been expected, prices for futures closing with a net advance of 28 English points for December and January and 21 and 16 for February and March. Reports from the South that holders there of spot cotton were withdrawing offers, and not pressing the staple for sale, was another influence which tended to stabilize prices here. Freight rates for January-February shipments were reduced from $5.50 a hundred pounds to from $4 to $4.50 a hundred. These various factors of decided import to cotton values caused prices to advance steadily to higher levels. December started at 26.35c, and sold up to 26.71c; January opened at 25c, and went to 25.70c; March opened at 24.07c, selling up to 24.80c, and July started at 23.20c, going to 23.85c. On Southern hedge selling around midday prices nearly touched the low levels of the morning, but the rally in the afternoon brought prices back to levels substantially above Monday's final bids.

Export clearances for the day were 18,736 bales, of which 17,131 bales were cleared through Galveston.

The record of the Straus Plan, thirty-six years without loss to any investor, is the best indication of their fundamental soundness.

Every investor should post himself on the merits of these bonds and the unusual safeguards which surround them. One of our officers will gladly explain them and discuss your investment problem if you will call at our office. BUSINESS CONGRESS FACES BIG PROBLEMS

Peace Reconstruction Suggestions of 381 Committees Will Be Considered.

VIEWS OF LEADERS VARY

Proposed That Merchant Marine Be Turned Into Private Hands by the Government.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 3.—The preliminary framing of the problems which will be considered by the Reconstruction Congress of War Service Committees, working under direction of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the opening session of which will be held tomorrow morning, was accomplished today and this evening by 381 committees. It was the business of each committee, representing a small group of industries, to draft a resolution setting forth the reconstruction needs of the industries represented by it. The resolutions adopted today must go to a committee of thirty-five, which may approve all or none. Those approved by this committee of thirty-five must be referred to a committee of ten, whose decision as to what resolutions shall be presented to the congress will be final.

Today's meetings were in secret, but it was possible before the day was over to get a fairly good idea of what some of the leaders hope the congress finally will approve, and what others hope to make impossible of approval. Some of the changes desired involve the repeal or amendment of the Sherman Anti-trust law, the repeal or amendment of the Clayton law, which created the Federal Trade Commission, and the amendment of the Webb law in such a way as to permit collective buying as well as selective selling.

W. H. Manns, Director of the Executive Committee of the War Service Committees and Vice President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, favors the repeal or amendment of the Sherman anti-trust law, so as to make the transaction of business more simple and less expensive and thereby reduce the cost of the manufactured product to the consumer. Mr. Manns also favors some action by the congress which will stabilize industrial and commercial conditions.

John H. Fahey of Boston, the Second Vice President of the United States Chamber of Commerce and now the President of a big shipbuilding corporation in Florida, favors some change in the law which created the Federal Trade Commission for the following reasons:

"The Federal Trade Commission as originally conceived was to be an instrumentality to assist the business men of the United States in the transaction of their business," he said. "With the change of membership in the commission instead of carrying out the work for which it was created, it has largely become an investigating body, the investigations being followed by an exposure of the methods investigated, before the men conducting the business investigated ever had a day in court."

For this reason, Mr. Fahey believes the act should be amended so as more clearly to define the commission's duties and hold it to those duties.

Those who favor amendment of the Webb law to provide for collective buying point out that foreign competitors are permitted by their Governments to buy collectively as well as to sell collectively and they see no reason why those engaged in trade in the United States should not be permitted to do the same thing.

Another important matter is what should be the policy of the United States regarding its merchant marine. It is the opinion of many leaders here that the ships built and building by the Government should be turned over as quickly as possible to private ownership or control. Those who favor this policy are aware that the ships could not be accepted on anything like a basis of cost of construction, and the opinion of many leaders is that the Government should make up the difference. This illustration was given: Suppose these ships, before the war, cost from $40 to $60 a ton to build. Suppose that those built since the war have cost $200 to $250 a ton. Let a commission determine the value of the ships and let the Government charge the difference to the cost of war.

Mr. Mann favors some such plan and so does Mr. Fahey. Mr. Fahey was asked if he believed American shipowners could profitably operate ships under the La Follette law.

"I do," was the answer. "It is probable that, when the world has adjusted itself to peace sailors will demand and obtain much higher wages than ever before. If sailors' wages follow law of supply and demand then shipowners must pay higher wages the world over, and American shipowners will have little more difficulty than foreign shipowners."

Mr. Fahey is one of those who do not believe that during the period of the world's reconstruction we should be aggressive in trade expansion. "If we pursue a grab-it-all policy we shall turn good-will into ill-will which will last for years. And what nation, pray, is going to grab trade from us if we do not grab it first? Half a continent must be rebuilt. Where are the rebuilding nations to get what they need except from the United States. If we do not attempt to grab all we shall continue to hold the nation's friends we have and shall have prosperity in the next years greater than we have ever known."

But, as it appears on the eve of the assembling of the Congress, more delegates oppose this policy of idealism than favor it. It was pointed out that there are 427 staple products, which we imported before the war, which we now make. To show that we can produce a comparatively short time what we formerly imported dye stuffs are cited. Before the war we imported $7,000,000 worth annually, and now we are exporting $10,000,000 worth a year.

As to the new revenue law, the President of a big locomotive company will introduce a resolution tomorrow that the cost of the war should be equitably apportioned between this and succeeding generations.

Wayne Swaab, Jr., Secretary of the chewing gum section, advocates a law making it clearly legal for the manufacturer of a trade-marked article to establish his wholesale, jobbing, and retail prices and maintain them through refusal to supply any customer who cuts rates.

The convention will be called to order at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning by Harry A. Wheeler, President of the United States Chamber of Commerce. At the afternoon session Secretary Redfield will speak on "Our Opportunity and Obligation in International Trade."

Fix Pig Tin Prices.

The War Industries Board has authorized the United States Steel Products Company, the distributing agency for tin in this country, to sell pig tin in lots of not less than twenty-five gross tons at 71¼ cents a pound, Pacific Coast ports, and at 72½ cents at New York and Chicago to consumers, dealers, and jobbers. These prices are to rule for December and January. Dealers can resell in lots of five gross tons or over to consumers or jobbers holding purchase licenses at a profit not to exceed 2½ per cent. The United States Steel Products Company has already advanced about $10,000,000 against purchases of the metal.

SERVICE BOARD FILES BRIEF.

Says B. R. T. Has Menaced Safety of Thousands Who Use Lines.

The brief of the Public Service Commission in the mandamus proceedings to compel the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to buy 250 new steel cars for its surface lines, was filed yesterday with Justice Benedict of the Supreme Court of Kings County. Referring to a threat of the company to cancel an order for 100 steel cars for its elevated lines, the brief says:

"If the company should undertake to make good any such threat it will be dealt with more drastically than it has ever dreamed of. The company will need these cars and several hundred more. It needs them now, how much recent events have poignantly emphasized. It will not cancel this order but it will order several hundred more for which it is negotiating."

In concluding his brief William L. Ransom, chief counsel for the commission, says:

"The question is presented, stark and inescapable, whether the commission and the courts can compel a public service company to do anything for public safety and convenience against its will, within any reasonable period of time. The course of the companies of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system has outraged the feelings and menaced the safety of thousands and millions of people who have no alternative but to use these lines."

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Net gains in the industrials and net losses in the rails were recorded at the close of the market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. With the exception of the carriers, stocks were buoyant and in good demand during the session until a few moments before the close. Selling orders in volume then made their appearance, and substantial gains made in the industrials were materially reduced, and, in the railroad group, which moved sluggishly and uncertainly, losses from a fraction to more than a point were recorded.

Are Making Dress Trimmings.

Upholstery buyers seem to be well stocked up on the fringes, braids, and trimmings which are carried in their department, as few large orders are being taken by manufacturers in this trade. During the Summer season some of the latter made up several lines of dress trimmings for Fall garments. Those who tried this found that they met with a good sale, and from all accounts they will continue to make these goods for next season. Manufacturers are now working on the new Spring lines, and, with conditions more settled the outlook for the future seems very promising.

Gray Goods Still Drag.

Gray goods continued to drag in the local market yesterday, and even the most optimistic seller could not safely predict the time when things will again be active. Reports of contract sales of printcloths were heard during the day, but for the most part were without confirmation. One of the most interesting things heard was the sale of some 38½-inch 64-60s for this month's delivery at 12½ cents, the goods having come from second hands. This is the lowest at which business has been reported on these goods in many months, and is a full 3 cents under the Government maximum. In view of this, recent predictions of 12 cents for this construction before the turn of the year do not seem so fantastic as they did. While sheetings continued relatively firmer than printcloths, they ,too, are weakening steadily.

Cotton Cutting Some Figure.

The disdain in which sellers of cotton goods in the gray have treated declines in the cotton market in the last year or so is beginning to disappear, now that Government business is no longer pressing and civilian buyers are waiting for cloth prices to approach something like normal levels. During the period in question, the mills and commission houses preached supply and demand every time a break in the staple made buyers look for a drop in prices, and could point to crowded looms and large Government contracts to sustain their position. With this prop taken away by the signing of the armistice, sellers who a month or six weeks ago were unwilling to trade into 1919 at prices then existing, because they felt that higher ones were on the way, are now regretting their action. Their last hope of higher prices is passing with the gradual decline in the staple.

Expect Weddings to Help.

Not the least aid to business that is expected in the jewelry and silverware trades in the course of the next several months will, wholesalers say, come from numerous weddings that will follow the ending of the war. While the usual run of June and

More Webbing Available.

With the slowing up of Government orders, manufacturers of suspenders are of the opinion that they will now be able to obtain larger quantities of webbing, which heretofore was being used in elastic belts and other army materials. Even though more of this material is released for civilian use, no immediate drop in prices is expected. In fact, some of the firms are of the opinion that they are more likely to advance, as most of the materials used in the manufacture of these articles have likewise increased in price.

No Longer Doubt Good Business.

Any lingering doubts there may have been as to the success of the current retail holiday trade in this city have disappeared in the last few days. Crowds of shoppers are in attendance everywhere, and, while there are still three weeks until Christmas, the people are buying and not just looking. Store executives were at a loss to say just which departments were doing best, but were inclined to think that toy, jewelry and other departments that are almost essentially Christmas sections were having the best of it. A good fur business also was reported. Useful gifts, while still selling in a large way, have apparently lost much of their attraction for many purchasers since the ending of the war.

Buyers Pleased with Showings.

Judging from comments made by buyers now here to attend opening displays of Spring suits, dresses, and coats, which are being held by many of the leading manufacturers, the showings are particularly attractive. The chief objection on the part of buyers is to the prices that are asked for the new goods, although most of them realize that lower prices are out of the question for some time. The basis for their laments appears to be that women generally will be expecting better values after the war, and, with the memory of prices at which they bought Fall garments before them, they will be inclined to go slow. Against this, however, are the assertions of manufacturers that the low consumer prices of this season were in a large part the fault of the retailers themselves, and that, with war restrictions removed, women will go in for an orgy of clothes, buying regardless of prices.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

A deal involving two choice properties in the upper east side residential section, valued at over $1,000,000, was the important feature yesterday in the realty market. William V. Lawrence purchased the thirteen-story hotel Leonori, on the corner of Madison Avenue and Sixty-third Street, a plot 102 feet on the avenue and 83.6 feet on the street, subject to a lease held by the Leonori Hotel Company, which has managed the building since its erection, in 1902.

The property was purchased from the Park Realty Company, Maximilian Morgenthau, President, and in which the Fuller Construction Company, which built the structure, is a stockholder.

In part payment Mr. Lawrence gave his five-story residence, at the southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Seventy-eighth Street, adjacent to the home of Jacob H. Schiff. It covers a plot 25.8 by 100 feet. On the north corner, opposite, is the fine home of James B. Duke. The hotel property is assessed at $690,-000, of which $250,000 is land value. The Fifth Avenue residence is assessed at $320,000, of which the land value is $245,000.

The brokers in the transaction were Varick D. Martin, for the Park Realty Company, and Fish & Marvin for Mr. Lawrence.

Another Sale in the Insurance District.

The Preferred City Real Estate Company, of which James W. McCulloch is President, has sold to an investing client of William A. White & Sons, 91 Maiden Lane, a four-story building, occupying a lot 21.8 by 66, adjoining the corner of Gold Street.

The property, which is located in the heart of the insurance district, is assessed by the city for taxation purposes at $46,000. On Monday the adjoining property, 93 and 95 Maiden Lane, was sold by Jefferson M. Levy to Sigsbee Graham, through the Charles F. Noyes Company.

Two Downtown Lofts Sold.

The Enterprise Warehousing Company formed at Albany last week, with a capital of $100,000, representing interests identified with other warehouses in Manhattan, has purchased from the Maiden Lane Savings Bank 334 and 336 Stanton Street. The property consists of a six-story loft building occupying a plot 39 by 70 adjoining the northwest corner of Mangin Street.

Last July the seven-story loft adjoining 338 and 340 Stanton Street was purchased by the Circle Warehouse Corporation.

The five-story loft building 338 Broadway, on a plot 28 by 150, extending through to Cortlandt Alley, has been sold by the Lawyers Realty Company to an investor.

SCHWAB HOLDS ON TO PLEASE WILSON

Tells Engineers He Would Rather Go Back to Put Bethlehem on a Peace Basis.

GIVES STAGGERING FIGURES

Ship Program, Under War Pressure, Kept Very Near to the Original Estimate of Nation's Need.

In a speech accepting honorary membership in the American Society of Mechanical Engineers at the Engineering Societies' Building last night, Charles M. Schwab told of anxiety to relinquish his duties as Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation because of his belief in the great importance of readjusting industries, and especially the steel industry, to peace conditions, and added that he retained his place upon request of President Wilson. After his speech Mr. Schwab told reporters that he was willing to continue his work upon the Emergency Fleet program and that no date had been set yet for his retirement.

"Although a peace treaty has not been signed yet, the armistice has brought us peace conditions and reconstruction and readjustment of our industries to the conditions of peace that lie immediately before us," said Mr. Schwab. "Thoughts of this reconstruction occupy every moment of my time, and only a few days ago I told President Wilson that I thought readjustment to the conditions of peace was so important to the country that I considered it my duty to return to the great steel industries that I have built up. Every machine and man in them has been turned to the use of war and now must be turned back to the use of peace.

"When I was requested to become Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation the contemplated program was so prodigious that it staggered the imagination. At first I feared that I would not have freedom in carrying out alone a great building program, but after ten days' study of the plans for the Emergency Fleet I would have been glad to give anything to relinquish the task. I was glad to share the tremendous responsibility, and I learned soon that the program would be carried out not by plans or by machines but by human engineering. From that time on I spent more than 90 per cent. of my time in the shipyards and gave up all other work. The response of labor and of all officials was unparalleled. I have never seen greater enthusiasm than that of shipyard labor to win the war.

"Before the war our greatest annual record in shipbuilding had been about 400,000 deadweight tons. I was staggered by the estimate of General Goethals that we would need about 8,000,000 tons in 1919 to maintain the army in Europe. That would have been about 700,000 tons a month, and under the war program our production would have approached that amount. Our construction in November was about 500,000 tons, and our total for the year 1918 will be between 3,500,000 and 4,000,000 tons.

"When I give you these figures I do not mean that this is the number of tons of ships launched. I mean that this number is actually in service."

Discussing the work of engineers in the readjustment of industry, Charles T. Main, retiring President of the society, warned the members that the country was unprepared for peace.

Gondorf Leaves Sing Sing.

OSSINING, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Charles Macdonald, also known as Gondorf, "king of wiretappers" who cleaned up several hundred thousand dollars in swindling operations before convicted in Manhattan, walked out of Sing Sing prison today a free man, after being there a little more than four years. His wife, who had been living at Atlantic City, sent an auto to get him. Gondorf stopped in Ossining to have Benjamin Fegan, a lawyer, continue the legal battle he started for Gondorf to force the Prison Department to allow prisoners ten days off every thirty, instead of every forty, for efficient work under the prisoners' compensation law. Gondorf is going to carry the case to the Court of Appeals for the benefit of the prisoners.

'WET' VICTORY IN BAY STATE

License Wins in City Elections—Republicans Generally Successful.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—Elections for city offices were held in Massachusetts today. In Springfield Arthur A. Adams, Republican, was elected Mayor by a large majority. The Republicans swept the city, with the exception of Wards 1 and 2, which elected Democratic members of the Common Council. License was carried by a vote of 5,936, as against 3,514 for no license.

In Pittsfield Mayor William C. Moulton, Republican, was re-elected over David L. Kerlin, Independent-Labor and Democratic candidate, by 366 votes. The license majority, 1,025, was the largest in the city's history. The Republicans control the City Council.

Mayor A. J. Morse, Republican, was re-elected Mayor of Northampton, having no opposition. The city voted for license by a slightly reduced majority.

In Chicopee tonight both the forces of Mayor Daniel J. Coakley and the anti-administration forces claimed the victory in the Aldermanic election. License won by a majority of 458.

Throughout the State all Mayors who were candidates for re-election were successful, including Charles S. Ashley of New Bedford, who was chosen for his twentieth term.

Other Mayors chosen were: Brockton, William L. Gleason, Democrat; Fall River, James H. Kay, Republican; Fitchburg, Frank H. Foss, non-partisan; Gloucester, John J. Burke; Haverhill, Charles H. Croy; Holyoke, John D. Ryan; Marlborough, Charles F. McCarthy; Peabody, Samuel H. Donnell; Quincy, Joseph L. Whiton.

The license cities are Chicopee, Fall River, Fitchburg, Gloucester, Haverhill, Holyoke, Marlboro, New Bedford, Northampton, Pittsfield, Springfield, and Taunton. Those voting no license are Brockton, Cambridge, Leominster, Methuen, Peabody, Quincy, Salem, and Waltham.

MANLY SUCCEEDS WALSH.

Appointed Joint Chairman of National War Labor Board.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The resignation of Frank P. Walsh as joint Chairman of the National War Labor Board has been accepted by President Wilson, and Basil M. Manly has been appointed to fill the vacancy. William Harmon Black, Mr. Walsh's alternate on the board, also resigned, but was reappointed by Mr. Manly as his alternate.

Mr. Manly was appointed by the President after he had been indorsed unanimously by representatives of labor on the board. He was special agent for the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor from 1908 to 1913, during which time he made a complete survey of the iron and steel industry.

Save $2,600,000,000 on War Contracts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Secretary Baker announced today that the estimated saving through cancellation and modification of army war contracts since the armistice was signed was $2,600,000,000. "This is a variable figure," said Mr. Baker, "changing and increasing all the time." Secretary Baker said that he had not yet had time to study the Controller's decision regarding cancellation of contracts, but that he understood from Director of Munitions Crowell that this decision was very embarrassing. "I have asked Mr. Crowell," he said, "to prepare the draft of some legislation to present to Congress to enable us to meet our ethical obligations."

THE STORY OF REVILLON FURS

© 1918

A River Boat in Siberia

RUSSIAN rivers are more easily navigable than the rapid streams in the North of our own continent, and substantial freight boats can be used for the conveyance of furs and supplies.

The main Revillon post in Siberia is at Krasnoyarsk on the Yenisei River at its junction with the Trans-Siberian Railway. The most important furs collected in this section are red and white foxes, ermine, kolinsky and grey squirrels.

The History of the War

An editorial by A. W.

It is almost always true that those who live, half the time, in anticipation, live the other half in retrospection. This necessitates withdrawing the present from one's calendar. It is done. In fact, it is done too often.

It is being done now. Those who were our volunteer prognosticators when the war started, have become—now that is is over—our volunteer historians. In spite of the fact that upwards of three thousand books have been written on the war so far, and that perhaps thirty thousand more will be written, there is a little historian standing on every street corner waiting to pour dates, locales, morales and other delicious statistics into one's ear at a moment's notice.

Let us forget it. The war is over. The point is accomplished. All that remains is to get William Hohenzollern, his half-baked son and their vicious collaborators. That, too, will be done by those delegated to do it and capable of doing it.

This history of the war will be written by appointed historians. It will be painted by appointed artists. It will be fictionized in every language in the universe. It will be rotogravured for months to come in the Sunday newspapers. Is not that sufficient?

We were steeped for four years in all that makes war horrible—defeat. For one month we have been steeped in all that makes war glorious—victory!

Now is the time to get to normal. Back to business as it should be, over here—back to helping business as it should be, over there. That is the only road to progress. Do not neglect the opportunities that are cropping up in the commercial world today. They will never come again. Bend every energy toward a national success so complete that a conflict between nations cannot occur again. The clock has been set back four years. Move the regulating pointer toward "Fast"—and get busy.

Above all, use the war as an occasional mental tonic—not as a nightly narcotic.
